6 MORE SHIPS ARE SUNK BY MINES OR SUBMARINES

Three British, One Greek and Two French Craft Sent Down — Week's Losses in Sea Warfare Increase to 23.

NAZI EXPLOSIVES WASHED ASHORE

German Flyers Reported Dropping Charges by Means of Parachutes—Plane in Hitler Air Force Shot Down.

LONDON, Nov. 23 (AP). — Six more British, French and neutral vessels were added today to heavy maritime losses of the last week from mine and submarine warfare. Losses for the week totaled 23.

Losses disclosed today were:

The British steamer Darino, 1351 tons, sunk by a submarine Sunday. Sixteen of the crew were missing. Eleven survivors landed on the eastern coast after spending three days in a submarine before being transferred to an Italian ship.

The 4576-ton Greek freighter Elena R., sunk by a mine off the southern coast last night. Twenty-four persons were saved. The ship carried grain for Antwerp.

The British steamer Geraldus, 2494 tons, formerly named the Candleston Castle, sunk off the eastern coast. Twenty-six persons were saved by a British warship.

British trawler Sulby, 287 tons, sunk by a submarine off the Scottish coast. Seven of the crew were saved and five missing.

French fishing trawler Saint-Clair B-922, sunk by a mine in the English Channel. Eleven of 12 crew members were thought to have been lost.

French fishing trawler Bayles II, sunk by gunfire of German submarine off the coast of France. Sixteen persons were saved by a Spanish fishing boat.

Reports of Nazi Mines.

Geoffrey Shakespeare, Parliamentary Undersecretary to the Admiralty, told the House of Commons that 15 mines, all German, had come ashore on the Eastern English coast within the last two weeks.

The Exchange Telegraph Co., British news agency, said it had learned that German planes flying low over the Thames estuary last night dropped mines by parachute.

It said authorities described the mines as being exceptionally light and containing a very high explosive.

A large number of these miniature mines could be sowed by one aircraft, it was added.

The Admiralty said the 1335-ton British destroyer Gipsy was beached on the east coast Tuesday after striking a mine. Forty of its crew were missing and 21 injured. Built in 1936, the ship carried a normal complement of 145.

German Plane Destroyed.

As partial consolation, Britain had the spectacular destruction of a German air raider off the east coast, which witnessed aerial combat for the third successive night and the third time in one day.

Villagers over a wide area heard the bark of anti-aircraft batteries and saw searchlights grope the skies while fighting planes went up to give chase.

It was officially announced that

BRITISH WAR COST PUT AT $23,580,000 A DAY BY SIR JOHN SIMON

LONDON, Nov. 23 (AP).

SIR JOHN SIMON, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said in a radio broadcast last night:

"You have been reading in your newspaper of this latest abomination of German savagery—the magnetic mine—secretly deposited in channels of the sea in order to blow up without warning neutral and British shipping alike. All that skill and science can devise is devoted to meeting the new danger. We are confident our efforts will be successful."

Appealing to small investors to buy new National Savings Certificates, Sir John called the war "the most expensive ever fought," and set the expense to Britain at £6,000,000 ($23,580,000) daily.

ALLIES REPORT DOWNING 9 NAZI PLANES IN FRANCE

TODAY'S WAR NEWS

PARIS—Allies report nine more German planes shot down; German plane over Paris driven off.

BERLIN—Germans report five French planes shot down in air battles and repulse of French infantry company yesterday; Hitler confers with military leaders; Gestapo reports it had 21-day radio contact with British Secret Service by posing as anti-Hitler revolutionaries and learned English war secrets.

LONDON — Six more ships sunk; King George prorogues Parliament, which will open new session next Tuesday.

BUCHAREST—Premier Argetoianu resigns after breakdown of German negotiations asking more foodstuffs and oil from Rumania at lower prices.

THE HAGUE—Dutch Government protests to Great Britain against its decision to seize German exports carried by ships of neutral countries.

British Airmen Said to Have Destroyed Eight—French Flyer Gets Other at Franche-Comte.

WITH THE BRITISH ROYAL AIR FORCE IN FRANCE, Nov. 23 (AP).—Seven German bombing and reconnaissance planes were reported to have been shot down today by British pursuit planes on the Western front. Authorities said all the British pilots returned to their bases.

Two other German planes were shot down in aerial combat deep in French territory.

One was downed in the Champagne region after a dog fight between German and British planes. The three occupants of the invading craft jumped out with parachutes but one was killed, one was injured in landing and the third was wounded.

The other German plane was shot down in the morning by a French pursuit ship at Franche-Comte.

Yesterday air force authorities reported British and French planes shot down seven German craft, while anti-aircraft fire destroyed another. French losses then were given as two and the British as none.

NAZIS ALSO REPORT AERIAL SUCCESS

BERLIN, Nov. 23 (AP). — The German high command reported today "unusually valuable reconnoitering results" from aerial excursions over France and Great Britain "despite strong pursuit plane and anti-aircraft defense."

This morning's communique reported five French pursuit planes were shot down in border patrol combat yesterday, but acknowledged no German losses.

The German communique follows:

"Southwest of Pirmasens an enemy company attacked German vanguard posts. It was repulsed and suffered heavy losses. On Nov. 22 lively scouting activity by the German air force over France and England achieved unusually valuable reconnoitering results despite strong pursuit plane and anti-aircraft defense.

"In the region around Sedan a French airplane was shot down. In waters around Shetland an English flying boat was set afire by German planes attacking low despite strong defense.

"In various places minor air encounters occurred in connection with border patrol flights by numerous pursuit planes. Four French chasers were shot down in connection therewith.

"At Freiburg a German plane was compelled by French pursuiters to make a forced landing.

"On Nov. 21 an air encounter ensued over French territory between nine German destroyer planes and seven French pursuit ships. The French pursuiters were routed and thereby our own reconnaissance planes were enabled to continue their scouting activity. Enemy planes flying over German territory remained in the immediate vicinity of the border."

Adolf Hitler discussed the progress of the war today with the leaders of Germany's armed forces in a meeting at the chancellery. It was Hitler's annual fall reception of the heads of the three branches of the armed forces with their staffs at which he gets a rounded report of the past year's military activity.

Leaders at the chancellery were Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, number two Nazi and chief of the air force; Colonel-General Walther von Brauchitsch, Commander-in-Chief of the army; Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, Commander-in-Chief of the navy; and Colonel-General Wilhelm Keitel,

BROWDER GIVEN PERMISSION TO SPEAK AT YALE

Students' Peace Council Invites Communist Leader Because Liberties Were Attacked.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov 23 (AP).—Yale's campus gates were opened today to Earl Browder, Communist leader.

Conrad Seipp of Chicago, secretary of the Yale Peace Council, announced President Charles A. Seymour had granted the student group permission to have Browder speak in a university building.

The Council, said Seipp, a sophomore, decided to bring Browder to New Haven because the latter's "civil liberties have been attacked at Princeton, Dartmouth and Harvard."

The Communist leader will speak here next Tuesday.

Only yesterday, Princeton joined Harvard in refusing to have Browder, now under Federal indictment, speak on its campus. At Dartmouth, officials are trying to make up their minds as to whether he should be allowed to speak there.

JUST THURSDAY IN PLYMOUTH, SCENE OF FIRST THANKSGIVING

Massachusetts Town to Celebrate Next Week With Special Dinner.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Nov. 23 (AP)—Today may be Thanksgiving day in half of the country, but in this, the birthplace of the holiday, it's nothing but another Thursday.

The town of Plymouth, whence went huntsmen to kill the turkeys for the first Thanksgiving in 1621, disagreed when President Roosevelt proclaimed Nov. 23 as the holiday instead of the traditional last Thursday of the month. The rest of New England did likewise.

As a result, Plymouth, and New England, will observe the day next Thursday. In this town there will be a national dinner on Nov. 30, to which each of the 48 states has promised to contribute some of its principal food products.

MAN KILLED, 19 PLANES LOST IN DES MOINES AIRPORT FIRE

Total Loss in Hangar and Machines at Municipal Field Is Estimated at $106,000.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 23 (AP).—A workman was killed and two injured seriously today as flames destroyed the Des Moines municipal airport hangar, burning 19 airplanes valued at $70,000.

City authorities fixed the total loss at $106,000, covering the building, planes and equipment. An airlines hangar nearby was not damaged.

The dead man, trapped following an explosion during welding operations, was identified as Martin Barnes, a WPA worker. His companions, Louis Bender and William L. Richardson, were injured.

TITLED BRITON AND WIFE FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Spaniel on Guard, Pistol Near By Bodies of Sir William J. Reid, Lady Reid.

LONDON, Nov. 23 (AP). — Sir William James Reid, former Acting Governor of the Indian Province of Assam, and Lady Reid were found dead of gunshot wounds today near their rural home with a spaniel on guard and a pistol nearby.

The two had been missing since going for a walk with the dog Tuesday evening.

Sir William was 68 years old.

ZIPPER SEWED ON TURKEY

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP).—The stuffing won't pop out of Mrs. Norbert A. Pfaffenbach's turkey as it roasts today.

Mrs. Pfaffenbach carefully sewed a slide fastener into the bird, inserted the stuffing and zipped. She'll know the result when the unzipping is done before several dinner guests.

F. W. BAUMHOFF INDICTED, ACCUSED OF $70,000 FRAUD

$60,000 UTILITIES SWINDLE ALLEGED

Second Count Says Father Got $10,000 on Misstatements Concerning Mechanical Auto Map.

Frederick W. Baumhoff, a former Postmaster of St. Louis and later head of a stock and bond brokerage firm that collapsed in 1927, was arrested late yesterday on a Federal indictment which charges him and his son, Herbert G. Baumhoff, with using the mails to defraud. The son already was in custody elsewhere because of previous mail fraud indictments.

The indictment, returned last Friday, but suppressed until the arrest of the elder Baumhoff, who is 80 years old, alleges that the father and son obtained $60,000 from three residents of Jefferson City by falsely representing that they needed funds to protect interests in the Duluth Utilities Co.

Auto Map Promotion.

It alleges also that $10,000 was obtained from Dr. F. G. Pernoud, a physician, living at 3615 Utah place, by falsely representing they needed the money to finance a mechanical automobile map device, showing distances between cities, which was to be distributed under a contract with an oil company. It developed, the indictment stated, that no contract existed.

An account of the alleged mulcting of Dr. Pernoud was made public last June upon the return of another indictment charging Baumhoff's son, Herbert, with mail fraud. The indictment quoted from alleged letters from "Chubby" Baumhoff to Dr. Pernoud, requesting additional fnuds, all written in 1937. One stated:

"Again let me say how sorry I am we must drain your purse alone. I wish that I had it and you could bet your all I wouldn't hesitate to use mine."

The younger Baumhoff, who is 45, also is under a confidence game indictment returned by a State grand jury at Peoria, Ill., in connection with his map romotion. His $5000 bond was declared forfeited Oct. 24 last, when he failed to appear before United States District Judge George H. Moore here for his trial on the mail fraud charge, in which the Government contended he obtained $15,000 from Dr. Pernoud and other investors. Assistant United States Attorney David M. Robinson told the Court that Baumhoff was held at Cumberland, Md., for the Sheriff at Peoria.

Firm's Liabilities $2000,000.

The Baumhoff brokerage firm had liabilities of around $200,000, its failure entailing heavy losses to customers and creditors. Clients claimed the firm failed to deliver securities which had been purchased or failed to reimburse customers for securities they sold for them.

F. W. Baumhoff was born here in 1859. He was apprenticed to a mechanic at the age of 12, and when he was 20 became a workman at the postoffice. In 1897 he had risen to the position of assistant postmaster, and the next year President McKinley appointed him postmaster. After the expiration of his term in 1903 he was in the dairy business for a few years and then went into the bond business.

Ark Royal Heeled Over by Bomb, But Righted Itself, Officer Reveals

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—The latest explanation of the Ark Royal "mystery" is that German planes actually did attack the British aircraft carrier and that only a "miracle" saved it from destruction.

The story, based on an eye-witness report and related to the Overseas Press Club yesterday, said a bomb explosion heeled the carrier so far over that the side of the flying deck was washed by the sea, but that the ship miraculously righted itself.

Sir Derwent-Hall Caine, former member of Parliament and adviser to the late British Prime Minister, J. Ramsay MacDonald, told the story. He said he got it in a letter from an unnamed officer on the Ark Royal.

Germans have asserted a bomb sank the Ark Royal Sept. 26. The British have denied it.

Quoting from the officer's account, Caine said the carrier and four other ships were escorting a disabled submarine to port when six Heinkel bombers attacked them. Anti-aircraft fire repelled the raiders and "then I saw one of the machines turn again toward the st rn of our ships. He swooped down in a power dive. When he was just off the deck he dropped a 500-pound bomb. It fell in the water only a few feet from the ship. The ship heeled over and the port side of the flying deck went awash. Then the miracle happened. The ship righted itself and came back to even keel.

"By this time the bomber had turned and gone on its way back to Germany. The ship was not damaged in any way. No one was hurt.

"The boy who dropped that bomb and saw our ship go over on the angle it did was quite entitled to go back to his base and say he thought he had sunk the Ark Royal."

STOCKYARDS FIRE BURNS TWO HOURS WITH $25,000 LOSS

Blaze Confined to West Wing of Old Three-Story Exchange Building at National City.

THIRD FLOOR, ROOF OF STRUCTURF BURN

Absence of Wind Prevents Spreading to Cattle Pens —St. Louis Department Sends Aid.

The west wing of the Exchange Building at the St. Louis National Stockyards, in National City, was damaged early today by fire which for a time threatened the entire Exchange Building.

St. Louis firemen, who assisted the East St. Louis department in a two-hour fight to prevent the flames from spreading, estimated the damage at $25,000.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, apparently started in the office of the United States Bureau of Markets, on the third floor of the old three-story brick building. It was discovered at 3:15 o'clock by an employe of the Daily Live Stock Reporter, working in another part of the Exchange.

An alarm was telephoned to a fire company in the yards and a second alarm brought the five East St. Louis pumpers and Chief Russell Wright to the scene. Flames burst through the timber roof, destroying it, and threw a glare over the adjoining blocks of cattle pens, in which livestock moved uneasily. Two St. Louis companies were hastily summoned and added streams from their pumpers to the fight.

Flames gutted the third floor and twice reached the second floor, but were drowned out. Firemen commented later that the absence of wind probably saved the rest of the Exchange, which was built in 1900 and has well-seasoned interior wood floors and stair casing.

Records and office equipment were destroyed in the following offices: St. Louis Live Stock Exchange; Harry Sparks, order buyer; Louis Draggon Commission Co.; Phelan Packing Co., and the U. S. Bureau of Markets. The sales assembly room of th Live Stock Exchange was destroyed.

Serious water damage resulted on the second and first floors, occupied by the following: Producers' Live Stock Commission Co., one of the largest co-operative commission firms in the United States; Charles Rountree, order buyer; Morris Hancock, order buyer; John Clay Commission Co.; Rogers-Nichols Commission Co., and a restaurant and bar operated by the Stock Yards Co. The National Stock Yards Bank, in the central section of the Exchange Building, suffered slight damage from water.

Fred J. Bareis, general manager of the stockyards, said temporary offices would be provided for the firms burned out, and there would be no interruption of stock handling. There was no sale at the yards today because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

H. A. Powell, secretary of the St. Louis Livestock Exchange, said there was no cause for stock sellers to go to other markets tomorrow, as the market in National City would be open for business as usual in all departments.

QUAKE ROCKS CITY 30 SECONDS; ALARM BUT LITTLE DAMAGE

SHOCKS ARE FELT IN MISSOURI, IOWA, ILLINOIS, KANSAS

Tremor at 9:15 A. M. Throws Several St. Louisans From Beds or Chairs and Cracks Plaster and Brick Walls.

MOST INTENSE HERE SINCE 1917

Center Near Festus—Lesser Temblors Continue for 15 Minutes—Rumble Causes Many to Fear Explosion.

A severe earthquake, centered near Festus and felt in many parts of Missouri, Illinois, Kansas and Iowa, rattled windows and dishes in St. Louis homes and threw several persons from chairs or beds at 9:15 o'clock this morning.

The shock, accompanied in most places by a rumble which led residents tobelieve there had been an explosion, was the most intense felt in St. Louis and vicinity since 1917, it was said by the Rev. James B. Macelwane, St. Louis University siesmologist.

In many residences dishes danced on shelves and tables, pictures swung on walls or clattered to the floor. Late sleepers taking advantage of the holiday were awakened, and pedestrians passing light frame buildings saw them sway slightly. No damage was reported, however, except cracks of plaster or brick walls.

Severe Shock for 30 Seconds.

The St. Louis University seismograph showed that the shock, so intense it knocked one of the needles off its hinges, lasted 30 seconds, and was followed by less noticeable tremors lasting about 15 minutes.

Even before the seismograph needles had stopped trembling, the St. Louis University switchboard, newspapers, police stations and the telephone company were swamped with calls from all parts of St. Louis and the county from persons seeking to learn what had happened. The three operators at the Police Headquarters switchboard were receiving calls as fast as they could handle them.

Some of the calls came from Granite City, Belleville and East St. Louis. Inquiry by the Post-Dispatch disclosed the shock also had been felt in Hannibal, Jefferson City, Columbia, Fulton, Cape Girardeau, Flat River, Decatur, Ill., and Springfield, Ill. The Associated Press reported it was felt also in Kansas City and in Iowa City and Keokuk, Ia.

At Festus, about where the St. Louis University seismograph showed the earthquake to have its center, two telephone operators reported that the shock was unusually intense. One operator, who said she was "scared to death" because the building in which she was working shook so badly, said there were 800 telephones in the city and that every owner was trying to use them at once. No serious damage was reported in that vicinity.

Many Run Into Street.

The first reaction of most persons here was to believe that furnaces or water heaters were out of order or had exploded. Several persons told the Post-Dispatch they had run immediately to furnace and heater controls to shut them off. Other persons ran into the street, taking their children with them, to learn what had happened.

L. Edward Chance, 2433 Baldwin avenue, said he was sitting in his front room when the quake occurred.

"At first I thought the rumbling noise was made by a truck going by," he related. "Then when the noise kept up and no truck passed the house I knew what had happened. I went outside and found that the shock had opened a crack about a half inch wide and more

QUAKE ORIGINATES IN 'ST. MARY'S FAULT'

Nine Other Shocks Caused Since 1917 by Missouri Rock Shifting Underground.

Examination of seismograph reports indicated that today's earthquake originated 31 miles south of St. Louis in the district known to geologists as the "St. Mary's fault region," it was announced by the Rev. James B. Macelwane, seismologist at St. Louis University.

This district, which has numerous underground rock defects of the type which produce earthquakes, extends along the Mississippi River from the vicinity of Festus and Crystal City, Mo., to Cape Girardeau, Mo., a distance of 90 miles.

Quakes result when large strata of rock shift underground and eventually collapse. The St. Mary's fault region, which accounted for tremors in 1917 which knocked horses tc the pavement here, broke windows and damaged brick chimneys, also had produced eight other less serious shocks from 1917 until today.

Today's quake was recorded by seismographs in many parts of the United States. The first such reports were made by Loyola University at Chicago, Marquette University at Milwaukee, Wis., and Regis College at Denver, Colo.

The University of Kansas seismograph at Lawrence, Kan., could not record the earth shocks today because it had been discharged for failing to tell the truth. Drouth caused the building which houses the instrument to settle and every minor shift of the structure was recorded by the seismograph as a severe earthquake. After it recorded several hundred "severe quakes" the instrument was disconnected.

New Madrid, Mo., 50 miles south of Cape Girardeau, is the center of an old earthquake region. There was a great earthquake there in 1811, followed by a series of shocks for several years. It changed the character of the earth's surface, depopulated parts of the countryside and caused great suffering and distress. There have been occasional minor quakes in the section ever since.

HUNDREDS REPORTED DEAD, VILLAGES RAZED IN QUAKE IN TURKEY

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 23 (AP).

HUNDREDS were reported today to have been killed and many villages destroyed by violent, intermittent earth shocks over a period of 24 hours throughout Anatolia, the western section of Turkey.

Six villages were reported leveled in East Anatolia. Deaths were high especially in Erzingan, on the eastern edge of Anatolia, one report said.

Icy weather increased the suffering among hundreds of homeless.

SHAKING OF EARTH STARTS LONG-IDLE KANSAS CITY CLOCK

But Century-Old Timepiece Stops After Ticking for Four Minutes.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 23 (AP).—The earthquake, which was felt in Kansas City as well as in St. Louis, proved to be a good, if temporary, clock repairer.

A 100-year-old clock in the home of R. J. Rinehart had not ticked for years. The quake started it and he quickly spread the news.

Four minutes later the clock stopped.

Quake Mistaken for Gun Fire.

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., Nov. 23 (AP).—Earth tremors are nothing new to Junction City.

When there was a shock this morning residents paid little attention. They thought there must be some more artillery fire or practice bombing at nearby Fort Riley. They learned later there had been a earthquake.

CHOIR SINGER COLLAPSES, DIES

Ray C. Lutton, 60, Stricken at Thanksgiving Services.

Ray C. Lutton, 60 years old, 5219 Ashland avenue, died today after collapsing when singing in the choir at special Thanksgiving services of the Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church, 4001 Maffitt avenue. Death apparently was from a heart attack.

Lutton, a salesman, had been in good health recently, his wife told police.

GESTAPO REPORTS RADIO TRICK GOT BRITISH SECRETS

Said to Have Talked With English for 21 Days by Posing as Anti-Hitler Revolutionists.

NAZIS SIGN OFF AND DISCLOSE IDENTITY

"Conversation With Foolish Persons Boresome"—Account Given After Seizure of London Agents

BERLIN, Nov. 23 (AP).—". . . Hearty greetings from your affectionate German opposition, German Gestapo. . . ." With those words, according to a DNB (official news agency) account published today, were ended 21 days of wireless contacts between the German Secret Police and British Intelligence—21 days in which the German operatives wormed espionage secrets from their enemy by posing as anti-Hitler revolutionists.

The disclosure of the identity of the "revolutionists" was said by DNB to have been given only yesterday.

That was one day after the Gestapo had announced obtaining a confession from Georg Elser of Munich that he planted the Buergerbrau time bomb intended for Adolf Hitler. The announcement said Elser had British financial backing.

In the same connection, the Gestapo also had announced the arrest of two British Secret Service men, identified as Capt. Richard Henry Stevens, chief of the European Intelligence Division, and Sigismund Payne Best, an aid.

Yesterday the two men were accused of direct connection with the Munich bomb plot from which Hitler escaped by only 11 minutes on Nov. 8. Last night DNB distributed for publication an account of 21 days of coded wireless contacts between the Gestapo and the British Intelligence.

Nazis' Final Message.

Quoting "competent quarters," the news agency said the contacts were ended at 10:10 a. m. yesterday with the following message:

"In the long run, conversation with self-important foolish persons is boresome. You will understand if we break off. Hearty greetings from your affectionate German opposition, German Gestapo."

This grimly humorous finale to the Gestapo's cat-and-mouse game was said to have been taken as a matter of routine by the British radio operators who got in the last word by acknowledging receipt of the farewell message. DNB said:

"Since the exposure of the English espionage action, despite the German announcement at this time, apparently it still was unknown to the English Secret Service wireless station. Both English operators, Inman and Walsh, even acknowledged this final message."

The Gestapo had asserted that the British agents operated from a headquarters at The Hague, Netherlands capital, but the location of the wireless station was not specified in the new disclosure.

Arrest of British Agents.

According to the Gestapo, the two British agents were arrested Nov. 9 when they attempted to enter Germany from the Netherlands at Venloo.

The British Foreign Office has denied that any British agent knew of any German "described as having placed a bomb in the Munich cellar" and called the arrest of two British subjects at Venloo a kidnaping.

Reports at the time of the Venloo affair said shots were fired and that several persons were carried into Germany. These were known to include a Hague garage owner.

The Gestapo said Stevens was a native of Athens, a former student at Heidelberg University and a member of the Indian Secret Service before becoming chief of the European branch of the British Intelligence.

The German police said Best had been an Intelligence officer for the British general staff in the World War.

He married a Netherlands subject and had lived at The Hague since 1916, when he entered the Netherlands as an officer, and was interned. He represented a British business firm and was well known in diplomatic circles.

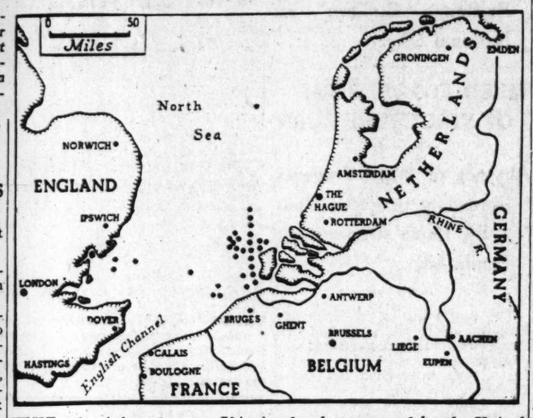
Destroyer Added to Mine Toll

THE British Admiralty announced that the destroyer GIPSY struck a mine off the east coast of England and was subsequently beached. About 40 men were reported missing and 21 injured.



THE mine infested area. Shipping has been warned by the United States Hydrographic Office that 31 mines are adrift in the North Sea at points indicated by dots on the map above. It also reported that nine other mines had been sighted.

SIX MORE VESSELS SUNK BY MINES OR SUBMARINES

a German plane was shot down at sea and another driven off.

The Gipsy was the seventh acknowledged loss of the British navy since the start of the war.

The others were the aircraft carrier Courageous, the battleship Royal Oak, an unidentified destroyer whose loss by mine was reported Nov. 14, the submarine Oxley, the auxiliary vessel Northern Rover, and the trawler Mastiff, sunk by a mine yesterday.

Prorogation of Parliament.

King George VI prorogued Parliament today. A new session is scheduled to open next Tuesday with a full-dress debate on all aspects of the war.

The King's statement ending the present session said the war with Germany was being fought to preserve the birthright of liberty.

He called the invasion of Poland "a challenge which we could not have declined without dishonor to ourselves and without peril to the cause of freedom and the progress of mankind."

The King's statement, read to the members, said that despite efforts of Britain to preserve peace, "Germany, in violation of her solemn undertakings, wantonly invaded Poland."

Of Britain's aims he said, "We seek no material gain. Liberty and free institutions are our birthright, which we, like our forefathers, are resolved to preserve."

The King thanked Parliament for "prompt and ungrudging" acceptance of heavy financial burdens which he said "has deeply impressed the world and demonstrates the unflinching determination of my people to make every sacrifice for victory."

The King's statement was read by Lord Caldecote, the Lord Chancellor.

Prime Minister Chamberlain earlier told a questioner in Commons that this was not the time to consider offering to let other countries join the British Empire as a part of war reconstruction.

The Government, he told opposition Liberal Geoffrey Mander, "see no advantage in considering the possibility suggested in the question unless and until it arises in practical form."

New Order Expected.

An order-in-council formally instituting Britain's campaign to throttle German exports probably will be issued early next week, authoritative British sources said. It was expected neutrals would be advised by notes on the new phase of Allied economic warfare.

British sources disclosed that members of a Netherlands delegation, who have been conducting trade talks in London, were going home "in the next few days" for consultation with their Government.

The talks will be in "temporary adjournment."

Netherlands shipping has been brought to a virtual standstill by the sudden increased mine menace and by Britain's plan to blockade all German exports. Britain relies on The Netherlands for much of its butter, eggs and similar products.

PARIS GUNS DRIVE OFF GERMAN PLANE

PARIS, Nov. 23 (AP).—Thundering anti-aircraft guns shortly after midnight today turned back an invading plane while Parisians huddled in air raid shelters. Alarms gave the city a five-minute margin of warning.

The plane was sighted at 12:12 a. m. It flew over the capital and then out of range of anti-aircraft guns. There were no reports of bombs dropped. The all clear signal came at 1 a. m.

One minute before the Paris alarm Northwestern France was put on a state of alert. Several hours earlier two air raid warnings were sounded in Northern France.

Tonight's war communique said:

"Very considerable activity in the air."

This morning's communique of the French High Command said:

"A fairly quiet night on the front. Artillery fire at various points.

"Nov. 22 we brought down five enemy fighters in our territory. Moreover, a German reconnoitering plane attacked by our fighters fell on Belgian territory."

The French reported successes in naval warfare—destruction of two submarines within three days by the same torpedo boat. One of the submarines had been spotted by naval aircraft.

'FRANKSGIVING' PROCLAIMED

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 23 (AP).—Mayor C. D. White officially proclaimed two Thanksgiving days for the city yesterday.

"Tomorrow," proclaimed the Mayor, "shall be celebrated by the city as 'Franksgiving,' in honor of our President, and next Thursday shall be celebrated as Thanksgiving." White said Atlantic City, whose hotels are heavily booked for both days, had "double reason to be thankful."

ADMITS HE STRUCK MAN WHO LATER DIED

J. E. Mattingly Tells Police Elmer Strecker Also Participated in Assault.

Police announced today that Joseph E. Mattingly, a chauffeur, 911 Soulard street, had signed a statement admitting he beat George Lamm, a coffee salesman, who died at City Hospital on Tuesday of tetanus resulting from a fractured arm suffered in the beating.

The statement named Elmer Strecker, a mechanic, 1922 Seventh boulevard, as the second man in the assault on Lamm, who was dragged from his home, 2315 Geyer avenue, on the evening of Nov. 13. Strecker, arrested previously, told police he was present when Lamm was beaten by two strangers and that he did not participate in the brawl.

Mattingly, 30 years old, was arrested after officers questioned Mrs. Anna Besselman, 521A St. Joseph street, sister-in-law of Strecker, and learned that the assault on Lamm was in retaliation for a beating he had given her. Mattingly's statement related that he met Strecker in a tavern at Sixth and Hickory streets Nov. 13 and Strecker told him of the beating Mrs. Besselman had received and suggested that Lamm be beaten.

"I told him to go ahead," Mattingly related in the statement. "Strecker told me he wanted me along, as he was crippled. We drove to Lamm's house, rang the doorbell, and, when Lamm came to the door, Strecker hit him. Lamm called us names and Strecker hit him again and then I hit him about three times and knocked him down."

Strecker now admits, police said, that he went to the Lamm home with Mattingly, but he refused to make a statement about the beating. Mattingly and Strecker were released on $5000 bond each pending an inquest tomorrow.

JAPANESE DIVISION HEAD KILLED BY CHINESE SHELL

Lieutenant-General Norihide Abe Struck When Leading a Detachment Near Paotingfu.

PEIPING, Nov. 23 (AP).—Lieutenant-General Norihide Abe was killed in action southwest of here near Paotingfu on Nov. 7, Japanese Army headquarters said yesterday.

He was the first Japanese division commander lost in the present war, though Japan has lost other generals in the fighting. Abe was struck by a trench mortar shell when leading a detachment to the relief of a besieged regiment.

Apparently in retaliation for Abe's death, the Japanese staged a heavy attack in that area against the Chinese.

CABINET RESIGNS IN RUMANIA; NAZI MISSION DEPARTS

Government Quits After Refusing Request to Increase German Rate of Exchange.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 23 (AP). — King Carol today asked former Premier George Tatarescu to form a new Government to replace the Cabinet which resigned after a breakdown of trade negotiations with Germany. The Nazis sought to obtain more oil and foodstuffs from Rumania at a reduced cost.

Premier Constantine Argetoianu gave the Cabinet's resignation to the King and it was reported at first he would be asked to form another Government.

Carol summoned Tatarescu after conferring with the Crown councilors on the crisis precipitated by the Cabinet's refusal to meet German demands. Tatarescu until a few months ago was Rumanian Minister to France.

The resignation followed closely on Rumania's refusal to grant an increase of nearly 50 per cent in the exchange rate of the German mark —a blow at German hopes for greater trade with this country.

A German economic mission, having failed to get the rate increased from 41.5 Rumanian lei to 60 lei for each mark, left for Berlin by air last night. In American money, such a change would have increased the mark's purchasing power in Rumania from 30.3 cents to 43.8 cents.

Rumania also declined to furnish tank cars which Germany would need in buying Rumanian petroleum, but did agree to lift an embargo on the export of oil-bearing seeds to Germany.

KANSAS CITY AREA IS CONFUSED OVER 2 THANKSGIVINGS

Question Is Not Settled for Two Towns by Difference in Celebration in Two States.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 23 (AP).—This was Thanksgiving—or was it?

That depended in greater Kansas City on whether you lived on the Missouri or the Kansas side of the line and even that wasn't insurance against confusion.

In very few sectors was the result of President Roosevelt's earlier Thanksgiving proclamation more upsetting than in this metropolis that stretches into two states. Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri followed the President's lead in calling Nov. 23 a day of thanks, but Gov. Payne Ratner, Kansas Republican, stuck by tradition and Nov. 30 for his State.

Most Kansas City (Kan.) citizens therefore went about their business today envious of their loafing neighbors across the State line, but at the same time nursing the thought they would feast next Thursday.

The banks and the postoffices on the Kansas side, however, stuck by the President and their employes took today for rest. The water and light departments of Kansas City, Kan., went right on working but the rest of the City Hall was closed. Some factories and other businesses let their Missouri employes take the day off and kept their Kansans at work.

Many Kansas City (Mo.) families with children in school at the University of Kansas and other Kansas colleges were doubly confused. Father was at leisure today but the sons and daughters couldn't come home till next Thursday. Mothers groped with the Thanksgiving dinner problem without success.

At Leavenworth the Army post and Federal prison inmates were celebrating Thanksgiving today while the rest of the city waited for the month's final Thursday.

U. S. GRAND JURY TO INQUIRE INTO STATE BUILDING PLAN

It Will Take Up Monday $17,000,000 Program to Which Federal Agencies Contributed.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 22 (AP).—A Federal grand jury expected to investigate the $17,000,000 State penal and eleemosynary building program has been called for next Monday. Henry L. Dillingham, United States Marshal, said he had written 30 men, all outside of Kansas City, to report to Judge Albert Reeves. Twenty-four jurors will be chosen for a six-month term.

The PWA and WPA contributed $7,000,000 to the building program. This puts the investigation under the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice.

Ferdinand of Bourbon Convicted of Swindling Spaniard in Deal to Get News of Relatives.

PARIS, Nov. 23 (AP).—Prince Ferdinand of Bourbon, Duke of Durcal, was sentenced today to four months in prison on conviction of swindling a Spanish civil war refugee out of 50,000 francs (currently about $1110) last year.

Frederico Banuls, a Spaniard, testified he paid the Duke to obtain news of Banuls' relatives, who were held in Valencia. He said the Duke represented himself to be a Spanish Nationalist aviation colonel.

As a guarantee, the Duke gave Banuls a painting which, according to testimony presented in court, he asserted was worth 800,000 francs ($17,800) but which was later discovered to be worth only a few thousands.

THREE ALLIED WARSHIPS SIGHTED IN MID-ATLANTIC

BOSTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—Presence of a British aircraft carrier, a British cruiser and a French cruiser in mid-Atlantic, near the equator, apparently hunting German raiders, was reported today by passengers arriving on the American motorship Challenger of the American South African line.

The passengers said they were surprised to see land planes aloft so far at sea until they sighted the aircraft carrier.

Sharing in large cargoes now falling to American vessels, the Challenger carried more than 10,000 tons of wool, hides, manganese ore and other freight, in addition to $3,000,000 in gold which was shipped for New York at Capetown.

POWER COSTING SCHOOL NEARLY TWICE ESTIMATE

Union Electric Got Board to Buy From It Instead of Building Own Plant at Southwest High.

ENGINEERS' VIEWS WERE DISREGARDED

J. W. Sheahan Says He Will Seek Survey to Decide Cheaper Way of Supplying Electricity.

Power purchased from the Union Electric Co. of Missouri for the new Southwest High School in the last two years has cost the Board of Education $13,884, or about $6000 more than the cost estimated by Union Electric officials when they persuaded the board over bitter opposition, to buy their power instead of building a generating plant at the school, the Post-Dispatch learned today.

The $13,884 was paid for 488,400 kilowatt hours of electricity used at the school in its first two years of operation, a period ended last July. The figure, which includes the rental of two transformers for which Union Electric charges $69.19 a month, is at the rate of about 2.8 cents a kilowatt hour.

Original Estimate.

When the board was debating whether to buy power or generate it, a letter was written by C. E. Michel, vice-president of Union Electric, to George W. Sanger, building commissioner for the board, who recently committed suicide, stating that the average price paid to his company would be 1.5 to 1.7 cents a kilowatt hour. At this rate the total cost for the two years would have been only $7326 to $8302.

The discrepancy between estimated and actual cost was called to the attention of John J. Sheahan, one of the members of the board who voted to purchase the power, by the Post-Dispatch today. Sheahan said he would ask other members to authorize an immediate study of the situation.

Sheahan said he thought a survey of the cost of power at Southwest High School as compared with the cost in other high schools which have their own generating plants was desirable "to determine once and for all which is cheaper." Acting Building Commissioner Joseph P. Sullivan, who succeeded Sanger, said he would direct a survey of the comparative costs beginning at once if the board authorized it.

Use of purchased power at Southwest High School was decided on by the board for a trial three-year period, which will end next year, after a prolonged controversy as the school was nearing completion in 1936. In voting this policy, by the narrow margin of 7 to 5, the board disregarded vigorous objections by its own chief engineer, John L. Carlisle.

The board also rejected the recommendations of P. B. Baumes, an engineer who was named at the board's request to conduct an independent study. Baumes, whose findings were upheld by Dean A. S. Langsdorf of the Washington University School of Engineering, agreed with Carlisle that the board should build its own plant.

Wall's Letter.

It also has been learned by the Post-Dispatch that Edward E. Wall, Director of Public Utilities, advised the board against purchasing power. In a letter to members, he wrote in part that "there have been similar situations in this department and comparisons and detailed reports made on the comparative merits of operating own power plant and purchasing power show in every case it is more economical to operate their own plants."

The Union Electric company, however, insisted that Carlisle and the other engineers were wrong. In a letter to board members, it has been learned, F. V. Armistead, development engineer for the company, wrote that Carlisle had made "errors of reasoning, incorrect use of data and mistakes in simple arithmetic."

In another letter, Armistead wrote that "we estimate a saving to the board of $15,000 to $20,000 during the three-year trial period if service is purchased." On another occasion he wrote that "the estimated savings due to purchasing power will probably increase with the passage of time due to the downward trend of electrical rates for many years."

The arguments by the company prevailed when a final vote was taken on the issue March 10, 1936. Voting in favor of purchasing power were Richard Murphy, Arthur A. Blumeyer, Sheahan, Dr. Solon Cameron, no longer a member, and the late Henry P. Schroeder, Emil J. Barth and Mrs. Elias Michael.

Opposing purchase were Dr. Francis C. Sullivan, Edward A. Ferrenbach, Joseph J. Ward, James J. Fitzgerald and Dr. David C. Todd, who is no longer a member.

The generating plant favored by these five members would have cost an estimated $24,144, or not quite twice as much as the board has spent in purchasing power in the last two years.

Similar plants are in operation at all other high school in St. Louis with the exception of the Blewett High.

Quake Rocks St. Louis; Alarm but Little Damage

than 10 feet long in the brick wall."

Martin Kehoe, 7901 State street, East St. Louis, reported that the plaster in the living room of his brick bungalow cracked in five places, all more than two feet long. Employes of Robert J. Ambruster mortuary at 6633 Clayton road, Clayton, were amazed to see the heavy concrete and stone building shake, but reported no damage.

Women Thrown From Beds.

Among the persons who reported they were thrown from their beds were Mrs. Thomas L. Remley, 65 Crestwood drive, Clayton, and Mrs. Nora Colligan, wife of the jailer at Clayton. Many others reported being awakened.

Residents of the top floor of the 16-story Senate Apartments and Congress Hotel, 265 and 275 Union boulevard, noticed that the building swayed perceptibly to one side, hung there for a few seconds, and then returned to its normal position as the tremor subsided.

Mrs. D. A. Richter, 7434 Williams avenue, Richmond Heights, said: "The basement walls of our home actually seemed to be trembling. I had a large stack of dishes on the dining room table and I thought for a moment they were going to topple over."

Preparing a Thanksgiving dinner in the kitchen of her home at 5821 Saloma avenue, Mrs. Anna Bergmann saw the table at which she was working begin shaking, rattling the dishes and cutlery sharply. One of her children called in, "Mamma, what in the world are you doing there?"

John M. Burton, 7417 Warwick drive, Normandy, was another of those who first thought a heavy truck was passing. When dishes kept rattling, he changed his mind. "For a moment I thought the blower on my furnace had broken," he recalled. "Then I realized what was happening. I've been through a California earthquake, and the shaking sensation in this one was far more frightening."

Thought Furnace Had Burst.

Thinking the furnace had exploded, Richard C. Hoppers ran to the basement of his home at 4014 Connecticut street. When the trembling continued, he went to the front lawn and found that neighbors on both sides on the street also had rushed out to learn what was happening.

The four-family apartment at 5131 Palm street was the scene of confusion typical of that in buildings occupied by several families.

"We were so excited no one really knows just what did happen," said one of the residents, O. R. Parks, sales manager of a monument company. "Everything shook and rattled. A couple of small pictures fell from the brads on which they were hung. We all ran around the building like crazy, and people from all the apartments were out in the hall. We didn't think to go outdoors.

"Mrs. John Nauman ran to the basement in the belief something was wrong with her steam heating boiler. Her daughter had been asleep; she stuck her head out in the hall, and wanted to know what was wrong, too."

Mrs. H. T. Koch, in another apartment of this building, was at breakfast. "The place shook pretty badly," she recalled, "but I don't know just what happened. I got so frightened that I jumped up from my chair and ran out to a neighbor's. My husband stayed to time the shake. It lasted about a minute, he said."

Congressman's Version.

Congressman John J. Cochran, on the way to his office, had stopped for breakfast at a downtown hotel. "I thought there was some kind of an engine starting up in the basement, rumbling," was the way he described the effect. "I looked up and saw a couple of waitresses looking around, and all the furniture was quivering."

William F. Schmidt, 4512 Ashland avenue, was surprised when a reporter asked him about the earthquake. "I don't know anything about it," he said. "I got home from work at 7 o'clock this morning and was sound asleep."

He called his wife. "Oh! so that's what it was," she exclaimed. "I thought at first it was the garbage truck going through the alley, but then I realized they wouldn't be here today. It nearly shook me out of bed. The whole house shook and all the windows in an empty house next door rattled till they nearly caved in."

Frank C. Hunt, who was outside his house at 34 Magnolia drive, Ladue, said he could not feel the quake, but noticed the quivering of buildings and heard a crackling sound from guttering. Frank Hunt Jr., who was reading in the dining room, felt the room shake, saw the chandelier swing, and hastened to shut off the furnace, but stopped when he saw the whole house was moving.

The younger Hunt's next thought, because of the heavy rumble with which the shock began, was of blasting at Rock Hill quarry, two miles away. "That sometimes shakes the house," he remarked, "but nothing like this."

The Hunts found tiny fissures in the mortar of the foundation of their new home after the quake. Neighbors on all sides were running out doors.

A man residing on a large hilltop between Kirkwood and Valley Park, near some railroad tracks, related that his entire house shook, but that he at first thought the cause was the vibration of a passing oil-burning locomotive. A train was going by at the time, but the rumbling continued after it had gone.

"The windows rattled, and the radiator covers made a terrific fuss," related Mrs. John S. Cooke, 3800 Lafayette avenue. "I looked out to see if one of those huge trucks was grinding past. There was no truck. It really was an earthquake. I spent months in Southern California last year without one earthquake."

Many Unusual Incidents.

A number of unusual incidents were reported. One of them was related to the Post-Dispatch by H. A. Woodworth, 412 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, who was talking by telephone to R. M. Westover of Alton when the shock occurred. At the same moment, he said, Westover exclaimed, "There's an earthquake here!"

A housewife in University City reported that her first impulse was to suspect some of the household equipment and to call her husband, who was sleeping, to examine it. She didn't have to call him, however, for the quake knocked the bedroom door ajar and a pet dog ran through the opening and jumped into bed with its master.

One woman made a frightened telephone call to her husband in which she explained, "The house is shaking and so am I."

STARK NURSERY EMPLOYES GIVE GOVERNOR A HORSE

Thanksgiving Presentation Helps Him Celebrate 53rd Birthday, Eighth Wedding Anniversary.

LOUISIANA, Mo., Nov. 23 (AP).—Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, who came here to celebrate Thanksgiving, his birthday and his wedding anniversary today, was given a two-year-old filly as a present by employes of the Stark Bros. Nursery, of which he was general manager before his inauguration.

Although the white-faced sorrell has not been broken to saddle, Stark said he will ride it.

Mrs. Stark and the Governor's sister, Mrs. J. B. Unsell, attended the presentation ceremonies.

Stark, who proclaimed Nov. 23 as Thanksgiving in Missouri, is observing his fifty-third birthday and the eighth anniversary of his marriage. He had dinner at the home of his mother, Mrs. Clarence Stark.

Frank G. Karrick Dies at 60.

Frank G. Karrick, a retired lumber dealer, was found dead yesterday, apparently of natural causes, in his room at the York Hotel, where he had resided four years. He was 60 years old.

Board Minutes Show He Held It Merely Customary for Clerk to Send Executions to Sheriff.

City Counselor Edgar H. Wayman told the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, in a report last Thursday that under the law the Circuit Clerk was not directed to see that executions reached the Sheriff, but that it was customary for him to do so, it is shown in minutes of the board's meeting. The report was in connection with the city's demand on Circuit Clerk H. Sam Priest for $10,084 lost through failure to collect some of the McKinley Plaza condemnation benefit judgments.

Wayman's report to the board was made in response to an inquiry by Comptroller Louis Nolte last July 15, requesting an investigation of the failure of the city's appeal to the St. Louis Court of Appeals from a Circuit Court order quashing the judgments.

The board, without formal vote, instructed Wayman to write an inquiry to Priest and report on the reply, Deputy Comptroller Charles L. Cunningham told a Post-Dispatch reporter. The same day, however, Wayman made demand on Priest and his surety for reimbursement of the loss, saying he acted at the direction of the board, which is composed of Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, Nolte and William L. Mason, president of the Board of Aldermen.

Wayman's first reply to Nolte's inquiry was written July 18, when he admitted that Wayman's subordinates in the condemnation division chose the wrong form of legal remedy by making the appeal from the denial of a new trial rather than from the quashing order.

The appeal was taken, not in the belief that it would be successful, but to exhaust all means as a preparation for possible suit against Priest, Wayman wrote.

He added the opinion that the Circuit Court was right in quashing the judgments because of expiration of a limitation period, but asserted that the executions were requested of the Circuit Clerk in ample time. Priest has denied the time was sufficient.

Nolte said to a reporter: "The situation is up to the lawyers; it's not my quarrel." Mayor Dickmann declined to comment.

Priest and his surety received notice from Wayman yesterday that the city would file suit to recover the money.

Mason said yesterday the controversy looked to him like a "close question" as to who was at fault and said he would not favor filing suit against Priest without hearing both sides.

COTTON BELT TRUSTEE SEEKS ORDER TO SPEND $2,087,754

Counsel for Berryman Henwood, trustee of the Cotton Belt Railroad, filed an application yesterday with United States District Judge Charles B. Davis for permission to spend $2,087,754 for additions and betterments in 1940. The Court set Dec. 15 for a hearing.

The application includes $243,089 for the purchase of steel rails, which previously was authorized by Judge Davis. The rest of the money will go for repairs and improvements throughout the system.

DRIVER KILLED WHEN AUTO HITS TRAIN IN FOG

Two Woman Passengers Injured, One Seriously, in Accident on East Side Crossing.

Morris Davis, 58 years old, of East St. Louis, was killed and a woman and a girl were injured last night, when an automobile driven by Davis ran into a train at a crossing in the 3400 block of Louisiana boulevard, East St. Louis. A railroad switchman said he tried to flag down the car, which he said approached at a high rate of speed.

Miss Margaret Owen, 418 North Eighteenth street, East St. Louis, suffered a fractured skull and lacerations. Dolores Vonderheide, 15, Red Bud, Ill., suffered cuts and lacerations. Both are at St. Mary's Hospital. Davis, who lived at 3239 Gross avenue, died instantly of skull and internal injuries.

The switchman, Charles Jones, said the train, of the St. Louis & Belleville Electric Railway, was moving toward the south.

The automobile, approaching from the east, came so quickly he had to jump out of the way, Jones said. There was a heavy fog at the time. The crossing does not have safety signals. The machine struck the fourteenth car in back of the engine.

Neither Miss Owen nor the girl was able to immediately make a statement to police. The body of Davis, a retired owner of a shoe store and repair shop, was taken to Kurrus Mortuary, 2525 State street. An inquest will be held.

4 Autos Collide, Man Killed in One-Handed Driver's Car.

Harvey Lipp, 50-year-old farmer of Malta, Ill., was killed last midnight when the westbound automobile in which he was riding sideswiped an eastbound truck, hit an automobile following and spun around to crash backwards into a transport truck driven off the highway to avoid the accident. It happened on a curve on U. S. Highway 66 at Stanton, Mo., 57 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Drivers of the other three vehicles were uninjured. Lipp was riding in a car driven by Ernest Taylor, Esmond, Ill., accompanied by Mrs. Taylor, their son, Donald, and Miss Emma Lipp, his sister. They escaped serious injury.

Coroner T. P. Shaffer of Franklin County, who conducted an inquest today at St. Clair, said Taylor had lost his left hand 18 years ago. Lipp, riding in the back seat, died of fractures of the neck and skull. There was a verdict of accident. Malta and Esmond are in De Kalb County in Northern Illinois. The Lipps and the Taylors were on their way to Newburg, Mo., to visit relatives.

Goal Exceeded in Charity Drive.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 23 (AP).—St. Joseph's annual community chest drive went over the top yesterday with a total of $138,836 in pledges reported. The goal was $138,210. Seventeen agencies are supported by the community chest.

DICKMANN ASKS FOR IDEAS ON ENDING SMOKE NUISANCE

Invites Engineers Council to Study Problem Again, After Tucker Urges Sane Solution, Without Hysteria.

The Joint Engineering Council of St. Louis, which aided in preparing the city's smoke ordinance, was asked by Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann yesterday to make a study of accomplishments under the ordinance and to make additional suggestions toward solution of the smoke problem.

The request for the survey was made at the suggestion of Smoke Commissioner Raymond S. Tucker, who, in a letter to the Mayor, said any study of the situation "should be upon sound engineering principles, rather than the result of hysteria." He added that the council should be asked for recommendations as a means to a "sane approach" the solution of the smoke problem.

The council is composed of representatives of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Society of Chemical Engineers and the Engineers' Club of St. Louis. C. P. Potter is president of the council.

Another Pall Over City.

A heavy smoke pall hung over downtown St. Louis this morning, reducing visibility at times to less than three blocks. At Lambert-St. Louis Field, visibility was reduced to a mile and a half by smoke and ground fog.

In his letter to Mayor Dickmann, Tucker said: "I have devoted considerable thought to the unjust criticism to which you are being subjected on account of the fact that our division has not eliminated the smoke in the City of St. Louis in the two-year period of its existence."

Reviewing the activities of his office, Tucker said its accomplishments included improvement in the quality of fuel shipped into St. Louis, reduction of the acid and fly ash content of the air, and supervision of thousands of installations of mechanical fuel-burning equipment, boilers and furnaces.

Tucker said he had data to prove that smoke from railroads, apartment houses, commercial buildings and industrial plants had been materially reduced in the two years. He asserted that the requirement for fuel washing was a preliminary step toward the processing of Illinois coal.

Action on Smokeless Fuel.

The Smoke Commissioner said he repeatedly had declared that the smoke problem in St. Louis never would be solve until a smokeless fuel could be developed from Illinois coal at a fair price. As a step in this direction, he said, the city administration had persuaded the State of Illinois to appropriate $190,000 for a research program to develop such fuel.

Tucker's office has received a letter from Benedict Farrar, an architect, complaining about the density of smoke emitted from Jefferson Memorial in Forest Park.

"It is my feeling that if we are going to get rid of smoke in St. Louis," Farrar wrote, "the example must be set first by public buildings. These buildings should not emit smoke at any time. The citizen passing a public building and seeing smoke coming from its chimney does not bother to consider whether it is a legal emission of smoke.

"He merely makes a mental note that such a school, fire-engine house, or what not, is belching smoke and no doubt disobeying the law. Whether he be right or wrong in his conclusion makes no difference as to his future attitude toward trying to stop his own heating plant from creating smoke; there has been a bad example set and the damage is done."

DIVING DUCKS DYING OF UNKNOWN CAUSE NEAR ILLINOIS RIVER

Birds Fall Out of Flocks Near Chillicothe and Rome.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 23.—Without sign of wounds or disease many black jack and blue bills both divspecies of duck, are falling dead out of flocks along the back waters of the Illinois near Chillicothe and Rome, causing concern in local hunting circles.

John Martin, Federal game management agent, picked up some of the fallen birds and has shipped them to the State Natural History Research Laboratory at Havana for examination.

Martin said that in the hasty inspection he gave several of the birds, there was no visible reason for their death. All were healthy in appearance. One's stomach contained a few shotgun pellets, but Martin explained that lead poisoning would have caused the birds to remain on the water, dying slowly.

Since all the victims are of the diving variety, Martin thinks a factory by-product has poisoned the bed of the river, and the birds feeding on it have succumbed within a few hours, the poison evidently taking effect suddenly.

KENNEDY URGES THANKFULNESS

LONDON, Nov. 23 (AP).—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, addressing "fellow exiles" at the annual Thanksgiving meeting of the American Society, said today:

"The war we all dreaded has come. All we can do is face the future with fortitude, with faith and with thankfulness for the blessings we still enjoy."

CITY CELEBRATES THANKSGIVING IN CHURCHES, HOMES

Business Activity Generally Suspended, Public Offices Closed—Football Schedules Upset.

Thanksgiving was observed here today as a general holiday, marked by cessation of business activity, special church services and family gatherings.

Those who live outside the smoke belt had additional cause for giving thanks, since a bright sun was obscured by the St. Louis pall.

Virtually all business houses joined the banks, exchanges, courts and public offices in closing. Carrier delivery of mail was suspended and branch postoffices were closed but receiving windows at the Main Postoffice, Eighteenth and Market street, remained open. Two downtown mail collections were scheduled between 2:10 p. m. and 9 p. m. and two residential district collections between 12:35 p. m. and 9:40 p. m.

There were masses throughout the morning at the New St. Louis Cathedral. Some churches held union services. After celebration of holy communio at Christ Church Cathedral, a special Thanksgiving service was held. A general invitation was extended to members of all denominations to attend a special service at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, 1220 North Eleventh street. Children of the parish placed gifts for the poor on the altar.

The twelfth annual dinner for young men away from their homes was held at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., 1528 Locust street. It was sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., more than 30 churches and the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

Turkey was served at city institutions, including the Workhouse and House of Detention. The allied Rotary Clubs of St. Louis County provided 12 turkeys for the 165 patients at St. Louis County Hospital.

Due to the observance of Thanksgiving day on the fourth Thursday instead of the last Thursday of the month, local football schedules were changed. St. Louis University, traditional Thanksgiving day opponent of Washington University, had an idle team, while the Missouri School of Mines met Washington University at Francis Field. The Washington-St. Louis University game will be played Dec. 2.

FRATERNITY OFFERS SALLY RAND A JOB AS HOUSE MOTHER

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 23 (AP). —The Greeks had a word for fan dancer Sally Rand today.

Authorities at the University of Richmond ruled that all fraternities must have house mothers so the local chapter of Kappa Sigma, aware of the dancer's recent money troubles, dispatched this telegram:

"Sorry to hear of your financial bust
But come on down and live with us.
We have to get a new house mother,
And we'd rather have you than any other."

EARLENE COMSTOCK

GIRL, 2, SCALDED IN FALL INTO PAN OF HOT WATER

Father Had Prepared It in Order to Pick Goose for Thanksgiving Dinner.

Earlene, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Comstock, 1118 Grattan street, was scalded at 8:35 o'clock last night when she fell into a large pan of hot water which her father had prepared for use in picking a goose for their Thanksgiving dinner.

The child, standing with her back to the pan which was on the kitchen floor, tripped over the rim.

She was taken to City Hospital.

Sewer District Incorporation.

Incorporation of the South Lackland Sanitary Sewer District, comprising about 300 acres south of the St. John's-Overland Sewer District in St. Louis County, was granted by Circuit Judge John A. Witthaus at Clayton yesterday. An election will be held on issuance of $34,500 bonds, to supplement a WPA grant of $103,500 for sewer construction.

RECORD OF ERRORS IN PROSECUTIONS IN MILLER'S TERM

Supreme Court Reversal on Tom Young Burglary Charge Is Most Recent Instance.

SOME DEFENDANTS FREED OUTRIGHT

List of Demurrers Sustained to Accusations Drawn by Circuit Attorney's Office.

Reversal by the Missouri Supreme Court yesterday of the conviction of Tom Young of St. Louis, who had been sentenced to 25 years in prison for burglary and larceny, was one of several cases in which the courts have held that the office of Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller had erred in drawing up indictments or informations.

On several previous occasions, the Supreme Court has taken similar action, reversing convictions and ordering new trials because of defective informations. In other cases, defendants in criminal cases have been freed outright by trial courts for the same reason.

In the Young case, the Supreme Court ordered a new trial after holding that the information charging Young with first degree burglary, failed to allege any of the elements necessary to constitute the offense. The information charged that Young broke into a house by "forciby entering the front door," but failed to charge a forcible breaking of the door or lock, picking of the lock or any of the other acts defined by law as constituting first degree burglary.

Mitnick, Krebs Cases.

Two other cases in which the Supreme Court reversed convictions obtained by Miller's office were those of Samuel A. Mitnick, high-pressure stock salesman, who was sentenced to five years in prison in 1934 for selling securities without a Missouri license, and Richard Krebs, sentenced to life imprisonment in 1933 as a habitual criminal after he was found guilty on a robbery charge.

The court found that the information against Mitnick was defective in that it merely stated he was a dealer in securities without stating the facts from which this conclusion was drawn. The case was remanded for a new trial, at which a second jury also found Mitnick guilty, but fixed his punishment at a $5000 fine. This trial took place last March, five years after the first one.

An error in the manner in which the habitual criminal charge was set forth caused the court to reverse the conviction of Krebs. A second trial in 1936 again resulted in a conviction and reversal, this time on another ground; and last year Krebs was permitted by Miller's office to plead guilty to a lesser charge, that of assault with intent to rob, and was sentenced to two years in prison.

Bondsman Went Free.

Another case in which the Supreme Court found error in charges drawn up by the Circuit Attorney's office was that of Leo Biedermann, professional bondsman charged with perjury in qualifying as a juror for the trial of another professional bondsman. The court held last year that the indictment, returned by a grand jury under Miller's guidance, was technically defective in that it did not state that Bierdermann's oath as a juror was administered by a deputy circuit clerk who had legal authority to perform that function. The Court freed Biedermann on a demurrer filed in his behalf.

On other occasions the trial courts have freed defendants on similar findings of error in the manner in which the charges were presented. The most recent instance of this type occurred last week, when Sidney Wolf, a metal dealer, charged with grand larceny, was freed on a directed verdict after Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin sustained a demurrer by defense counsel based on a contention that the State should have charged larceny by trick instead of grand larceny.

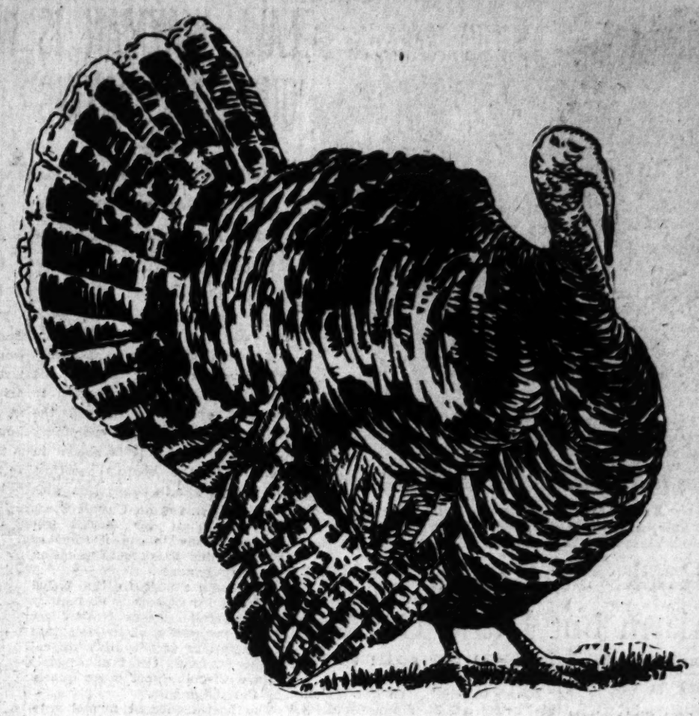
Simon de Bardas of Chicago, who formerly was a real estate promoter in St. Louis, was freed of an embezzlement charge in similar fashion in 1937. Circuit Judge John W. Joynt held that the information was defective and directed a verdict of acquittal.

Stanley Cytron Case.

A two-way blunder by Miller's office put an end three years ago to the prosecution of Stanley Cytron, vice-president of the defunct Cytron Mortgage Co., which collapsed here in 1929 with a loss of about $2,000,000 to investors.

An indictment charging Cytron with obtaining money by false pretenses, returned by a grand jury under Miller's guidance, was thrown out by the Circuit Court in 1933 on a demurrer contending that the indictment was "vague, uncertain, indefinite, not specific or adequate and sets out matters of opinion and conclusions."

The indictment was replaced in 1934 by an information drawn up by Miller's office, but the Supreme Court ruled that the office had waited nearly four months too long in filing the information and that further prosecution was barred under the statute of limitations.



TRADITIONALLY AMERICAN

...and regardless of price the official champion of the All-American dinner

WHY ECONOMY? Because the Turkey is famous for "going a long way." Today a feast . . . tonight sliced cold on biscuits . . . tomorrow hash and soup on Sunday. That's champion performance . . . because you get your money's worth of good eating.

LIKEWISE STUDEBAKER CHAMPION is the All-American Economy Champion among America's Motor Cars. And if you don't believe it, ask any of the thousands of owners who will drive up to the country for Thanksgiving Day at Grandmother's House; ask them what kind of an economy record they made. We'll wager they'll say . . . "we're off to Grandma's House every Sunday, not just Thanksgiving, because it costs so little to get there in a Champion."

Yes, STUDEBAKER CHAMPION follows American traditions of practicing thrift, economy and enjoying the better things of life. Most Americans insist that it's the best way to live.

ECONOMY that tops all records. 27¼ miles per gallon . . . proved under AAA supervision on the famed 600-mile-a-day test run made last June from San Francisco to New York and back.

PRICES BEGIN AT $660 FOR A CHAMPION COUPE DELIVERED AT FACTORY, SOUTH BEND

ENDURANCE a companion quality. Proved under AAA supervision in trial tests conducted on the Indianapolis speedway. Two Champions gave equal dramatic performance when they traveled 15,000 miles each in 14,511 consecutive minutes.

TAVERN SINGER WITH TWO WIVES GETS IN TROUBLE

Held on Complaint of First, Eugene La Rue Kraemer Says She Was Married When He Wed Her.

Eugene La Rue Kraemer, 35-year-old entertainer at a Market street tavern, was arrested last midnight on complaint of his first wife, Virginia Kraemer, 4063 Lincoln avenue, who told police she had learned he had married again without divorcing her.

The second wife, Thelma Reeder Kraemer, 26, a department store saleswoman, was called in and told the officers she married the tavern singer Nov. 4 at George R. Hart's St. Louis County marriage mill. She has been living with Kraemer at 5895 Clemens avenue, she said, unaware that he was not divorced from the first Mrs. Kraemer.

Kraemer admitted the bigamous marriage, police said. But he added that the first Mrs. Kraemer, who is 24, was the wife of Carl Heath of Toledo, O., when he married her in June, 1936. Mrs. Kraemer said she divorced Heath here Aug. 16, 1936, and went through a second marriage ceremony with Kraemer the following day.

Because of the complications both Kraemer and Mrs. Virginia Kraemer were held at Central District. Before she was locked up Mrs. Virginia Kraemer was treated for alcoholism at City Hospital.

24-Ounce Baby Lives.

LUBBOCK, Tex., Nov. 23 (AP).—A 24-ounce infant that doctors believed could not live more than two hours, remained alive without the aid of an incubator 24 hours after her birth. The baby was one of twins born to Mrs. E. L. Garland yesterday. Her sister weighed four pounds eight ounces.

DETROIT, Nov. 23 (AP).—Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, disclosed last night he had canceled a world tour because the Department of State has invalidated his passport in view of the European war.

He did not seem disappointed. "I shall be glad of the chance to return to my ranch home in California for a long vacation," he said.

MAYOR SEEKS CREATION OF FIRE MARSHAL POST

District Fire Chief Would Serve Under Plan, Avoiding Extra Expense.

Creation of the official position of City Fire Marshal will be sought by Mayor Dickmann, who announced yesterday that he would ask the City Counselor's office to draft an ordinance for submission to the Board of Aldermen. Under the proposed ordinance the Fire Marshal would be one of the district fire chiefs and no additional expense would be incurred by the city, the Mayor said.

Firemen have the right now to inspect buildings but lack the power to enforce their recommendations for elimination of fire hazards. Under the proposed ordinance the Fire Marshal could compel owners to carry out all suggestions made by the department.

The announcement followed a conference of Mayor Dickmann, Malcolm S. Blake of Boston, field engineer for the National Fire Protection Association, Director of Public Safety Chadsey, Fire Chief Cornoyer and R. M. Bristol, who is an official of the Board of Public Service.

Headlines from across the water will tell you why. ★ The wool in these overcoats was clipped from the mountain sheep of Scotland. As hardy a breed as ever locked horns with a snowstorm. Their rugged protection against cold now becomes yours—in fabrics that are exact counterparts of the finest cheviots loomed in England. Custom tailors call them "double-cloths"—because both face and back are so tightly woven, for added wearing quality. And although these grand overcoats are warm as a sun lamp, they rest on your shoulders as lightly as a puff of smoke. CIO FOREMEN DROP DEMANDS MADE IN CHRYSLER STRIKE

Auto Union, However, Refuses to Guarantee New Unit Will Not Raise Bargaining Issue Again.

DETROIT, Nov. 23 (AP).—Organization of a CIO foremen's union complicated the dispute between Chrysler Corporation and the CIO United Automobile Workers today, despite the new union's withdrawal of its demand for a collective bargaining conference.

Discussion of wage schedules was sidetracked for the second day as representatives of the company and UAW-CIO met in a brief holiday conference to thresh out the problms raised by the new union.

The local union of the CIO United Foremen and Supervisors formed at the Dodge truck plant withdrew its bargaining demand yesterday, after the corporation charged its effect would be to place the CIO "on both sides of the conference table" in settling employe grievances.

Clarence Bolds, president of the union, said the corporation charge was a "complete misstatement."

"Shop supervisory personnel has not represented the management in collective bargaining in Chrysler and other large industrial plants for 15 years or more," Bolds said.

R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW-CIO, said the company had asked the UAW-CIO to pledge that the foremen would not renew their request for collective bargaining at any time in the future.

"My position was that the UAW-CIO could not order the foremen's union to take any action of any kind," Thomas said. He contended that the withdrawal of the union's demand had removed any reason for delaying wage discussions "unless the corporation wishes to stall further on those issues."

Until the question of the foremen's union arose, the sole issue blocking a settlement of the seven-week old dispute was that of wages. The UAW-CIO has asked for a general increase of 5 cents an hour, after originally asking for 10 cents.

HOLLYWOOD MERCHANT SHOT TO DEATH BY MEN IN AUTO

Police Say Murder of Former New Yorker Apparently Was Work of Gangsters.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 23 (AP).—George Schachter, 48 years old, a clothing dealer, was shot to death in front of his home last night in what police said was apparently a gang killing.

Two men in a sedan without license plates drew up beside Schachter's automobile and shot him three times.

Mrs. Schachter told police she saw her husband drive up and a moment later heard three explosions like an automobile backfiring. Then she noticed her husband's car rolling downhill. It stopped against a curb.

Two motorists told of seeing an automobile without lights speed away. Schachter came here from New York two years ago.

BELGIANS ACCUSED OF FAKING FITS TO AVOID ARMY SERVICE

20 Got Instructions From Two Nurses and Hospital Worker, Government Says.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 23 (AP).—Twenty Belgians literally threw fits to escape service in the army, the Government charged today as it held two nurses and a hospital attendant accused of collecting $30 to $150 from each man for instruction in simulating the symptoms of epilepsy.

SENATORS PREDICT NEW TRADE PACT FIGHT

Question of Extending Reciprocal Program to Come Before Next Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—Senator Capper (Rep.) Kansas, joined some of his Republican and Democratic colleagues today in predicting a "real battle" next session of Congress over extension of the administration's reciprocal trade program.

He contended that farm groups were opposed to the trade agreements on the ground that they had favored industry at the expense of agriculture.

Capper upheld the United Mine Workers (CIO) and the National Coal Association in expressing opposition to a trade agreement cutting the excise tax on crude and fuel oil from Venezuela. He added that he thought the whole reciprocal tariff policy was "very unfair."

The authority to negotiate the agreements expires next June. Some members of both major parties have announced they would seek to terminate the program entirely or to obtain for Congress a veto power over pacts negotiated by the State Department.

Meanwhile, it was said that trade talks between the United States and Argentina were progressing smoothly, despite a circular by the exchange control office in Buenos Aires saying it was necessary that the country's imports "shall continue to be supplied from their normal sources, avoiding unnecessary deviations to other sources or countries."

Argentina's trade with Great Britain and France has been hampered by the European war, authorities said, and dealings with Germany virtually have stopped. This condition has caused a sharp upturn in Argentine trade with the United States.

PARENTS PIN MEDAL ON TRAINMAN WHO SAVED THEIR BABY

Bronze Disk Given to Fireman Had Been Made to Their Order.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 23 (AP).—One day last month, the engine crew of a heavy speeding freight train saw a baby standing between the rails in their path.

Engineer Obed Clark of Indianapolis applied the brakes. Fireman Hartford Lewis, also of Indianapolis, climbed through the cab window and dashed along the boiler-walk to the pilot just in time to push 20-months-old Frank Console over on his stomach between the rails.

After the train had stopped. the fireman extricated the uninjured boy and returned him to his mother.

Yesterday, when Lewis came to town—this time firing a passenger train—he swung from the cab to face smiling Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Console, parents of young Frank.

"That's him," cried the woman.

Her husband, a WPA worker, pumped Lewis' hand and then solemnly pinned a medal to the fireman's breast. About the size of a half dollar, the bronze disk bore the words "In Appreciation." Console had it made to his order by a Springfield jeweler.

POLICE TO MAKE CHECK-UP ON AUTO DRIVERS' LICENSES

Those Lacking Stat Permits to Be Arrested; Warning to Be Givn on Renewals.

All policemen will be notifid tomorrow, on orders from Chief John H. Glassco, to be on the alert for automobile operators who have not renewed their State drivers' licenses or who have failed to get these permits at all. Those with licenses which have expired will be warned to renew them and those without licenses will be arrested.

The Chief said that the Prosecuting Attorney had informed him that extremely slow progress was being made in renewing the State licenses, which are issued for two-year periods, at 25 cents. A reminder was added that St. Louis motorists must have city as well as State licenses.

BILLY ROSE OFFERS PACIFIC FAIR MILLION IF HE IS BOSS

Show Man Says He Wants to Re-Open Exposition on Constructive Lines.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—Billy Rose, show man, wants to run a world's fair all by himself.

He telegraphed Mayor Rossi of San Francisco he is willing to put $1,000,000 in the San Francisco Golden Gate Exposition for 1940 if he could run it "without interference along certain constructive lines."

The destiny of the Pacific Coast fair is undecided. Yesterday promoters said they had failed to raise enough money to assure a second season. Rose's Aquacade grossed $2,400,000 at the New York World's Fair last summer.

HOPE FADES FOR MISSING BOY

Child, 4, Wandered From Oregon Home Last Sunday.

End First Leg of Return From Good Will Flight to Rio de Janeiro.

NATAL, Brazil, Nov. 23 (AP).—Seven United States Army bombers flying home from a good will flight to Brazil landed here today after a flight from Rio de Janeiro.

Major-General Delos Emmons, in command of the flight, planned to take off tomorrow for Maracaibo, Venezuela, on the second leg. Ten Brazilian army officers, members of a mission which will study United States defense methods, are passengers.

ENGINEER IS KILLED; TRAIN HITS HANDCAR

Fireman Suffers Burns—Passengers Chiefly Students on Way Home.

NORTH CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 23 (AP).—The engineer of a Chicago & Northwestern passenger train, loaded with Northwestern University students, homeward bound for the holidays, was killed and several persons were shaken yesterday when the locomotive and first four cars left the track near here.

Harry Anderson, the engineer, was killed when he was pinned between the engine and tender. The fireman, Stanley Mack, Elmhurst, was severely burned when the engine rolled into a ditch. No passengers were injured seriously, the railway reported.

The eight-car train was about half an hour out of Chicago on its run to Kenosha, Wis., Milwaukee and Menominee, Mich.

Railroad investigators found the wreckage of a handcar ground into the roadbed but said they could not find anyone who had left the machine on the tracks.

Chief Jacob Novak of the North Chicago police said a section worker told him his crew saw the train coming, but didn't have time to pull the gasoline-powered handcar from the tracks.

BURGLAR FAILS TO MAKE DEAL WITH KANSAS CITY JUDGE

Court Refuses to Make Sentences Concurrent Saying It Would Be Illegal.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 23 (AP).—Acting as his own attorney, W. W. White of Los Angeles failed in an attemptto "make a deal" with Circuit Judge Brown Harris on two remaining charges after a jury had sentenced him to two years and six months in prison for burglary.

"Can I start serving the sentence now?" White asked Judge Harris. "There are two other burglary charges pending against you," the Judge said.

"I'll plead guilty to those and you can have the sentences run concurrently with the jury sentence," White suggested.

Judge Harris said: "No; concurrent sentences have been abolished in Missouri."

"Ahe you sure?" White asked surprised. "I'm positive," the Court replied. "You may have had some experience with the law, Mr. White, but you muffed this one."

ARTIST TONY SARG BANKRUPT

He Lists Assets of $6562, Liabilities of $36,259.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—Tony Sarg, noted artist, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing assets of $6562 against liabilities of $36,259.

Among the liabilities were $25,000 on a lease affecting a Greenwich Village Building, $3500 in back wages to an employe, and $1750 due Air Cruisers, Inc., Rutherford, N. J., for "balloon" work. Shares in various Tong Sarg enterprises were listed as of no value.

VALIDITY OF FEDERAL WAGE ACT UPHELD

U. S. District Judge Says Results of Low Pay Are of Interest to Community.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (AP).—The United States District Court decided here yesterday that the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 was constitutional. It said Congress had the power to prescribe minimum wages for the protection of the health and good order of society.

Ruling in a case involving Montgomery Ward & Co., Judge William H. Holly declared "certainly it cannot be maintained now that Congress may not, in the interests of the general welfare of the country, prohibit the shipment in interstate commerce of the products of under paid and sweated labor."

Alex Elson, regional attorney for the Wage and Hour Administration here, said Judge Holly's decision was the first broad interpretation of the law made by the Federal courts.

It arose from the refusal of Montgomery Ward to produce certain records desired by the Wage and Hour Administration in an investigation of conditions at the company's Kansas City branch.

Company attorneys defended their stand on the grounds the act was unconstitutional and that to compel production of the documents called for would constitute unreasonable search and seizure.

"Regulations of wages and hours of labor is a proper exercise of police power," Judge Holly said in a memorandum.

"Employer and employe do not stand on a plane of equality. Wages, especially of unskilled employes, tend toward the lowest point at which the laborer can subsist.

"The resulting conditions are of interest not only to the wage earner but the whole community. The slums of our great cities are, in large part, the fruits of low wages. Vice, crime and disease breed in these districts and spread throughout the community.

"Certainly, if it is within the power of the State to regulate the commission that may be paid to insurance agents, it is not an unwarranted exercise of the police power to prescribe minimum wages for the protection of the health and good order of society.

"I am of the opinion that Congress had the power to require the keeping of records and that the (Wage and Hour) Administrator may, at his pleasure, require the production of such records."

SUGGESTION ON CONTRABAND

Bar Association Would Exempt Provisions for Civilians.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—An American Bar Association Committee suggested yesterday that foodstuffs for civilians be exempted from contraband lists and that vessels loaded only with food supplies be immune from attack and seizure.

The plan was suggested in a majority report by the association's committee on law protecting Americans and their property in foreign countries and on the high seas.

MAN ENDS LIFE IN FIGHT WITH POLICE AT HOTEL

Topeka Officers Use Gas After Being Called by Salesman Who Says He Was Abducted.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 23 (AP).—A man trapped in a hotel room here shot himself in the head last night after a pistol fight with a detective and died early today. Police had been called by Floyd C. Wadden, 30-year-old automobile salesman of Davenport, Ia., who said the man kidnaped him in Davenport Tuesday morning.

Papers in the dead man's pockets indicated he was registered with the Iowa Employment Service at Marshalltown, Ia., as A. L. Morford, a butcher.

Wadden said he slipped away after the man took a sixth floor room at the hotel late yesterday and called police. Detective F. L. Thompson and other officers rushed to the corridor outside the room.

Man Fired at Detective.

Thompson called the man to the door. The man fired, striking the detective's pistol. Thompson fired back, hitting him in the hand. All the time he kept talking to the man, trying to get him into surrender.

"I've got too much hanging over me," the man said. "I'll never drop this gun."

Thompson kept up his arguments, but after 40 minutes the man slammed the door and dared the officers to come after him.

Thompson ordered tear gas shot into the room. A minute later the officers heard a shot. They found the man lying on the floor wounded. He died in a hospital soon after midnight. His fingerprints were sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Wadden Ordered Held.

Police ordered Wadden held on a vagrancy charge "to check some discrepancies in his story."

Wedden said he was abducted when delivering a car.

The man forced him to drive 540 miles through Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, he said, holding up filling stations at Monroe and Des Moines, Ia. Tuesday.

Wedden said they spent Tuesday night in Indianola, Ia., where his captor tied his hands with a necktie when they went to bed. They went through Kansas City yesterday.

While they were on the road, the abductor kept a pistol between his legs and "never gave me a chance to grab it," Wadden related.

The dead man registered at the hotel as "Al Moore" and Wadden as "Ralph Barnes" of Chicago. He said the man ordered him to use a false name.

INSURANCE FIRM'S SUIT ON NOTE FOR $3500 FAILS

A verdict in favor of Leo John Bayer, defendant in a suit to collect a promissory note for $3500 brought by W. H. Markham & Co., an insurance firm, was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood's court. Bayer, 3853 Cleveland avenue, is president of a blower manufacturing company.

Testimony showed Bayer borrowed the money Nov. 26, 1935, from G. A. Gantz & Co., a brokerage firm in bankruptcy, which later indorsed the note to Markham & Co. Bayer testified he repaid the money when due to the brokerage concern. The Markham concern contended it failed to receive its money and sued Bayer on the ground he did not pay the right firm.

GIRL PINS FLOWER ON GRANDFATHER; HE GIVES HER $1000

Anna Louise Bangert, 15, Rewarded for Courteous Gesture at Salem, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SALEM, Mo., Nov. 23. — Anna Louise Bangert, 15 years old, daughter of J. L. Bangert, assistant postmaster of Salem, received $1000 for a single flower.

At services at Salem Baptist Church Sunday young people were given flowers and asked to pin them on someone in the congregation who had done something to influence their lives. Anna Louise pinned her flower on her grandfather, Louis Bangert, retired Frisco engineer. Obviously moved, he exclaimed he wouldn't take $1000 for this flower or for the girl who gave it to him and said he was going to pay her $1000 for it. Anna Louise received a $1000 check from her grandfather.

BILL FOR TRAFFIC SIGNAL NEAR SCHOOL CONSIDERED

Hearing Held By Aldermen's Committee; Principal Urges Re-installation of Light.

A bill to re-install an electric traffic signal removed last May from the intersection of Michigan and Lafayette avenues, a block south of Hodgen School, was taken under advisement by the Traffic Committee of the Board of Aldermen, following a public hearing yesterday.

Robert E. Strickler, principal of the school, said that in the 15 years the signal was at the corner pupils were trained to use that crossing in coming to the building from the south. About 40 per cent of the school's attendance comes from south of Lafayette avenue, he said. Members of the school's parent-teacher organization supported his assertion that removal of the sign made the crossing less safe for children.

Joseph J. Feuchter, city traffic engineer, told the committee the boulevard stop sign now at the intersection is more conducive to safety than the electric signal, as motorists frequently speed up trying to pass a signal on the amber, while with a boulevard stop those who do not stop at least slow to five miles an hour or less.

PRESIDENT CELEBRATES WITH DINNER FOR 350

Keeps Early Thanksgiving on Visit to Warm Springs, Ga.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt and 24 states, including Georgia, celebrated Thanksgiving today, a week ahead of the usual last Thursday in November.

The main event of the day, a Thanksgiving dinner, was reserved for the evening.

For it, seats were arranged for 350 in the dining hall of the Warm Springs Foundation. Ten of the patients, chosen by lot, will have places at the table of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt. The choice spot beside the chief executive is reserved for little Ann Smithers, 6 years old, from Frankfort, Ky., who has been at the institution five months.

The after-dinner program will include a short, informal talk by Roosevelt, a play with incidental music depicting life at the foundation as the patients see it, and musical selections by a quartet from Tuskegee Institute, Negro school in Alabama.

No visitors are expected today at the "Little White House" on Pine Mountain, but the Georgia congressional delegation will call Saturday.

Soon after his arrival here yesterday, the President took a swim in the Foundation's pool. Later, behind the wheel of his own car, he drove about the grounds, then went over to his farm a short distance away to see what damage had been done by drouth.

2500 CLOTHING WORKERS EAT TURKEY AS GUESTS OF FIRM

12,000 Shares of Stock Distributed Under Richman Brothers' "Good Business" Plan.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23 (AP). — Twenty-five hundred clothing workers laid aside their cutting tools and left their sewing machines yesterday to dine together on 2000 pounds of turkey that was "on the employer."

The best slice of "turkey" was the distribution of 12,000 shares of stock, worth more than $450,000 at present market value, to the 2500 employes who purchased it for a total of about $360,000.

That is "good business," said Frank C. Lewman, president of Richman Brothers' Co., manufacturers, who turn out a million men's suits each year.

The stock distribution was the third under a four-year plan ending at Thanksgiving next year. After employes received this year's issue of stock, they gathered in the dining room of the company's plant for a traditional Thanksgiving dinner.

At the head of one table sat the bachelor "daddy" of the Richman family, Nathan G. Richman, chairman of the board, who is 71 years old.

ROOSEVELT SPLITS U. S. EVEN ON HOLIDAY, SAYS BRIDGES

People Who Argue About President All Year Should Have One Day of Peace, He Declares.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, said today that while Americans "should be a happy family together" on Thanksgiving, they are divided by President Roosevelt's proclamation moving the observance up a week.

Urging adoption of his resolution fixing the last Thursday in November as the official, country-wide Thanksgiving, Bridges said in a statement:

"A people who argue throughout the year about Franklin Delano Roosevelt should be permitted one day of peace and serenity.

"What we are now apparently confronted with is an observance of Thanksgiving by the pro-Roosevelt people on one day and by the anti-Roosevelt people on another one. A day on which we should be a happy family together will only accentuate our division."

1200-MILE MERCY FLIGHT INTO ARCTIC FOR SICK PRIEST

Missionary in Repulse Bay Region Suffering From Gangrene After Freezing Hands.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (AP). — A French missionary, suffering from gangrene as a result of freezing, is the object today of a 1200-mile mercy flight from Southern Manitoba to Repulse Bay, on the Arctic Circle.

Capt. Bill Catton of Canadian Airways planned to carry the Priest, the Rev. Joseph Alain Bullaird of Le Barboux, France, back 300 miles south to the hospital at Chesterfield Inlet. If it is not equipped to care for him, he will be taken to Winnipeg.

Word of the Priest's plight was received by the Government radio station here a week ago, and daily reports have been made by the Arctic mission.

When his condition became grave, church officials here arranged for the flight from Lac du Bonnet, Manitoba.

CITY MILK CONTRACT LOWERS COST 2 TO 3 CENTS A GALLON

Beatrice Creamery Co. Gets Three-Month Award on Bid of 22.87 Cents.

The price of milk for city institutions for the next quarterly period fell off 2 to 3 cents a gallon as compared with the previous three-month period, it was learned today when the Beatrice Creamery Co., 2119 Delmar boulevard, was awarded the contract to supply most of the city's institutions with milk at 22.87 cents a gallon. The city uses approximately 108,000 gallons of milk each quarter period.

The Lange Milk Co., 3539 Easton avenue, secured the contract to supply the City Sanitarium with a low bid of 22.8 cents a gallon. The old prices for all institutions varied between 24.87 and 25.75 cents a gallon, depending on point of delivery. Six dairies bid yesterday, with the Pevely Dairy submitting the highest bid of 32 cents a gallon.

WOMAN DIES WHEN TESTED FOR NEW ICE-PACK TREATMENT

One of First on Pacific Coast to Undergo Test Succumbs in Refrigeration Room.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23 (AP).—Mrs. Rufus Nugent, 30 years old, died in the refrigeration chamber of a hospital yesterday when undergoing a test to determine if her heart could withstand the five-day treatment recently developed in the fight against cancer.

Mrs. Nugent was one of the first patients on the Pacific Coast to undergo the icepack treatment, through which the body temperature is reduced more than eight degrees below normal.

MISSOURI GARMENT PLANT GETS $500,000 TO EXPAND

Official of Oberman Company Says Better Business Justifies Improvements.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 23 (AP).—The Oberman Manufacturing Co. here, makers of men's trousers, negotiated a loan of $500,000 yesterday from the Central Missouri Trust Co. of Jefferson City, secured by a chattel mortgage on all equipment and personal property of Springfield and Jefferson City plants, and a deed of trust on real estate of both plants, with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. of St. Louis as trustee.

The principal is to be retired in quarterly payments of $12,500 in 10 years.

At Jefferson City Theodore Oberman, an official of the company, said the loan was to finance expansion of the firm's properties here and in the capital city. "Business is getting better," Oberman said, "and we feel conditions justify the expansion and improvements program."

MOST SUGGESTIONS FOLLOWED ON SCHOOL LUNCHROOMS

Chairman of Board's Auditing Committee Says Recommendations Have Been Put in Effect.

Most of the recommendations regarding public school lunchrooms made by the Strayer survey report and the report of auditors who made a special study for the Board of Education now have been put into effect, it was announced last night by Edward A. Ferrenbach, chairman of the board's Auditing and Supplies Committee.

Ferrenbach conferred on the lunchrooms yesterday with Supply Commissioner James J. Lee, whose department has control of them. Lee informed him that bookkeeping methods recommended by the auditors had been instituted and that other improvements in operation had been made.

Among them are a semi-annual physical examination of employes, daily inspections for cleanliness, purchase of vegetables under Government inspection and purchase of bread on a bid basis.

EXPRESS HIGHWAY CONGESTED AFTER MINOR AUTO ACCIDENT

Car, in Collision With Another, Knocks Down 25-Foot Section of Fence.

Traffic on the express highway became congested shortly after 7 o'clock last night after the automobile of Bounds E. Hamilton, 7221 El Moro avenue, Richmond Heights, knocked down a 25-foot section of the wire fence on the south side of the thoroughfare west of Hampton avenue.

Hamilton lost control of his machine after it had collided with an automobile driven by Miss Clarice Tolle, 3054 Washington avenue. Neither suffered serious injury.

Automobiles driven by Miss Martha Pfeiffer, 1516 Tamm avenue, and John B. Bogdanor, 7344 Ethel avenue, Richmonds Heights, were damaged when struck by another machine driven by a woman who left the scene.

PARKED TRUCK KNOCKS BOY FROM SIDE OF STREET CAR

Companion Says Wallace Boswell Jr., 13, Didn't Hear His Warning to Hold Close.

Wallace Boswell Jr., 13 years old, 3512 North Broadway, suffered a skull injury at 10:15 o'clock last night when he was knocked from the side of a Bellefontaine street car in front of 2819 North Fourteenth street. He was taken to City Hospital.

Lee Hutchins, 14, 3612 North Eleventh street, told police that he and Boswell and two other boys were riding on the side of the street car when he observed that a parked truck would leave scant room for clearance as they passed. Boswell, he said, failed to hear his shouted warning to hold close to the side of the car and was knocked off by the truck.

C. L. M'DONALD JR. MACHINERY COMPANY OFFICER, DIVORCED

Wife Gets $1200 Alimony and Custody of Son; Charged General Indignities.

Mrs. Margaret McDonald, 3508 Victor street, obtained a divorce yesterday in Circuit Judge John W. Joynt's court from Charles L. McDonald Jr., secretary of the McDonald Machinery Co., 1531 North Broadway. She charged general indignities.

She was awarded $1200 gross alimony, custody of a minor son and $35 a month for his maintenance. They were married Aug. 4, 1922, and separated Oct. 3. McDonald filed a general denial but did not contest the suit.

CONFIDENCE MAN HELD AFTER 3-YEAR SEARCH

Veteran Passer of Bad Checks, Admits Swindling Want-ad Advertisers.

William H. Mosher, confidence man sought by police for three years for passing bogus checks in payment for articles advertised for sale in newspaper want ads, was arrested yesterday and admitted, detectives said, that he had been working the scheme "once or twice a week, whenever I needed funds."

Mosher was his usual affable and soft-spoken self when arrested at the Main Postoffice by detectives who had been assigned to get him after receiving complaints from 75 victims. He estimated he had obtained about $200 by selling the articles—shotguns, cameras, musical instruments—to pawn shops. Police, however, placed his earnings at closer to $2000.

A man of many aliases, he is a veteran at passing bad checks, having served four penitentiary sentences for that offense since 1921.

Two sentences, in 1921 and 1926, were for four years each, a third, in 1930, was for three years, and the fourth, in 1932, was for two years. He is 57 years old.

CHARGES DIES FALSELY LINKED HIM WITH NAZIS

H. A. Jung, Chicago, Asserts His Vigilant Federation Has Been Maligned.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (AP).—Harry A. Jung, honorary general manager of the American Vigilant Intelligence Federation, with headquarters here, made public today letters to Representative Dies (Dem.), Texas, denying that he or the federation had any connection with Nazi organizations. Dies is chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Jung said in the first of his letters: "Ours is still an American organization, even if it has been maligned by certain Congressmen, Communists and other 'experts.'"

In this letter, dated Oct. 25, Jung complained that his name had been unfairly mentioned in connection with letters made public Oct. 21 by the committee and said by Dies to have shown that Nazi propagandists were interested in promoting religious and racial prejudice in this country.

The letters were identified by Rhea Whitley, the committee's counsel, as correspondence between Oscar C. Pfaus, writing from Hamburg, Germany, as director of a Nazi propaganda agency called Ficte Bund, and Dr. Anna Bogenholm Sloane of New York. In one of them, as made public by the committee, Dr. Sloane spoke of plans to start a paper called the National American Patriot and expressed the desire that 12 persons she listed would be "connected with it in the hope that this would link together all patriotic movements in the United States for the purpose of recovering our country from control of the Jews." Among the 12 she gave Jung's name.

To this, Jung replied to Dies that his federation never had any correspondence with Dr. Sloane, "yet here is the intimation released by you placing an entirely unjustifiable inference at our door, that we are anti-racialists. This transaction was eminently unfair."

In his second letter, dated Nov. 20, Jung again said he never had corresponded with Pfaus or "anyone else about going on any publication board for an alleged Nazi magazine."

He added that Dies had persisted in "deliberate mendacity" in the matter.

20,000 Carolers Sought.

NEW MOTION PICTURE PROGRAMS OF THE WEEK

Loew's Brings 'Another Thin Man' to Town, Four Bills Change Tomorrow

'Disputed Passage' and 'On Your Toes' Set for Ambassador — Douglas - Blondell Comedy, Horace Heidt on Stage at the Fox.

TWO detective story comedies, a hospital drama, a musical satire and melodramas of the big city and the backwoods are among the action picture features arriving at the first-run theaters today and tomorrow. The stage show unit for the Fox Theater tomorrow is Horace Heidt and his Musical Knights.

"Another Thin Man," with which Loew's Theater celebrates Thanksgiving today, is third in the series of mystery comedies in which William Powell plays Nick Charles, ex-San Francisco detective, and Myrna Loy his wife, Nora. They have an addition to the family in this case, William Anthony Poulson as Nick Jr. Selected from 40 babies because he had a "bored" look, young Poulson enters on his screen career at the age of eight months.

The screenplay, developed by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett from a Dashiell Hammett story, sends Nick and his family to New York on a pleasure trip. They no sooner have arrived than a financier living on Long Island, Aubrey Smith, summons the detective to his home and tells him of threats of murder. Ere the night is over, the financier is killed and the detective finds himself plunged into another case.

Powell and Miss Loy, who are appearing together for the eighth time on the screen, are accompanied by Smith, Virginia Grey, Otto Kruger, Ruth Hussey, Nat Pendleton and Marjorie Main. Three new players from the Broadway stage are introduced—Don Costello, Sheldon Leonard and Harry Bellaver, all in "heavy" roles. The dog, Asta, also is a member of the Charles menage. W. S. Van Dyke II, who brought forth the previous "Thin Man" films, directed.

Virginia Weidler is featured in Loew's other picture, "Bad Little Angel." Based on Margaret Turnbull's novel, "Looking After Sandy," the screenplay relates the adventures of an orphan after she has run away from the orphanage. Gene Reynolds, Henry Hull and Ian Hunter are other players.

• • •

Douglas and Blondell Teamed in Fox Feature

ANOTHER popular team, Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell, is starred in the Fox comedy for tomorrow, "The Amazing Mr. Williams." In this Douglas is a city detective entrusted with taking convicted men to the state penitentiary. He is engaged to Miss Blondell, the Mayor's secretary, who wants him to give up detective work. His duties and her efforts to discourage him in his career bring about many comedy situations. Supporting players are Clarence Kolb, Ruth Donnelly, Edward S. Brophy and Donald MacBride.

Horace Heidt, whose "Pot O' Gold" radio program on Tuesday nights is getting to be a sensation of the season, will present a full hour program for the Fox stage show. Featured with the band are Larry Cotton, tenor soloist; Fred Lowery, whistler; Frankie Carle, pianist-composer of "Sunrise Serenade," the Four Le Ahn Sisters, who are really sisters, Art Carney, mimic, the Drane Sisters, violinists, and others.

Heidt's broadcast at 7:30 o'clock next Tuesday will take place in Assembly Hall No. 3 at the Auditorium.

Drama and Musical At the Ambassador

LLOYD C. DOUGLAS' best selling novel, "Disputed Passage," is adapted to the screen in the Ambassador's main feature for tomorrow. The three main characters are a famous neurological surgeon, Akim Tamiroff, his prize pupil and assistant, John Howard, and an American girl reared in China, Dorothy Lamour.

Howard goes to study at a medical school where Tamiroff is a professor, does his best despite the professor's cynical and insulting manner and finally becomes an assistant. But when he meets and falls in love with Miss Lamour, the romance arouses Tamiroff's hostility. The climax comes in China, with all three principals involved.

"On Your Toes," the supporting feature at the Ambassador, is taken from the stage musical by Richard Rodgers, Lorenz Hart and George Abbott, which was seen in Municipal Opera last summer. The story is that of a vaudeville hoofer who turns to classical ballet.

Eddie Albert, of "Brother Rat," has the role that was Lee Dixon's at the opera last summer. Zorina, Norwegian ballet star who was in "The Goldwyn Follies," is the dancer who appears opposite him. Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, James Gleason and Queenie Smith are in the cast. Zorina's husband, George Balanchine, staged the dances.

Weaver Bros. and Elviry On Screen at St. Louis

THE Weaver Bros. and Elviry, Ozark comedians who have been seen in person in St. Louis many times as well as on the screen, head the cast of "Jeepers Creepers," at the St. Louis Theater tomorrow. Leon Weaver is Mayor and Justice of Peace at Pineville, locale of the story, Frank is an expert knife-thrower and Elviry the principal spinster of the community.

Efforts of a capitalist to take away coal-bearing land from the Weavers causes the trouble. Scenery of the San Jacinto Mountains in California doubles for the Ozarks. Elviry's daughter, Loretta, 22 years old, is one of the minor players.

Two of the Dead End Kids, Billy Halop and Huntz Hall, are in a street gang with the Little Tough Guys in "Call a Messenger," second St. Louis feature. All go to work for a telegraph company and help to foil various kinds of crime. Mary Carlisle, Larry Crabbe and El Brendel in the cast.

The Missouri Theater will change its program tomorrow to two features now current at other theaters.

Long Lincoln Speech

Abraham Lincoln's famous rebuttal speech, executed by star Raymond Massey in the Lincoln-Douglas debate sequences, in the new film, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," ran 9 minutes and 58 seconds, thus establishing a record for unbroken film dialogue.

Aaron Copland At Work Scoring 'Of Mice and Men'

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.

AARON COPLAND, prize-winning American composer, yesterday began scoring the Hal Roach production of John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men," which is in the editing stage at the Culver City plant. Copland was brought from New York for the assignment by Producer-Director Lewis Milestone, after he heard the striking music Copland wrote for the documentary film, "The City."

The composer's "Dance Symphony" won the $5000 RCA Victor award in 1929, and in 1938, he was commissioned by the Columbia Broadcasting System to write "Music for Radio," which has been played by the Columbia Symphony many times. He is also the first composer to win the Guggenheim Award for music.

Copland's best-known concert music is "El Salon Mejico," chosen by the Boston Symphony to commemorate its fiftieth anniversary. For the theater, he wrote incidental music for Orson Welles' "Five Kings" and the Group Theater's "The Quiet City." His other works include such diverse music as the "Outdoor Overture," the ballet, "Billy the Kid," and "Second Hurricane," an opera to be played and sung by school children.

For "Of Mice and Men," Copland promises a non-conventional film score. Instead of the neutral mood music so often employed in the Hollywood studios, he is composing themes that will reflect the rugged, native American nature of Steinbeck's story of migratory workers.

Copland's "El Salon Mejico" is to have its first St. Louis performances by the St. Louis Symphony tomorrow afternoon and Saturday night.

Fireproof Faces For 'Rebecca' Cast

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 23.

FOR the dramatic scene in "Rebecca" when Manderley castle is destroyed by fire, Monte Westmore, Selznick International studio makeup expert, had to invent a fireproof makeup.

The scene called for realism, yet Director Alfred Hitchcock insisted that danger be kept at a minimum. Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine, who play the leading parts, and Judith Anderson, one of the featured players, were in this fire scene.

The costumes worn by the actors were fire-proofed. Realism, with most of the danger eliminated, was achieved through the invention of Westmore. The makeup, a secret blend of chemicals, was cool and heat-resistant, making it possible for the players to move through the flames.

"Rebecca," from the best-selling novel of Daphne du Maurier, is being produced by David O. Selznick. Among the featured players are George Sanders, Nigel Bruce, C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Denny and Gladys Cooper.

A Great Day Passes.

THANKSGIVING DAY, as an excuse for going gridiron goofy, is a complete blackout. That happened when President Roosevelt set the date a week earlier than the traditional final Thursday of November. Few important games are scheduled for our new official Turkey Day. Here in St. Louis our "annual" varsity game has been changed to Dec. 2.

Thus the day which once universally recorded the climax and the close of collegiate football activity has passed into the limbo of forgotten greatness. All a guy can do now on this historic occasion is to fill himself with turkey—or sump'n'—and try to sleep it off.

• • •

IT WAS A GREAT DAY, under the old idea, for raccoon coats, chrysanthemums, cold feet and hip pocket inflation. But perhaps the world will be better for the new order of things. For, next to New Year's eve, Thanksgiving once was the greatest producer of alumni hangovers on the calendar.

And, while working up ye ancient Thanksgiving football enthusiasm had its enticements, it also had its drawback, with no day off to take up the slack.

• • •

In these times almost any Saturday will supply us with more and better football games than could have been found in an entire season, during the supremacy of the Big Three, Harvard, Yale and Princeton.

• • •

Tea'd Up Beforehand.

ON THE BACK of tickets to the Missouri-Oklahoma game was a warning that it was prohibited to take containers of alcoholic liquid into the stadium.

There were thousands of violations; however, most of the containers walked in, and did not have to be carried.

• • •

Tightening Up.

THE FOOTBALL handicapper has considerably tightened up his "plus" offerings for Saturday's big games. The highest figure allowed on the "no tie" card is six and one-half points and the smallest one-half point.

• • •

The Southern California-Notre Dame game dominates local interest with the Trojans favorites conceding the Irish three and one-half points.

For this game there probably will be almost as many, perhaps more, St. Louisans attending as went to Columbia, Mo., for the Oklahoma battle.

Michigan, Yale, Penn and Navy are each conceded six and one-half points by Ohio State, Harv-

Safety Is Feature Of Game

The alertness of two University City High linemen, Bleich and Mersman, who crashed through the forward wall of the Hyde Park team to tackle Tom Meehan behind his own goal line, was the turning point of the intercity game played at U. City's field this morning. The score was tied, 13-all, when Bleich and Mersman trapped Meehan and the two points that resulted from this safety gave U. City a lead which it later turned into a winning advantage. A later touchdown brought the final score to 21 to 13.

Hyde Park was first to score, taking the ball from the opening kickoff straight down and over the local team's goal line. A series of passes led to this score, which was made by Fullback Marks, who was on U. City's five-yard line when he received Meehan's 16-yard forward pass. The kick was blocked.

Rifkin supplied the scoring punch for University City a few minutes later. In this case, Blumberg's return of the kickoff to University City's 45-yard line and a 26-yard pass, Bleich to Blumberg, were the highlights in the goalward drive. Rifkin went over from the eight-yard line.

Harvey's kick after touchdown was good and Unviersity City led, 7 to 6.

A strenuously-fought second period was scoreless but the fireworks were plentiful in the third and fourth.

Midway in the third, Blumberg was on the receiving end of a 27-yard pass that netted a U. City touchdown. This time, Harvey's kick was blocked.

Meehan, the boy who later was to play the role of goat, was the hero for a moment when he ran 37 yards for a touchdown and the tying points, early in the fourth period.

It was immediately after this that Blumberg, receiving Chicago's kickoff, returned the ball 63 yards to Hyde Park's 21-yard line. The local team was stopped on the one-yard line in this drive, and then Meehan, trying to out-guess his foes who were expecting a punt, attempted to run with the ball from behind his own goal and was tackled. That put U. City in the lead.

Taking the ball at the 45-yard line, University City again went to forward passes. Two long passes put the ball on the Chicago five-yard line, from where Rifkin went over. Again the kick was blocked, but University City needed no more points to win, 21 to 13.

Late in the game Mersman of the Indians and L. Kalinsky of Hyde Park were banished for throwing punches at each other.

Highlights in U. City's Triumph Over Chicago

Ralph Blumberg, University City's right halfback, is shown smashing through the Hyde Park (Chicago) school's line late in the fourth quarter of today's game. Flowers (44) of U. City is running interference and is faced by Kalisky (43) of Hyde Park who, a few minutes later, engaged Mersman of U. City in a fight.

East St. Louis Wins And Ties for Title; Belleville Scoreless

A crowd of 8500 jammed Parson's Field at East St. Louis this morning to see Wirt Downing's Flyers move into a tie with Alton for the Southwestern Illinois Conference High School football championship with a 24-to-0 decision over Belleville.

It was the first time that Belleville had failed to score a touchdown since 1937 and East St. Louis made the victory so decisive that even the second team scored on the Maroons.

East St. Louis was held scoreless in the first period, but as the quarter ended the Flyers had the ball on Belleville's 10-yard line. On the first play in the second quarter, Jim Hight raced around left end for the touchdown.

Four minutes later, East St. Louis started a passing attack which moved the ball from the Flyers' 34-yard line to Belleville's 28-yard mark. A lateral pass series from Bob Downs to Jack Morton to Artie Dowat picked up the 28 yards, but Dowat dribbled the ball as he crossed the goal line. However, he fell upon it behind the line for East St. Louis' second touchdown.

After a scoreless third period, East St. Louis moved 31 yards to another touchdown. Nick Gassawy made 16 yards on three straight line plunges and then Hight ran around right end for the score.

With the second team in, the Flyers started another march for their last touchdown. Following an intercepted pass, Jim Delaney went around right end for eight yards and the touchdown.

The East Side second team had the ball on Belleville's six-yard line as the game ended.

The Maroons did not get inside East St. Louis' 30-yard line at any time during the contest.

Alton and East St. Louis finished tied with six victories and one tie apiece. Belleville was the defending champion.

Smith, Illinois Star, Will Play

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 23 (AP).—Jimmy Smith, sophomore halfback injured in the Ohio State game, has rejoined the squad and yesterday took over left half duties as Illinois engaged in a spirited offensive dummy scrimmage for the Chicago game Saturday.

Coach Robert Zuppke said he planned to start Smith and Don Elting at the half back positions and would use seniors—John Kirschke and Ralph Bennett—at the quarterback and fullback positions, respectively.

C. B. C. Player Runs 83 Yards For Touchdown

WALSH STADIUM, Nov. 23.—C. B. C., the Preparatory League football champion, was tied with St. Louis U. High, 7-all, at half time here this afternoon in the final league game of the season.

Red Grant intercepted a pass and ran 83 yards for Christian Brothers' score in the second period.

The crowd was estimated at 5500.

About 5500 persons attended.

C. B. C., with three victories in as many games, has clinched the prep league title. Victory for the Junior Billikens would put them a half-game behind the leaders.

FIRST QUARTER.

The Junior Billikens took the opening kickoff and drove 70 yards for a touchdown in the first three minutes of the game.

Powers passed 15 yards to Kruckemeyer for a first down on the C. B. C. 46-yard line. Then Powers ran to the 30-yard mark and after two passes failed, Holloran spun off tackle and crossed the goal line standing up. Holloran plunged through the middle for the extra point. Score: St. Louis U. High 7, C. B. C. 0.

A punt exchange gave the Junior Billikens the ball on their 45-yard line. A line plunge gained a yard and then Quirk passed 10 yards in the flat to Kruckemeyer, who ran to the C. B. C. 15-yard line.

After a pass and a line plunge failed, Quirk went around left end for a seven-yard gain. Then C. B. C. took the ball on its 11-yard line. C. B. C. made its first down as the first quarter ended. Score: St. Louis U. High 7, C. B. C. 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Grant of C. B. C. attempted to pass to McGillick, who knocked the ball high into the air. Barry caught it and the Billikens had the ball on the C. B. C. 25-yard line a minute after the quarter opened.

Three line plays gained about six yards and then Holloran fumbled and recovered, C. B. C. taking the ball on downs on its 28-yard mark.

Shields, racing around left end, gave the Hi-Fointers a first down on the 45-yard line. After Engelbreit and Grant collaborated for a first down on the St. Louis 45-yard mark, Powers intercepted Engelbreit's pass on the St. Louis 35-yard line and ran to the C. B. C. 46-yard mark.

St. Louis lost seven yards on two plays and Quirk punted to the C. B. C. 17-yard line.

One play later Grant cut through right tackle and raced 83 yards for a touchdown. Engelbreit's kick tied the score.

St. Louis U. High 7, C. B. C. 7.

There was no further scoring and the first half ended; St. Louis U. High 7, C. B. C. 7.

GETS 2 TOUCHDOWNS IN SECOND PERIOD; JACK WARNER HURT

By James M. Gould

FRANCIS FIELD, Nov. 23.—For one period, the Washington U. Bears found the going very difficult against the Missouri Miners, in the Thanksgiving day football game between the two schools here this afternoon. But, in the second quarter the Bears came out of their coma and scored three times to lead at half time by a score of 18 to 0.

The first score came on a 33-yard run by Schwenk and a series of passes featuring an attack which started on the Bears' 25-yard line, was climaxed by one of 18 yards by Schwenk to Bill Seibert, who ran over.

With less than two minutes remaining in the second quarter, Schwenk intercepted a Miner pass and ran 23 yards for the third touchdown. Schwenk, with two placements and a pass, failed on all three tries for the extra point.

Jack Warner, the Bears' best kicker and one of their very valuable backs, suffered a leg injury in the second quarter and was out of the remainder of the game. The extent of his injury was not immediately determined but it was considered so serious that Washington U. coaches said he might not be able to play in the game against St. Louis University, Dec. 2.

At the start of play, only about 3500 persons were present, but the attendance had increased to an estimated 6000 before the end of the first half.

The game:

FIRST QUARTER.

Washington kicked off and Taylor ran back to his own 23-yard line. Taylor then made it a first down on two plays good for 13 yards. The next two tries at the Washington line gained only a yard, but Taylor picked up eight yards at center. Rogers kicked to the Bears' 18-yard mark.

Schwenk slipped on the first play and failed to gain and the Bears were penalized 15 yards to their own four-yard line for holding. Warner kicked to Hancock at midfield and the run-back went to the Bears' 40-yard mark.

Nelson and Allen stopped a play and Taylor's pass was incomplete. Ladd then broke through for nine yards. Ladd's dash at the right side of the Washington line brought another first down for the Miners on the 27-yard mark.

Cook replaced Cantanzaro at fullback for the Miners. The Miners were stopped on one play, then Cook's pass was intercepted by Nelson. The Bears drew a five-yard penalty for offside.

Warner quick-kicked to the Miners' 29-yard line. Here the Miners' offense bogged down and Rogers kicked to Lutz, who was thrown on the Bears' 42-yard line.

Warner then went around the Miners' right end for 18 yards. Sugg and Laux went into the Bears' line.

Schwenk was thrown for a five-yard loss by Bruce. Schwenk's pass to Lutz was grounded. Another long pass, accurate enough, was muffed by Warner in the clear. Warner then kicked into the end zone and the Miners took over on their 20-yard line.

Two plays by Taylor were good for four yards and Rogers kicked to Lutz, who fumbled, Bruce recovering for the Miners on the Bears' 48-yard mark.

A couple of running plays and a pass failed to gain and Rogers kicked to Lutz, who again fumbled, Bruce again recovering for the Miners, this time on Washington's 24-yard line as the quarter ended. Score: Washington 0, Missouri Mines 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Two Miner plays, a plunge and a pass, were good for five yards and Cook's goal-line pass was knocked down by Warner. A fourth-down plunge failed and the Bears took over on their 20-yard line. Warner made it a first down for the Bears with a 14-yard dash around the Miners' right end. Nelson followed this up with a 10-yard smash but the Bears were penalized five yards because the backfield was in motion.

Schwenk made 12 yards off tackle.

Nelson went through center for five yards and another first down at the Bears' 47-yard line.

Warner was hurt and was replaced by Frost.

Three plays gained nine yards for the Bears and then Washington gambled and Nelson made it a first down.

Frost got away around the Miners' right end for nine yards and Schwenk then put the Bears in front with a zig-zag run for 33 yards and a touchdown. Schwenk's try for point was wide and the score was: Washington 6, Missouri Mines 0.

Taylor ran back the Washington kickoff to his 37-yard mark. Two plays, including an end run by Taylor, netted the Miners eight yards, but a third attempt was stopped and Rogers kicked to Frost, who fell on Washington's nine-yard mark. Pfeiffer then kicked out of bounds at Washington's 48-yard line.

Two line plays failed, but Taylor's pass to Bruce was good for 11 yards and a first down. The Taylor to Bruce combination put over another pass good for 14 yards and a first down on the Bears' 23-yard line.

Another pass attempted by the same two was incomplete and so was Taylor's heave intended for Ladd. Harris then intercepted one of Taylor's tosses and the Bears had the ball on their 25-yard line.

Cantanzaro was hurt as Schwenk picked up eight yards. Corneau replaced him.

On a "sleeper pass," Schwenk to Lutz, the Bears gained 36 yards and went into Miner territory.

A pass, Schwenk to Lindow, put the ball on the Miners' 18-yard line and another pass, Schwenk to Seibert, was good for a second touchdown. Schwenk's extra point pass was incomplete. Score: Washington 12, Missouri Mines 0.

The Washington kickoff was run back by the Miners to their 25-yard line.

Turley, Hayes, Jones and Theiling went into the Washington lineup.

After one Miner play, Taylor tried a pass to Nevins but it was intercepted by Schwenk, who ran 23 yards for the Bears' third touchdown. Schwenk's kick for the extra point was wide and the score was: Washington 18, Missouri Miners 0.

A pass was good for a Miner first down as the period ended with the score: Washington 18, Missouri Miners 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

The Washington lineup starting the period was much the same as at the end of the second period, with Gould in at center and Barnett at guard.

Washington's kick-off was run back almost to mid-field by Bruce. Ladd was stopped by Gould and Barnett. A plunge at the line was good almost for a first down and another plunge made it—on the Bears' 48-yard line. The Miners then were stopped for two plays but interference was allowed on a Miner pass, which made it a first down on the Washington 3-yard line.

On third down, a long pass by Cook was incomplete and, on fourth, a pass, Cook to Bruce, was complete, but failed of the distance and the Bears took over on their 22-yard line.

After the Washington kickoff the Miners made eight yards on three plays an dthen Rogers kicked to Ady, who ran the ball back 30 yards to midfield. Three Washington plays gained only four yards and Ady kicked to the Miners' 14-yard mark.

A five-yard penalty for backfield in motion set the Miners back to their nine-yard line.

An offside penalty gave the Miners a first down but they then were forced to kick and Ady ran it back to the Miners' 30-yard line as the quarter ended with the score: Washington 25, Missouri Mines 0.

Hudson and Howard Injured As Flyers Defeat Omaha, 5 to 3

Center Out Of Lineup For Month

Bone Broken in Bill's Hand —Defense Man Suffers Torn Ligament in Knee in Rough Game.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 23. — Bill Hudson, star center, will be lost to the Flyers for about a month as a result of a broken bone in his hand which he suffered while the St. Louis hockey club was defeating Omaha, baby member of the American Hockey Association, 5 to 3, here last night.

And to make matters a bit worse, Jack Howard, defense man, suffered a torn ligament in a knee and is not expected to be able to play against Kansas City tomorrow night.

So the Flyers' recent acquisition of Pudge MacKenzie should be helpful, now that Jimmy Arnott has been handed his unconditional release.

The Knights took a 2 to 1 lead in the first period, but the Flyers got all steam up and counted three times in the second session and added their final markers toward the close of the contest.

Hap Harnott tied the score for St. Louis, nine minutes after the start of the second period when he took a pass from Carbol and whipped the disc past Hill.

Then, 30 seconds later, Kendall, aided by Herbert and Mike Miller, put the Flyers out in front.

Joe Matte came through with a goal within another minute, helped by Miller and Hergert. And that was really the ball game, although the Flyers added another for good measure with about a minute and a half of play remaining in the final session. It was Matte who scored that one, too, assisted by Kendall.

Fido Purpur and Eddie Bruneteau got into a fist fight toward the close of the game, and for some little time nobody appeared anxious to stop them, so the boys went through with the battle. Neither was hurt, and all they did was to get a five-minute rest for themselves.

Schaefers Lead In Bowling Match

The Eddie Schaefers gained a lead of 105 pins over the Terminals at St. Charles in the first half of a six-game home and home bowling match. The Schaefers totaled 2763 to 2658. The final three games will be bowled at Feuser's Del-Mar alleys, Saturday, at 8 p. m.

Earl Reardon and Perle Ray were tops for the Schaefers, bowling 619 and 608, respectively. Ike Kohlenhoefer with 577, was best for the losers.

Only 21 Players Considered For ABC All-Star Positions

Speaking of ABC's, Here Are the Real Letter Men

FOLLOWING is the All-Star football team of the ABC League as selected by coaches of the various teams and of men who officiated in their games:

Player.	School.	Position.
Paul Browne	Western M. A.	End
Carl Messinger	John Burroughs	Tackle
Bernard Ross	John Burroughs	Guard
George Dietz	Principia	Center
Gene Bernardin	Principia	Guard
Roland Ernst	Country Day	Tackle
Fred Lehman	Principia	End
King Carter	Country Day	Quarter
Carl Lawton	Country Day	Halfback
Bob Smith	John Burroughs	Halfback
Lewis Bass	Western M. A.	Fullback

HONORABLE MENTION: Ends—Imboden, Western, and MacObourn, Burroughs. Tackles—Gray Boylston, Country Day, and Renard, Burroughs. Guard—Sandlten, Western. Centers—Pilkington, Burroughs; Myers, Western, and Dave Stewart, Country Day. Backs—Jack Hellyer, Principia, and Dick Slack, Western.

Starting at the lower left-hand corner and going up around to the right the players are: King Carter, Roland Ernst and Carl Lawton, Country Day; Lewis Bass and Paul Browne, Western Military Academy; George Dietz, Gene Bernardin and Fred Lehman, Principia; Bernard Ross, Carl Messinger and Bob Smith, John Burroughs.

By Harold Tuthill

Nine of the 11 places on the "ABC" League "all-star" football team of the "A" division, selected by the four coaches for the Post-Dispatch, were evenly divided between three schools—Principia Academy, Country Day and John Burroughs. The remaining places went to Western Military Academy.

Although there are only four schools in the circuit, the coaches' selections were concentrated and only 21 players were mentioned.

Paul Browne of Western and John Lehman of Principia Academy were selected for the ends, Carl Messinger of Burroughs and Roland Ernst of Country Day, tackles; Bernard Ross of Burroughs and Gene Bernardin of Principia, guards; George Dietz of Principia, center, and King Carter and Carl Lawton of Country Day and Bob Smith of Burroughs and Lewis Bass of Western, backs.

Jack Hellyer of Principia and Dick Slack of Western, backs, missed by a narrow margin.

Slack drew his greatest competition from Teammate Bass, a Louisville (Ky.) boy, whom Coach Ed P. Droste thinks was the "outstanding defensive player and offensive blocker in the league."

Players whom the coaches thought enough of to consider, but who did not receive enough votes to make the team were, ends, Imboden and Mac Obourn, Burroughs; tackles, Gray Boylston, Country Day, and Renard, Burroughs; guard, Sandlten, Western; centers, Pilkington, Burroughs; Myers, Western, and Dave Stewart, Country Day; backs, Hellyer and Slack.

In addition to Captain Droste, the coaches who made the selections were R. P. Hughes of Country Day, Marvin Conklin of Principia Academy and George Staten of Burroughs.

Sourdoughs Meet Baranof Bears in 'Gold Bowl' Game

JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 23 (AP).

GETTING a 38-day jump on their nearest competitors, the first "Bowl" game of the present football season will be played here today.

It's the "Gold Bowl" game between the Alaska Sourdoughs and the Baranof Bears. The contest has aroused so much interest that ministers are holding their Thanksgiving services early so churchgoers can join the expected crowd of 2000.

The natives, whose only glimpse of football has been in the newsreels, were wagering on the Sourdoughs in Alaska's only Thanksgiving day game in history. Lineups included many former college players.

Two Backfields for South Dakota Game Named by Billikens

There's considerably more order and consequently less chaos today in the serious left halfback situation at St. Louis University, which was caused by injuries in the Tulsa game to Dick Weber and Mel Aussieker. Two backfields have been chosen to operate tomorrow night against the Coyotes of South Dakota U. and Coach Mueller|eile believes the best possible solution to a perplexing problem has been obtained.

The move to start Bud Burnes, the team's best passer and most experienced lefthalf, with Weber and Aussieker out, was abandoned yesterday because the split ligament in Burnes' ankle continued obstinate against treatment. So, tomorrow night, Bob Murphy will get the starting assignment pairing with Bill Foehr in a halfback role. Wally Rafalko will call signals at quarter and John Gall will open at fullback. As Alex Yokubaitis, fullback, will be on the sidelines along with Carlew, veteran end, Riley will be Gall's relief in the fullback position, the remainder of a second backfield consisting of Rensing at quarter, Roemer at right and Grenia, left-footed kicker and passer, at left half.

Brooks at Right End.

Due to the absence of Carlew, Dick Brooks will be at right end and Abernathy at left when the first whistle sounds, the rest of the line being composed of Senkavech at center, Finnegan and Quint or Gresnick at the guards and Mundt and Carl Zimmer at the tackles.

Hospital reports today carried no hope for Weber's being able to play against the Washington Bears, Dec. 2, and it was considered a 100-to-1 against Aussieker's participation in the final battle. Both Yokubaities and Carlew, however, are expected to be ready for action in that important engagement.

In tomorrow night's opening lineup, Bill Foehr will do the kicking and Gall will be the passer for the combination. In the other backfield, both kicking and passing duties will be assumed by Grenia.

Yesterday's practice was of the lightest character and one last workout, scheduled for this morning, was still lighter.

The Billikens, at full strength, figured not to have much trouble with the Coyotes but a crippled St. Louis team—and it is all of that—may have difficulty with the visitors.

Time to Change.

ISN'T IT ABOUT TIME for a movement to put more foot and less hand into football? Before the forward pass the game was better balanced in favor of the pedal extremity from which the sport derived its name.

Then the hand was used only to hold the ball or to stiff arm tacklers. Today the pass is an added function of the hand. It has chased the foot into the background.

They made the toe still less important when they moved the goal posts back 10 yards.

In the interest of kicking, the Rules Committee ought to restore the posts to the goal line where they belong. Accurate distance punting is wonderful to see and important in results. Kicks, not passes, gave the packed stands at Columbia the biggest thrill of the afternoon.

Still further could the situation have been enlivened had the goal posts been on the goal line. For one or more occasions a field goal would have been a reasonable try for both sides, during that afternoon, had the goal bar been on the line.

Stalled on the 20-yard line under the current rules, a field goal try compels the kicker to boot 40 yards, the ball to carry higher than 10 feet, at that distance.

With goal line posts the effort becomes a much more reasonable boot of 30 yards.

The placement or drop kick would be restored and the possibilities for scoring would be greatly enlarged. Ties would be broken and the stands get more and varied thrills as compared to the present system.

There is no argument against the posts being brought back to the line except the possibility of injury. But, the pros have the posts there. And nobody has been seriously hurt yet, by the posts.

* * *

Old Stuff.

WHILE RESTORING the foot to football, there's still another ancient idea that might be revived with benefit.

Y'ars and y'ars ago, boys, when a touchdown was made, the ball was taken out 20 yards at right angles to the goal line from the point where it was touched down. If this was 10 or 15 yards from the side lines in the end zone, the kick for point after touchdown was made a difficult angle from the 20-yard line.

The kicker had to be a real marksman to hit the target. Now they take great pride in kicking the dead center shots from a short distance and dead in front of the goal posts.

Why not have more kicking skill and less hand science to help make the game worthy of its name—FOOTball?

Back to the Primitive.

OLD TRICKS still live in football. The "Statue of Liberty" play is still good now and then, although bewhiskered with time.

We note that Washington University put over another old one, with variations, in winning from Drake at Des Moines.

This play Washington has capitalized for a touchdown four times this year although it dates back to the days when long hair, water-on-the-knee and five yards in three downs were features of the great college pastime.

The trick is a highly complex variation of the old criss-cross. This was merely a feint to circle one end of the line, with the original ball carrier handing the leather to the other halfback, who raced in the opposite direction. Sometimes the end took over the ball instead of the other halfback and reversed the direction of the attack.

Washington works the play with several other deception features. After a few steps the lead blocker (the right halfback) spins and takes the ball from its original receiver and, without interference, speeds in the opposite direction from the original thrust.

The play is supposed to suck the defense toward the feint and leave an unguarded field for the second ball carrier.

In this day and age it works, too, as Washington has proved.

Syracuse Ends Fiftieth Season With Victory

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 23 (AP).—Syracuse's fighting Orangemen came from behind today to turn back a stubborn group of Maryland Terrapins and wind up their golden jubilee football season with a 10 to 7 victory before a turkey day crowd of 5000. Syracuse scored on a field goal by McPhail and a one-yard touchdown plunge by Zimdahl. Maryland's touchdown came on a pretty 59-yard run by Murphy.

Normandy 18, Wellston 0

Frank Schwegler twice plunged across the Wellston goal line for touchdowns and Fred Aussiker ran 45 yards for another tally in supplying Normandy High with 18 points to win the game between the county schools, played at Normandy field this morning. A muddy field made it unwise to attempt any unusual, open plays but the contest was evenly fought and seemed to please the 3200 spectators. It was the first meeting of these schools since 1934. Normandy thus finished the season with three victories and six defeats. Wellston won one game, tied one and lost seven.

After Normandy had scored in each of the earlier three periods, Wellston put together a scoring threat in the final minutes of play. Normandy's fumble of a punt gave Wellston its opening and nothing but the final gun prevented a score.

What Is It, Doctor?

In the midst of football we are wondering what the December meeting of the major baseball leagues will bring forth. We predict that there will be the usual talk about moving the Browns and doing something about bringing the Yankees back to the field. Then, if tradition runs true to form, the mountain after its customary travail, will add another mouse to its rapidly increasing family.

The Browns, always a popular topic for discussion, will get their share of the limelight, but will wind up as far away from the electric lights as ever.

The Browns are a good deal like Mark Twain's ideas concerning the weather. Everybody talks about them, but nobody does anything about them.

AROUND and 'round the goldfish bowl
The fishies wind their sinuous way
To find a non-existent goal,
But where are the gulpers of yesterday?

The man on the sandbox says that the smoke shops may have been suppressed, but the smoke stacks are still doing business at the old stand.

Midwest Hockey Team Defeated

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23 (AP).—Mid-Atlantic Reserves of Philadelphia defeated Great Lakes, composed of players from Detroit, Pittsburgh and Cleveland, in the first game of the national field hockey tournament. The score was 5 to 1.

The Southeast Reserves, composed of players from the Washington area, defeated, 7 to 3, the Midwest, composed of players from Missouri, Illinois and Kansas areas.

Bleachers Collapse At Football Game

SPRING VALLEY, Ill., Nov. 23 (AP). — Bleacher stands holding some 200 spectators collapsed today during the traditional Thanksgiving day football game between Hall Township and La Salle-Peru high schools.

A half dozen persons suffered minor injuries.

The most seriously hurt was Marcene Stratton, 17 years old, La Salle-Peru student, who suffered a back injury.

The extra seats had been erected on the Hall Township athletic field to help accommodate a crowd of more than 5000. La Salle-Peru, champions of the Big Seven, won the game, 34 to 7.

Catanzaro to Hurl in Pandas' St. Louis Opener

Santo Catanzaro, veteran Italian pitcher, has been selected by Manager Charles (Gabby) Street to be his starting hurler when the St. Louis Pandas oppose Bubbles Hargraves' Cincinnati team in their first home game in the National Professional Indoor Baseball League Tuesday night at the Arena.

During the past seven years the 28-year-old Catanzaro has chalked up more than 325 victories and has lost less than 20 games, Street said.

Street made the announcement today that Santo was his choice for the opener here before his Pandas left for Cincinnati, where they will play their first game of the campaign tomorrow night. The Pandas end their road stay in Cincinnati Sunday night, having switched their scheduled Saturday night game in Chicago to later in the season. Street figured the original weekend schedule was too tough on his players, most of whom are youngsters.

Catanzaro is the oldest member of the St. Louis squad. He will serve as one of the coaches when not on the mound or in the bull pen.

Dave McDowell, Les Lees or Freddie Geldmacher will be the choice to hurl the opener in Cincinnati.

10,000 Geese Killed in One Illinois County; Only 1200 Taken All Last Year

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 23.—Satisfactory hunting conditions all over Illinois were reported today by Thomas J. Lynch, Director of Conservation, on his return from a statewide trip.

"There is a heavy population of all upland game throughout the State," Lynch said, "and, as a whole, hunters are satisfied with conditions."

In Southern Illinois there has been an abundance of rabbits and quail, while pheasants were plentiful in the central and northern zones with large quantities of quail in scattered counties in both of those sectors.

"With proper weather the take of migratory water fowl will increase," he said. "So far, the weather has been so mild that ducks and geese have not been working, and hunters have found the birds elusive, although they are present in large quantities along both the Mississippi and Illinois rivers."

Goose hunting around the Horseshoe Lake area in Alexander County has been the best in history, and to date approximately 10,000 geese have been taken in comparison with 1200 for the entire season last year, Lynch said.

Because drouth caused heavy damage to the natural feed plots on the refuge, the department, after consultation with the U. S. Biological Survey, is providing. The plan has met with the approval of hunting club members and managers in that area. All agree that if the goose population is to be conserved a feeding program is a vital necessity.

One club manager in expressing his approval of the feeding program said: "Something had to be done if we expected to keep the birds here. If there is no feed they will fly South and in th end hunters will suffer. There have been too many killed already."

Director Lynch said the department was scattering 150 bushels of corn on the refuge every other day for a flock of about 20,000 geese, which is estimated to be in the vicinity of the refuge.

"That amount of feed," he explained, "is inadequate for the number, but the geese are working in and out of the island to nearby grain fields."

Ariel, Pointer, Wins Futurity

BROWNSVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 23.—For three consecutive years Clyde Morton, handler for the A. G. C. Sage Kennels of New York, has piloted a son of Lullaby to win the American Field Quail Futurity. In this the thirty-fifth renewal, Ariel, handsome white and liver pointer sired by the national champion, Air Pilot's Sam, won the large portion of the $2500 purse. His race and sparkling manner on game was never challenged during the competition, in which better than a half a hundred of the country's best two-year-old pointers and setters fought for top honors.

Homerun Dixie Milligan, pointer, owned by Miss Claudia Phelps of Aiken, S. C., won second place decisively with the same number of finds as Ariel but did not handle as well.

Tom Lunsford and Titan, both pointers, were called in a second series to decide third and fourth position. Titan, owned by George Mallers was third and Tom Lunsford, owned by R. K. Archbell of Brownsville, Tenn., fourth.

Rumson Farm Lock, owned by Raymond Hoagland of Cartersville, Ga., was the only setter to gain recognition.

Illinois Has Work Plan to Aid Players

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 23 (AP)—University of Illinois athletes now have an employment agency—the board of directors of the University Student-Alumni Association.

The board disclosed yesterday it had adopted a six point program designed to obtain employment for the athletes. All fraternities, sororities, university dormitories, boarding clubs, restaurants and business establishments will be asked to set aside one or two jobs for athletes recommended by the athletic association.

Champaign Workout.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 23 (AP).—The University of Illinois athletic department has announced that University of Southern California's undefeated but tied Trojans, en route to South Bend, Ind., to oppose Notre Dame Saturday, would stop off here tomorrow morning for a practice session.

U. S. Boxers Gain Draw in Tokyo

TOKYO, Nov. 23 (AP).—Touring boxers from San Jose (Cal.) State College drew with a team of Japanese amateurs today.

Sellers, San Jose bantamweight, won a decision over Ohta; Conrad Lack, San Jose featherweight, outpointed Matsukama; Charles Kerwin, San Jose lightweight, lost to Tei, and James Kincaid, San Jose welterweight, lost to Bun.

WINNIPEG WHEAT MARKET RULES ON STEADY BASIS

Close Is 1-4c Higher to 1-8c Off — Light Offerings and Scattered Export Buying Lend Support to Trade.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 23 (AP). — Light offerings and scattered export buying proved sufficient to hold wheat futures prices comparatively steady throughout a featureless session in the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Quotations showed little inclination to move far from previous levels and at the close were ¼ cent higher to ⅛ lower, November 70½c, Dec. 70⅛@¼c, May 74⅞c and July 76⅜c.

The minor purchases in the pit credited to export houses were estimated to have represented an overseas business of about 2,000,000 bushels in Canadian wheat. Destination and grade of the foreign sales could not be determined.

Little other activity came out during the session as Chicago was closed and prevented any intermarket spreading.

Buenos Aires wheat values were down about ½c near the end of the session.

Cash wheat transactions took a new lease on life and reports indicated that about 1,250,000 bushels of No. 1 Northern wheat have been taken by shippers and terminals since the close of yesterday's session. In addition to this excellent demand, mills also bought good quantities of the lower grades.

Operations in the coarse grain pit lagged. Only light barley purchases by exporters kept the market from lapsing into dormancy.

Western Canada farmers delivered 1,327,000 bushels of wheat to rural loading points yesterday compared with 491,000 a year ago.

FRACTIONAL DECLINE IN WHEAT AT MINNEAPOLIS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 23 (AP).—There was very little action in the grain market here today, with other markets closed in observance of one of the Thanksgiving days.

Prices rallied moderately on a fair-sized buying order, but thereafter trade turned desultory and board members voted to cut the session short at noon.

December wheat closed ⅛c lower at 84⅛, May ¼ at 84 and July ⅛ at 84.

Flax dropped in thin trade because of lack of definite crusher support. May flax declined 1¼c to $1.69, and July ½c to $1.73½.

CLEARINGS TOP TOTAL OF COMPARATIVE WEEK

St. Louis Banks Report Gain of 22.2 Per Cent Over Year Ago.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities of the United States during the week ended Nov. 22 exceeded the preceding period, which included Armistice day, and for the third successive week topped the comparable 1938 figure, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The latest total of $5,573,602,000 was 2.3 per cent more than $5,450,746,000 in the same week last year.

At New York, however, the week's total of $3,034,475,000 was 7.6 per cent less than $3,285,641,000 a year ago.

Turnover at 21 outside cities of $2,539,127,000 represented a gain of 17.3 per cent over $2,165,105,000 recorded in the similar 1938 period.

Clearings rose $398,210,000 over last week. For the same two weeks of 1938, the increase amounted to $403,263,000.

All outside centers reported substantial percentage gains over a year ago, including Cleveland 32.5, Cincinnati 26.3, Richmond 25.1, Pittsburgh 23.7, St. Louis 22.2, Baltimore 21.4, Dallas 20.8.

Volume at Chicago of $341,900,000 was 16.1 per cent greater than $294,600,000 in 1938.

COTTON FUTURES LOWER IN THE LIVERPOOL MARKET

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 23 (AP).—Cotton futures trading was active today and final prices showed losses of 15 to 20 points.

Speculative buying at the opening forced prices upward, but a sharp reaction followed on Bombay selling and profit taking, and then values rallied again on trade calling and buying.

In the afternoon portion of the session values again broke considerably on the uncovering of stop loss orders and further Bombay selling. Local support came into the market at this point, but hedge selling and liquidation carried prices to about the lowest levels of the day.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 23 (AP).—Cotton, fair demand for spots, prices 14 points higher; quotations in pence: American, strict good middling, 8.27; good middling, 7.87; strict middling, 7.77; middling, 7.67; strict low middling, 7.57; low middling, 7.17; strict good ordinary, 6.72; good ordinary, 6.37. Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Nov. 23 (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Trading was rather quiet on the Boston wool market today. A few inquiries were being received, but buyers did not appear to have any very urgent requirements to cover. Quotations were steady on fine domestic wools and somewhat irregular on lower grades. Country-packed mixed lots of three-eighths and quarter-blood bright fleeces were quoted nominally at 44@46 cents, in the grease, for offerings from the country. Most spot offerings were quoted at this range of prices, but little demand was received and reports indicated sales of small lot sat prices below this range.

Bank of France Statement.

PARIS, Nov. 23 (AP).—Bank of France statement as of Nov. 17 (in millions of francs): Gold reserve, 97,266, unchanged; balances abroad, 73, decrease 1; discounted commercial bills—France, 5496, decrease 989; negotiable bills bought in France, 4541, increase 5; advances against securities, 3600, decrease 52; 30-day advances against Government securities, 418, decrease 85; temporary advances to state, 30,072, increase 900; circulation, 146,654, decrease 67; total credit to current accounts, 16,332, increase 265. Ratio of gold to sight liabilities, 59.68 per cent, compared with 59.75 last week. Bank rate, 2 per cent.

LONDON STOCKS CLOSE GENERALLY LOWER

Slight Changes — American Shares Quiet, Oils Mostly in Arrears.

LONDON, Nov. 23 (AP).—Stocks closed irregular and generally slightly lower today, with only South American issues showing strength. American stocks were quiet, with oils mostly in arrears.

British war loans declined ⅛ to 92¼. Japanese bonds were mostly down. Brazilian bonds were firm. Argentine rails led the list with gains up two points on favorable trade news.

Rubbers improved on the price rise in the commodity to 11 17-32 pence per pound.

The London bank rate of 2 per cent was unchanged. The bank statement showed a decrease in active circulation of about 640,000 pounds.

The foreign exchange market was quiet and steady, except Copenhagen funds, which closed 19⅞-20⅜ compared 20-20½.

PARIS, Nov. 23 (AP).—The Bourse maintained a steady undertone. Persistent offerings were fairly well absorbed. After showing small gains in early trading, rentes eased and at the close were fractionally down.

Domestic issues were narrowly irregular while foreign shares lost ground.

In the bond section, strength was shown in Egyptian, Belgian and Turkish issues.

MONTREAL AND TORONTO STOCK MARKETS ADVANCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 23 (AP).—Rallying tendencies crept into the stock market today and yesterday's sliding leaders regained fractions to 3 points. Trading, apparently influenced by the New York market holiday, held to a light level.

National Steel Car led the upswing with a gain of 3 and Dominion Bridge was next in line with an improvement of slightly more than a point.

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (AP).—Stocks registered a moderate advance today on the market in comparatively quiet trading tempo. Gold shares again provided the bulk of business while industrials with exception of the aircraft and steel issues, moved in small volume. The New York market holiday for Thanksgiving had a restraining influence on buying in the industrials and senior base metals. All indices were narrowly higher at the close. Turnover was down to about 310,000 shares.

RAILROADS CENTERING HERE SHOW DROP IN LOADINGS

Carloadings of the three railroads centering in St. Louis—Wabash, Frisco and Missouri Pacific—aggregated 52,462 cars in the week of Nov. 18. This was 1467 cars under the preceding week, but 3700 over the corresponding week last year.

Securities Dealers' Committee.

Walter W. Ainsworth of Metropolitan Securities Co., was elected chairman and Louis Nicolaus of Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., vice-chairman of the District No. 7 committee of the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc.

Other members of the district committee are William H. Burg, Henry L. Ruppert, Charles R. Stix, Albert Theis Jr., all of St. Louis, and James R. Vinson of Little Rock.

LESS BUTTER THAN IN 1938, MORE THAN 1930-37 AVERAGE

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (AP).—The American Butter Institute reported today butter production totaled 1,406,408,000 pounds for the first nine months of 1939, 7 per cent higher than the eight-year average of 1930-37, but off from the record of 1,786,152,000 pounds in the same period of 1938.

The institute rounded up its figures for presentation to the annual convention here Dec. 5 and 6, which will have "butter, not bullets, for Americans" as its theme.

"Milk marketed for making butter in 1938—estimated at 33.6 billion pounds—was almost as much as all other dairy products combined, including the sale of whole milk," said Dr. N. W. Hepburn, executive secretary of the institute.

"Cash income from dairy products bring the farmer approximately twice as much as the return from grains or cotton and cottonseed and a third more than the cash income from fruits and vegetables," he added.

To Find a Tenant For Your House, Flat or Apartment

Property Is Rented on Monday Tuesday Wednesday Thursday Friday Saturday and Sunday

Each day Post-Dispatch Want Ads are carrying vacancy messages to prospective tenants—and filling such wants.

Some persons are seeking vacancies in the lists published on Monday—

Others with more time on Tuesday take that evening to scan these offers and make investigation.

Still others make selection on either Wednesday, Thursday, Friday—or on their Saturday afternoon holiday.

Your offers appearing on any one of these weekdays reach many interested readers in every district in St. Louis.

By placing a three-time or seven-time Want Ad in the Post-Dispatch you can cover several or all of these renting days.

To phone your Want Ad Call MAin 1-1-1-1 and ask for an Adtaker

Should your property be rented before the order expires, promptly notify the Want Ad department, have the remaining insertions canceled and pay only for the number of advertisements used.

The SEVEN DAY Result Service of the POST-DISPATCH

has proved so satisfactory that many more St. Louisans now place their Rental and Real Estate advertising in the Post-Dispatch.

NEW DRUG TRIED HERE TO FIGHT INFECTION

St. Louisans Report on Use of Sulfamethylthiazol Against Staphylococci.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 23.—Tests of a new weapon in the physician's armament, a chemical developed to combat the second of two great, frequently deadly germ-families, were reported to Southern Medical Association in annual convention today by clinical and laboratory experts of St. Louis University School of Medicine.

The physicians indicated hope on the basis of early tests against staphylococcus infection, that the new weapon might prove as formidable as its name—sulfamethylthiazol. It is a close relative of sulfanilamide, the once-waste product of dye manufacture which has become the chief reliance against streptococcus infection.

But while strep-killing sulfanilamide brought new hope in such diseases as blood poisoning or septicemia due to streptococci, there was still little hope in blood poisoning due to staphylococci. Physicians, as Dr. Grayson Carroll and Dr. Louis Kappel related today, resorted to the use of barteriophage, various antitoxins and transfusions from persons theoretically immunized by prior attacks of the disease.

More lately the St. Louis physicians said, occasional good results in staphylococcus blood poisoning were reported for sulfanilamide and its related sulfapyridine. These reports suggested that, just as sulfapyridine had been found to have specific efficacy against pneumonia germs, yet another member of the same sulfonamide family might be developed with a specific deadliness for the stapylococcus.

Two-Year Test.

In the quest for that unknown specific, the research division of an Eastern chemical company developed sulfamethylthiazol and in two-year tests reported it effective against "staph" infection and without ill effect on researchers who tried it on themselves. A few days ago Dr. Carroll gave St. Louis Medical Society the first clinical report on its use in consultation with Dr. Harry Wiese, in clearing up a dangerous kidney infection with "dramatic" effectiveness.

Four other cases were reported today in addition to bacteriological tests in which Prof. Lloyd Jones, Fred W. Gallagher and Francis DiRocco of St. Louis University found that it protected about 70 per cent of mice against the germ in several times an ordinary killing dosage.

First clinical report on use of the sodium salt of the chemical, for intravenous injection, was given in the case of a young woman at St. Louis City Hospital, suffering from a widespread staphlococcus infection of the skin. The germs were present in the blood. The patient was unconscious and in dying condition when the first injection was given. Temperature dropped to normal and the patient was conscious and generally improved in 48 hours.

Results in Other Cases.

Marked improvement, with expectation of additional improvement on increased dosage, was reported by administration of the chemical by mouth in an infant suffering from staphylococcus blood poisoning with involvement of the joints. The clearing up of two mild cases of kidney infection was reported. Ill effects were described as mild in comparison with those of other sulfonamides. The physicians said laboratory and clinical tests are continuing in St. Louis and certain other medical centers.

First prize for the best scientific exhibit at the meeting was won by Dr. Graham Asher, University of Kansas heart specialist, who demonstrated a machine that visualizes the beating of the human heart on a fluorescent screen. It enables physicians to diagnose heart conditions and by pressing a lever a photograph can be made of any part of the continuous fluorescent film.

Dr. Quitman U. Newell, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, was chosen president-elect of the association, to take office next year.

SURVEY OF HISTORIC BUILDINGS IN MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STARTS

Architects Begin Park Service Study by Measuring and Photographing Baptiste Roy House.

The Historic American Building Survey for the Mississippi Valley, a project of the National Park Service, was begun yesterday with an examination of the Baptiste Roy house on the west side of South Second street between Poplar and Plum streets. The building was measured and photographed.

The three-story building with limestone walls is more than a century old, appearing on city records first in 1832. It replaced a house of upright logs built after the ground was granted on July 10, 1767, by Gov. St. Ange de Bellerive to Jean Ortes and Jean Cambas. Joists were found to be of oak and walnut. Laths were of hand-split oak.

Two graduates of the Washington University School of Architecture, Norman Moore and Joseph Marlowe, are in charge of the work. Five more architects, a photographer and secretary, will be employed and offices will be established in the old Federal Building at Eighth and Olive streets. The architects will study buildings in Missouri, Kentucky, Mississippi and Louisiana.

GAME WARDENS REPORTED BY ANOTHER AS POACHERS

Conservation Director Takes Blame for Mistake of Undercover Man.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill Nov. 23 (AP). — Conservation Director Thomas J. Lynch Tuesday took upon himself the blame for an incident that caused two of his game wardens to be mistaken by a third as poachers.

Lynch said Harry Novotney of Chicago, an undercover warden secretly delegated to catch trespassing hunters on Grand Island near Bath on the Illinois River property of a private sportsmen's club, reported seeing Wardens Frank J. Davis of Havana and Ora J. Sarff of Bath on the island in possession of shotguns on Oct. 26 shortly after hearing shots.

Davis and Sarff testified at a hearing that they had gone to the island on orders of District Inspector Harry Hofing to investigate reports of illegal trapping of ducks. Lynch said he was satisfied that the two men were merely carrying out their orders when seen by Novotney. "I'm a little responsible for the mixup myself," the director said, "because I did not inform Hofing that Novotney was working on the island."

CHURCH PAPER TO URGE HOOVER AS PEACE MEDIATOR

Methodist Weekly Says Several Eastern Congregations Have Approved Suggestion.

BOSTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—The editors of Zions Herald, independent Methodist weekly, announced today that they would publish an editorial next week in support of a proposal that former President Hoover intervene in an effort to bring peace to Europe.

Describing Hoover, a Quaker, as "the world's last desperate hope for peace," the announcement said the suggestion was made first at a church meeting in Newton Center, Mass., and subsequently ratified by other meetings in New York and New England.

HUNTER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

ST. ANNE, Ill., Nov. 23 (AP).—Forty neighbors searched all night for Bert Leutloff, 48 years old, a farmer who had left home Tuesday morning for a short hunting trip.

Early Wednesday his body was found in athicket with a bullet wound through the head which Coroner A. E. Kerger thought came from his own rifle. An inquest was ordered.

ALASKAN FLYER LOSES LIFE

Norris Johnson Crashes in Storm at Fairbanks.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Nov. 23 (AP).—Norris Johnson, one of Alaska's commercial flying aces, was killed yesterday in a crash landing half a mile south of the airport. He apparently was blinded by a snowstorm and thought he was over the landing field.

Johnson was returning alone in a Wien Alaska Airlines plane after a flight to Jack Wade Creek.

W. M. ALEXANDER DIES AT 70; RICH HAWAIIAN SUGAR MAN

Gave Large Sums to Churches and Tennis Clubs; Bought San Francisco Newspaper.

HONOLULU, Nov. 23 (AP). — Wallace M. Alexander, wealthy sugar man, died yesterday at the age of 70.

"He dispensed large sums of money in church activities, in the Boy Scout movement and in the development of tennis.

He dispensed large sums of finance tennis clubs in California and to defray the expenses incidental to the participation of well-known players in various tournaments. Thousands of dollars were given to the California Tennis Club of San Francisco for development of the o ganization.

Mr. Alexander was born on the island of Maui, Hawaii, his parents being American of English descent. The family had acquired large holding of sugar plantations on the island and it was to the development of these that Mr. Alexander turned his attention after being graduated from Yale University in 1892.

In 1924 he entered the newspaper field as a publisher, purchasing the San Francisco Bulletin.

On Aug. 16, 1904, he married Miss Mary Baker of Oakland, Cal., social service worker. They had one daughter.

RAILROAD'S SUIT OVER OIL BALKED IN SUPREME COURT

Decision of Lower Court Refusing Permission for Drilling and Impounding of Money Stands.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—The Supreme Court refused yesterday to interfere with a decision denying a petition of the Missouri-Illinois Railroad Co., that oil along its right-of-way in the Salem oil field in Marion County, Illinois, be removed and sold, and the proceeds be impounded pending settlement of a controversy over ownership of the oil.

Claims to the oil underlying the right-of-way were presented by the Magnolia Petroleum Co., and the Ohio Oil Co. They contended the railroad owned a mere easement for railroad purposes, but did not own the underlying minerals.

This contention was sustained by the United States Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. The Federal District Court for Eastern Missouri previously had granted the railroad's petition, on the ground that the oil probably would be drained from under the right-of-way.

ROOSEVELT APPROVES WORK OF WORLD LABOR GROUP

Says There Should Be No Lessening of Its Acivities in Present Emergency.

HAVANA, Nov. 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt expressed yesterday the "sincere hope of the United States Government that there will be no lessening of the activities of the International Labor Organization during the existing world emergency." He sent a message to the American States Labor Congress here.

"This conference is another significant example of the effectiveness of an agency like the International Labor Organization, which even in times like these can serve the people of various nations without regard to boundary lines or battle front," the President wrote.

He noted the 20-year history of the organization and declared its activities should be a constant reminder, "in these tragic times, that a humane civilization can flourish only under conditons of just human relationships. We pledge ourselves to continue our full part in its constructive, non-political, international effort for the betterment of living standards."

CHICAGO PREACHER-POLICEMAN HOST TO 1000 NEEDY PERSONS

For 12 Years He Has Given Thanksgiving Dinner at Mission He Organized.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (AP).—A policeman, known as the "preaching copper" was host to more than 1000 homeless and other needy persons today.

Edward de Vries, assistant custodian at the Central Police Building, organized a gospel mission 12 years ago and has provided a Thanksgiving feast there for a thousand or so guests every year since.

Starting at 9 a. m. De Vries and his family heaped upon plate after plate generous helpings of turkey, chicken, roast beef or roast pork, with traditional side dishes and desserts, contributed by mercnants.

GEORGE E. SCOTT ESTATE APPRAISED AT $694,313

Relatives Here to Share in Trust Set Up by American Steel Foundries President.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Nov. 23. — The estate of George E. Scott, president of the American Steel Foundries, who died Jan. 11, was valued at $694,313, after payment of taxes and expenses, in an appraisal filed in Probate Court here.

The estate was left in a 25-year trust, the income of which is to be divided among relatives, some of whom reside in St. Louis. The will leaves 20 per cent of the income to each of three sisters, including Mrs. Margaret S. Lawler, 435 North Clay avenue, Kirkwood, Mo., and Miss Mary Porter Scott of the Park Plaza Hotel, St. Louis.

Three brothers living in Miami, Fla., and San Antonio, Tex., will receive 10 per cent each, while a fourth brother, William D. Scott, 4347 McPherson avenue, St. Louis, will get 5 per cent. Two nephews living in Hammond, Ind., will receive 2½ per cent each. At the end of 25 years the principal in the trust will be divided among the relatives, or their heirs, in the same proportion.

Mr. Scott, who was 67 years old, began his business career in St. Louis with the Simmons Hardware Co. He is buried in Bellefontaine Cemetery, St. Louis.

ORPHANAGE'S TURKEYS STOLEN BUT FRIENDS PROMISE OTHERS

Many Offers Received at Duluth Home After Reading Newspaper Accounts.

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 23 (AP).—Children at the St. James Orphanage won't have to eat beans for their Thanksgiving dinner next Thursday after all.

That was the prospect after thieves raided the orphanage poultry coops and stole 25 turkeys and more than 100 chickens intended for the children's Thanksgiving and Christmas day dinners.

But today Mgr. Michael Boland disclosed that scores of persons who read newspaper accounts of the theft had offered to furnish birds for the dinner. One Duluth business man promised 20 turkeys of 20 pounds each for next Thursday.

"Our friends not only have assured me they will provide birds for Thanksgiving," Mgr. Boland said, "but also say they will remember us at Christmas."

MAKES FAMILY LIFE TEST IN HIRING OF EMPLOYES

Chain Store Executive Says Man Can't Do Good Work If There Is Trouble at Home.

LIBERTY, Mo., Nov. 23 (AP). — J. C. Penney, a native Missourian who heads a merchandising chain, told William Jewell College students yesterday that in the early days when he did the hiring in person he always investigated the family life of prospective employes.

If he found the man's family life unhappy he did not hire him, feeling that he could not do his best work, "but," he said, "if I found his wife was a true helpmate, I felt reasonably sure that he would make good, for a good woman's power to cheer and inspire is almost unlimited."

Penney, who entered the dry goods business 37 years ago, said employer-employe relationships had undergone a vast change in the last few years.

GREEN CONTENDS TRUST LAWS DON'T APPLY TO UNIONS

AFL Head Writes Attorney-General St. Louis Indictments Are 'in Defiance of Clayton Act.

ASKS IF ARNOLD STATED U. S. POLICY

Argues That Illegal Labor Activity Should Be Prosecuted Under Other 'Applicable' Statutes.

By RICHARD L. STOKES
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. — An opinion that no labor organization or its members can be prosecuted under the anti-trust laws was expressed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to Attorney-General Murphy which was made public today.

Green asked to be informed whether the policy of the Department of Justice and the Government of the United States was voiced in a recent letter of Assistant Attorney-General Thurman Arnold, to the effect that labor unions may be prosecuted under the anti-trust laws for certain alleged offenses.

A St. Louis case, that of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Co., was cited as an instance in which the Department of Justice obtained the indictment of union officers "in defiance of the Clayton Act and on the sham pretext that in calling a jurisdictional strike a union is not lawfully carrying out its legal objects."

"Let me make it clear," Green continued, "that the American Federation of Labor does not contend illegal activities of any labor union or members or officers thereof should go unpunished. On the contrary, we urge that such offenses be prosecuted under the proper laws applicable thereto. We do insist that the anti-trust laws cannot and must not be invoked against labor organizations because these laws themselves do not permit such prosecution."

On Intent of Congress.

Green then quoted the text of the Clayton Act declaring that nothing contained in the anti-trust laws should be construed as permitting labor organizations to be held as "illegal combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade."

He recalled the debate on this clause, and said it had been adopted in the House by a vote of 207 to 0.

"In face of the clear language of the law and the clear intent of Congress expressed in debate," demanded Green, "how can the position of Mr. Arnold be justified? What I respectfully request from you is a frank statement as to whether the Department of Justice, by some experimental and distorted interpretation of these laws, is now trying to make them apply to the activties of labor unions and their members.

"It is inconceivable to me that an administration notable for its friendliness to labor should adopt a retrogressive policy advocated hitherto only by the most extreme reactionary enemies of labor."

On the authority of Joseph A. Padway, AFL counsel, Green accused Arnold of inconsistency, in having stated he was preparing a brief for the Department of Justice, in the Apex Hosiery case, upholding the contention of a union of the Congress of Industrial Organizations that it could not be sued for damages under the anti-trust laws.

Anheuser-Busch Case.

Reverting to the Anheuser-Busch case, Green explained that there are many types of jurisdictional strikes, and that essentially they result from competition between members of two or more unions for the right to do certain work.

"In many cases," he continued, "jurisdictional disputes concern methods of organization. No one will question the fact that organization is a primary and legitimate object of a union. The American Federation of Labor believes that jurisdictional disputes should if possible be settled by negotiation or mediation rather than by strike action."

He concluded that, prior to the Anheuser-Busch case, neither the AFL nor any other labor organization "had ever before encountered the theory that jurisdictional strikes are unlawful under the anti-trust statutes."

Man Who Arrested Sacco Dies.

BROCKTON, Mass., Nov. 23 (AP).—Michael Connolly, policeman who arrested Nicola Sacco and Bartolomew Vanzetti on May 5, 1920, died last night. He was 58 years old. Connolly picked up the two on a Brockton street car, and they later were executed after a seven-year legal fight for the murder of two pay roll guards at a South Braintree shoe factory.

LEGION COMMITTEEMEN BEGIN ANNUAL MEETING

National Head Urges All Groups Interested in Americanism to Co-operate.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 23 (AP).—Raymond J. Kelly, American Legion national commander, said today "there is a positive need for all organizations interested in preserving the fundamentals of the American way of life to join together in an effectively co-ordinated effort to protect our institutions as a free people."

Kelly spoke at the opening session of the annual conference of the Legion's national executive committee.

He urged the committee to investigate "and, if feasible, take steps to initiate a united action movement by all typical American fraternal, religious, civic and patriotic groups in order that the forces of subversion now existing in our country may be forever destroyed in our national life."

Scheduled for the Executive Committee meeting were appointment of a treasurer, judge advocate and historian for the legion and reports of committees, boards and commissions.

The Executive Committee is made up of national officers, a committeeman from each of the 58 departments and the 19 past national commanders. Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, a former commander, planned to attend.

Three proposed solutions for the unemployment problem were advanced as the conference on jobless opened yesterday.

Ralph W. Flanders of Springfield, Vt., president of the Jones & Lamson Machine Co., said "restraints" on business must be removed to encourage investment of idle money.

"The spirit of enterprise and willingness in this country is almost dead," he declared. "Revival of this spirit is essential to increased employment."

Oscar M. Powell of Washington, executive director of the Social Security Board, said prices should be lowered to allow more people to buy goods.

Dr. Melchior Palyi, University of Chicago economics professor, said taxation should be revamped to make long-term investment of capital profitable. He expressed a belief that present taxation encourages liquidation of investments.

ANTI-TRUST INDICTMENT AFTER INCREASE IN PRICES

Sand and Gravel Association in New York, 7 Corporations and 12 Individuals Accused.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP).—The Department of Justice announced today that a Federal grand jury in New York had indicted a trade association, seven corporations and 12 individuals engaged in the sand and gravel industry on charges of violating the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

The Long Island Sand & Gravel Producers' Association was indicted on the charge that since its organization in January, the price of sand had increased 35 per cent and the price of gravel 20 per cent.

Mines Set Adrift in North Sea by Submarines Built for Purpose, as in World War, They Think.

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—A Navy announcement that 39 drifting mines have been sighted in the North Sea in the last two days deepened the convictions of some maritime experts today that they had been set adrift to make British waters a no-man's-area for all shipping.

Stormy weather often has snapped mines from their moorings, but seldom in such clusters as indicated by the incomplete reports broadcast by the Navy's hydrographic office. Most of the reports came from the U. S. S. Trenton.

Treaties prescribe automatic devices to assure that mines accidentally set adrift will be rendered harmless within an hour, but those afloat in the North Sea have accounted for most of the 16 ships sunk or damaged in the last five days.

Conclusions by Experts.

The latest development in the European sea warfare suggested these tentative conclusions to qualified experts:

1. The recent heavy shipping losses are due to the numbers of the mines and their free drift rather than to the perfection of revolutionary new undersea weapons.

2. Virtually all the mines have been laid by submarines built for the purpose.

3. Setting them adrift has raised difficulties calculated to tax British and French means of keeping open vital commerce lanes.

4. The Allied blockade and the German fight to create a counter blockade has not differed basically from the 1914-18 pattern.

Experience in World War.

In the World War Germany laid 43,636 mines, by official count. Ninety per cent were put out by mine laying submarines, a special type that originated from the World War.

On the first day of the 1914-18 war, a German ship placed the first of the deadly submarine weapons, each bearing about 300 pounds of TNT or similar explosive, in the open sea, rather than near a coast as prescribed by The Hague 1907 convention. To Allied protests, Germany replied that the treaty was not binding as Russia had not formally ratified it.

In later years German mines were set adrift near the approaches to the French harbors used by American transports.

The early German mines were definitely superior until the British developed their improved H2 weapon. These were mines exploded only by actual contact. The United States navy introduced the Mark VI mine with antennae 35 feet long, which exploded on contact with a ship's hull. These were used in the North Sea mine barrage, and to sweep thsm up after the war required a year of dangerous work.

Subsequent developments have been closely guarded, but there have been no strong hints of revolutionary new undersea weapons.

Magnetic Mines Unlikely.

Ordnance specialists appear convinced that magnetic mines which would be attracted by the metal of a ship's hull are impractical. They were discredited in 1918 by an American official board headed by the late Thomas A. Edison, which noted the quick loss of magnetic power with distance.

At the armistice, Britain had 726 vessels of all types engaged in the perilous task of sweeping the English coast for 1000 miles daily. The sweepers were blown up at the rate of about one a week during the entire war, but the rate of loss had been reduced from one ship for every two mines to one ship for every 80 mines destroyed. Of 23,873 mines listed as destroyed, more than half were adrift.

Submarine mines accounted altogether for a loss of 803 British ships out of 3154 British vessels of all sizes and types that went down.

LANDON ON OIL REGULATION

Says Federal Control Is Close Unless States Use Power.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 23 (AP).—A call for "better co-operation between the industry and the states and better co-operation between the regulatory bodies of the states" has been issued by Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee and independent oil man. Such co-operation is needed, he said, if Federal control is to be avoided.

"State control of the oil industry is closer to being on the way out and Federal control is closer to being on the way in than at any period since the NRA," he asserted.

DYESS COLONY TAKEN OVER BY FEDERAL AGENCY

Farm Security Administration Now in Charge of Large Arkansas Rehabilitation Project.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 23 (AP).—The Farm Security Administration took over today management of the 16,000-acre Dyess Colony in Mississippi County, oldest rural rehabilitation project in the county.

The FSA took charge of the $3,000,000 project, set up in 1934 by the Federal Emergencq Relief Administration and later managed by a holding company directed by officials of the Works Progress Administration.

The transfer, the regional FSA office announced, has been in process of development since 1937. It brought all rural rehabilitation projects in Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, built with Government funds, under the FSA.

Approximately 390 families make their homes at Dyess, which has 500 dwelling houses, a hospital, four schools, a bank, a furniture factory and 60 miles of gravel roads.

T. Roy Reid, regional FSA director, asserted his agency planned no drastic changes in operation. Committees from the State and regional FSA offices will be appointed to report on resources and operating methods. Roy D. Johnston, who has been in charge at Dyess for the past year, has been named project manager.

The change in supervision came with the resignation of directors of the Dyess Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, operators of the colony, and transfer of their stocks to FSA. Five directors were executives of the State WPA organization.

The stock had no par value. The corporation was registered with the State as a benevolent, non-profit corporation, the articles of incorporation providing that no dividends should ever be paid to any stockholder.

Floyd Sharp, State WPA Administrator, who headed the old corporation, remains on the new board, appointed by Dr. W. W. Alexander, National FSA Administrator. Other members are Reid, E. B. Whitaker, assistant FSA director; J. M. Holiday, regional FSA finance manager, and H. E. Thompson, assistant State Extension Service director.

The colony was named for the late W. R. Dyess, former Arkansss WPA Administrator, who was killed in the crash of an air liner near Goodwin, Ark., Jan. 14, 1936.

COMMUNIST OFFICER IN U. S. SOUGHT IN PASSPORT INQUIRY

Warrant Issued for Party Treasurer Who Disappeared When Federal Investigation Began.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—Officers searched today for Robert William Wiener, national treasurer of the Communist party and president of the International Workers' Order, to arrest him as a material witness in a Federal grand jury investigation of an alleged Communist "passport mill."

A warrant for Wiener was issued yesterday at the behest of the grand jury which recently indicted Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, after Federal agents learned Wiener had left his home.

Assistant United States Attorney Lester C. Dunigan said Wiener had left no forwarding address and had said he was selling his automobile and leaving the city. He left Oct. 20, Dunigan said, the same day the "passport mill" inquiry began.

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON SAYS—

He Doubts Germany Will Make Massed Attack on Land—Chances of Success Far Too Thin to Risk It.

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.

THERE may be some doubt about whether Hitler will make a massed assault on the Western Allies—straight through the center or around the ends through Switzerland or Belgium and Holland. He probably won't.

There is far less doubt about what the Allies will do in the direction of a bloody advance. They can't buck the center. They won't try the ends.

Either side risking the land offensive is almost sure to fail. The slaughter would be beyond anything the world has seen or imagined. The chances of success are far too thin to risk it.

There is another possibility much considered earlier—hardly mentioned today—a clash of air armadas. To the extent that aircraft have replaced cavalry for screening, observation and distant raids, it might be assumed that its strategical use would be similar. In old wars the opening action was frequently a great cavalry combat. The object was "to put out the enemy's eyes." Lee's defeat at Gettysburg is sometimes laid to the absence of Stuart's cavalry at the beginning.

Air Forces' Importance.

Air forces are so much more powerful than cavalry that if either side should lose control of the air there would be a great shift of advantage to the other. On this theory many military observers expected a terrific clash in the sky long before this.

The fact that it hasn't happened may give some indication of purpose—especially Hitler's purpose. That sort of strategy would have been the first step in a war of movement. If he had ever intended to attack on land, the probabilities are strong that he would have started in the air long ago.

This is the more likely in view of the fact that the Allied air force, with American additions, is getting stronger faster than his own.

If no great moving thrust is in prospect, command of the air won by a destructive collision isn't half so important. Fixed ground defenses against aerial attack have clearly been effective beyond expectation. A decisive mass battle in the air seems less and less likely. The growing equality of air strength and the surprising performance of ground defense and detection have also lessened the probability of destructive bombing raids on great centers of population and industry. There seems to be a sort of mutual recognition that the military effects are small, the psychological gain nothing, and the destruction of enemy assets certain to be offset by destruction of home values.

What Each Side Seeks.

To what does this all add up? To a gamble on the German side of being able to strangle the Allies by destruction of commerce. To a hope on the Allied side of revolution in Germany.

The German "strangulation" strategy isn't working very well. The Allies have much to consider before they destroy Germany by mutiny. The contagious disease of Communism has advanced to Germany's very boundaries. Through Hitler's blundering trade with Stalin it more closely threatens both Baltic and Balkan states.

Neither the Allies nor the rest of the world can consider the collapse and Communization of Germany as any bargain. Germany was aforetime a great activator and balance wheel for the commerce of the whole world. Communism is a paralyzer of trade and commerce and a constant threat to democratic institutions.

Britain and France say—not very frankly—that their aim is to destroy Hitlerism. As matters have worked out and Hitler has blundered, he probably will destroy himself. It is not too early to begin to wonder what will replace him. It could be worse than Hitler himself.

That is a principal reason why war aims should be plainly stated. Germans should be shown that if they kick Hitler out the result would not be preferable to a peace at once.

ARMY COMBINING MOTORCYCLES, CARS, HORSES IN NEW UNIT

Fast Moving Scouting Regiment Will Set Military Precedent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—The War Department announced yesterday that motorcycles, light armored cars and cavalry horses transported by motor truck would be combined in a special fast-moving scouting regiment which would set new precedents for the army.

The latest development in current army "streamlining" moves, the new regiment will be formed Dec. 1 by reorganizing the Sixth Cavalry at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Incorporating some of the advanced military ideas tested by Germany in the Polish campaign, it will comprise about 1100 officers and men. The unit will be tested next spring near the close of the mass training maneuvers already in progress in the South.

The announcement disclosed a general staff decision to employ motorcycles in a troop for the first time, and also represented official approval of the transportation overland of cavalry horses in motor trucks. This means of increasing the range and speed of cavalry has been tested experimentally for years by the First Division in Texas.

The regiment is to be formed to give a corps commander means to make near and distant ground reconaissance regardless o the weather or of road conditions.

It will consist of two squadrons and a headquarters troop. One squadron, armed with rifles, will be equipped with horses to provide means of travel over rough ground and with motor trucks to transport men and horses quicly when good roads are available.

MRS. BERGDOLL AGAIN ASKS ROOSEVELT TO FREE HUSBAND

In Third Letter, She Requests Consideration for Sake of Six Children.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Grover C. Bergdoll asked President Roosevelt again yesterday to pardon her husband, the draft dodger.

In a three-page letter, her third to the White House, the pleaded that her request be considered "for the sake of our six children."

She recalled that when the President answered a similar letter she wrote some time ago he informed her nothing could be done as long as Bergdoll was a fugitive. Bergdoll returned voluntarily from Germany and was sentenced to three years in military prison on Governor's Island, N. Y., in addition to a previous five-year sentence. Mrs. Bergdoll first asked the President for clemency in 1935.

GOV. AIKEN WARNS UTILITIES TO CUT RATES TO FARMER

Vermont Republican Says Unless They Do Rural Residents Will Turn to Government.

BOSTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—Farmers "will not hesitate to align themselves with the Federal Government in the operation and control of electric plants and lines," Gov. George D. Aiken (Rep.), Vermont, predicted today, "unless they get adequate service and proper rates and get them soon."

Addressing the New England Conference, a regional promotional organization, Gov. Aiken declared the farm co-operative "should be encouraged as an alternative to Government ownership and regulation," and added that the co-operative movement would bring about "a changing economic structure in America."

For years, Aiken said, the farmer "has complained bitterly about paying utility rates which yield profits in some instances as high as 36 per cent to the operators of private corporations."

Year after year, he continued, farmers paying such "high rates for electricity watched officers and stockholders of corporations have all conveniences that money could buy, purchased with unearned dividends and unwarranted profits. There are today private corporations making 20 to 30 per cent profit each year, yet there are still tens of thousands of New England farmers without the services of electricity because extension of lines into their territory would not pay the desired dividends on inflated capitalization.

"So, farmers are taking things into their own hands and have already built hundreds of miles of electric lines serving sparsely populated communities that remained sparsely populated because they lacked the means of providing comfortable homes."

Picturing the plight of agriculturists, forced to sell their products "under circumstances over which they have no control" while most of the things they buy "have their prices fixed by others," Aiken asserted: "I am speaking of the New England farmer, but what I say applies to the farmers of the Midwest or Pacific Coast as well."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mr. Tucker on the Smoke Problem.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DURING the past week, the papers, as well as some of the public, have enjoyed a "field day" in criticising the results which have been obtained by the Division of Smoke Regulation of the City of St. Louis.

We have no apologies to make for the results that we have obtained. We have improved the quality of the fuel being shipped into the City of St. Louis; we have reduced the sulphurous acid content of our atmospheric air; we have reduced the fly ash content of our air and we have supervised thousands of installations of mechanical fuel burning equipment, as well as boilers and furnaces, thus providing the general public with protection in the purchase of their equipment which heretofore had not been given.

We have on record data to substantiate the fact that the smoke emanating from the stacks of railroads, apartment houses, industrial plants and commercial buildings have been materially reduced. We have initiated an essential step toward the processing of any Illinois coal, viz., the washing of fuel.

This has all been accomplished in the period of two years. Still, the newspapers and some of the public say that it is not enough. In this statement the Division of Smoke Regulation heartily concurs: it is not enough!

Smoke may be eliminated from St. Louis by barring the use of high volatile coal, to be more specific, by barring the use of Illinois coal. If this is the plan which the editorial writers have in mind, let them so state in their editorials. If, on the other hand, they mean that we should endeavor to solve this problem by processing Illinois coal, then an entirely different light is placed upon the whole picture.

From its inception, the Division of Smoke Regulation has stated that the present setup was only a foundation upon which we could build a constructive program for the total elimination of smoke. At no time was it claimed that it was the answer to the question. Furthermore, it has repeatedly been stated that the problem would never be solved until a satisfactory smokeless fuel was provided for the large mass of domestic users in the City of St. Louis at a fair and equitable price.

To the best of our knowledge, this product has not been developed. If it has, it has not been presented to this office, nor have we learned from any research program or from any publication of a process that would meet these requirements. If such a product is known to any individual, then it is incumbent upon that individual as a matter of civic duty to present the facts.

The Illinois State Geological Survey apparently was not aware of any process that would meet the needs of St. Louis. It was with their aid that we persuaded the State of Illinois to appropriate $180,000 to sponsor a research program to develop such a product.

It is easy for an editor to make general and sweeping statements that we need a cheap processed fuel. It is implied by these statements that the product is available and it is only necessary for some scientist to grab the idea and with a simple twist of the wrist convert it into a reality. Such an attitude is characteristic of the uninformed layman who is blissfully unaware of the difficulties that beset the scientist's path.

The Division of Smoke Regulation does not care who the critic is; he is not and cannot be more earnest in his desire to rid the St. Louis atmosphere of smoke than Mayor Dickmann and the Division of Smoke Regulation. Therefore, we request that anyone who has a practical solution to present the facts to this office and they will be received with an open mind. It is not the lack of leadership, brains, courage or initiative that fails to solve this problem but it is the lack of the proper product.

R. R. TUCKER,
Commissioner of Smoke Regulation.

Skeptical About the Safety Campaign.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT looks as though Mayor Dickmann is using the present safety campaign as a smoke screen. J. L. H.

Pleased by Duemler's Appointment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

GEORGE E. DUEMLER was appointed regional attorney for the Wages and Hours division after being chosen from a group of more than 50 applicants. Now I learn that Senator Clark objects to the appointment because Duemler ran for Mayor of St. Louis on the Socialist ticket.

Considering the records for honesty and efficiency made by Socialist Mayors Hoan of Milwaukee, McLevy of Bridgeport, and former Socialist LaGuardia of New York, my only regret is that Duemler was not elected Mayor of St. Louis.

Senator Clark's objection sounds silly. The evident fact that Duemler got the job because of his qualifications, is all to his credit. I am glad to hear of an appointment made without the recommendations of Pendergast, O'Malley, Jelly Roll Hogan, Mike Kinney or Mr. Brogan. It looks like the beginning of clean democratic administration in Missouri.

If Senator Clark has any real grounds for his objections, based on Duemler's qualifications or record, let him speak out. WALTER MEYER.

Kirkwood.

MORE LIGHT, PLEASE!

What is being done by Superintendent of Instruction Henry J. Gerling with the charity funds contributed by employes of the Board of Education to the Pupils' Relief Fund—a fund designed to provide the children of poverty-stricken parents with free lunches, carfare, eyeglasses and clothing?

This is a hard question to ask of a man who occupies so powerful and so important a post as Mr. Gerling. But it becomes necessary to ask the question and to demand an answer because there is something wrong with this fund.

That this is true was revealed yesterday in the news columns of the Post-Dispatch. It was shown that Mr. Gerling paid into the fund the sum of $5044, an amount left over from the chest of the 1938 school tax campaign.

The payment was made by Mr. Gerling in the form of two checks totaling $2890 and speculative stocks and bonds with a current market value of approximately $2060.

The stocks consisted of 50 shares of Victor Chemical Works, bought for $19 a share and now selling for $26 a share, a profit of $350. The bonds were (1) a $1000 bond of the Fontenelle Brewing Co., bought from Richard Murphy, a member of the Board of Education, and now worth only about $660; (2) a $200 bond of the Little Rock and Hot Springs Western—known popularly as "Hot Rocks," now worth only $100.

The two bonds come under the label known in investing circles as "cats and dogs."

Murphy for many years has plied the twin occupation of School Board member and bond salesman. He and Gerling are former partners in a speculative real estate venture, from which Gerling withdrew, because of criticism, a year or so after he became Superintendent of Instruction.

Murphy sold five of the Fontenelle bonds to the Pupils' Relief Fund, but says he bought four of them back when the fund needed cash and that he is willing to buy back the bond in question. This willingness on the part of Murphy is easily understandable.

What kind of trusteeship of a charity fund is it that is willing to hazard its funds in dubious speculative ventures?

It apparently amounts to this: Gerling is an old friend and business associate of Murphy and Murphy makes his living selling bonds. Because he is a member of the Board of Education, it is natural for him to look for a market for his securities among the school teachers and in the school funds available for investment.

The Board of Education job pays nothing. The business of selling bonds is capable of paying a great deal.

It appears that $12,000 of the Pupils' Relief Fund is invested in bonds. What kind of bonds? Who sold the bonds? These questions have not been answered. Murphy isn't sure about it. Gerling is reticent.

The practice of certain School Board members of capitalizing their position on this body to make money for themselves is well known. It exists because the community has shown a most easy-going tolerance.

But enough is enough. When even the pennies designed for poor children are being risked in dubious financial ventures, with the consent of the Superintendent of Instruction, the limit has been reached.

The public has the right to expect a complete showdown on what has been done with the Pupils' Relief Fund. How was it invested? At what profit, if any? If the fund is full of cats and dogs, who unloaded them?

A HOUSECLEANING ALREADY OVERDUE.

One of the most disheartening drags on our economy—not to mention the morale and purchasing power of the average investor—is the great accumulation of dividend arrears on certain preferred stocks. It is therefore encouraging to find that the SEC is urging the reorganization of 20 utilities holding companies and half a dozen operating companies.

The shares of these companies are owned by about 2,000,000 persons. In the case of the holding companies, including the North American Co., parent firm of Union Electric, and the Utilities Power and Light Corporation, holding company of Laclede Gas, 56 per cent of the publicly owned stock is in arrears. In the case of the operating companies the figure is only 27 per cent.

As the SEC points out, very few of the companies are making any real progress toward the liquidation of these back dividends, and reorganization is inevitable. Of course, this is always strong medicine for the shareholder. However, nothing is to be gained by nursing a bit of paper and allowing arrears to pile up. Reorganization always means new hope—at least, the hope of salvaging something from the financial misadventure.

There is nothing to be gained by longer hoping against hope. The thing to do now is to down the bitter draught, to wipe the slate clean, to go through the wringer. The ensuing new start will be a tonic not only for the holders of the unproductive paper, but, indirectly, for the community at large. It will mean that one more of the snarls has been straightened out of our economic mechanism.

Fritz Kuhn has torpedoed the notion that nobody loves a fat woman. The noblest Romeo of them all.

HANDBILLS AND A FREE PRESS.

The United States Supreme Court demonstrated in unmistakable fashion yesterday that it is a protector of the civil rights of the American people. Until yesterday ordinances requiring licenses for the distribution of handbills were valid in Milwaukee, Los Angeles and Worcester, Mass. Another requiring a permit from the Chief of Police for canvassing homes for the sale of booklets was legal in Irvington, N. J. With the Supreme Court's decision in the grouped cases—only Justice McReynolds dissented from Justice Roberts' majority opinion—all these ordinances, and others like them over the country, went onto the legal scrapheap.

Justice Roberts handled adequately the arguments presented for such restrictions. Fraudulent appeals often are made in the name of charity and religion, he said. That fact, however, cannot be held to give a municipality power to require all persons who wish to disseminate ideas to present them first to police authority for approval or rejection. When there are frauds and trespasses both may be punished by law. To give the police power to decide what may be disseminated from house to house would be "to abridge freedom of speech and press."

Similarly, the handbill ordinances. Cities are charged with keeping their streets clean, but zeal to eliminate litter cannot interfere with the right of persons to give out handbills to passers-by. That, as Chief Justice Hughes said in the Griffin (Ga.) handbill ordinance decision 18 months ago would "restore license and censorship in its baldest form."

Freedom of the press does not embrace newspapers and periodicals alone. It would be mockery, indeed, to talk of a free press if the historic weapon of Tom Paine, the pamphlet, could not be distributed freely on the streets of this country. The press obviously includes every publication which conveys information and opinion. The Supreme Court's decision in these cases does not deal with newspapers, but it stands with its historic rulings in the Minnesota and Louisiana gag cases as a bulwark of freedom of the press.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN RAT ALLEY.

The ability to frame a valid indictment would appear to fall under the heading of elementary legal skill, yet one convicted person after another is set free by the courts because of flaws in the indictments drawn by Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller and his assistants. Some such headline as, "Miller's Office Errs and Man Is Set Free," crops out in the news with depressing frequency.

Last Friday Sidney Wolf, a metal dealer charged with the theft of $3678 worth of scrap from the Carter Carburetor Corporation, was freed in Circuit Court here because of an error in the information drawn against him, and the rule of double jeopardy will prevent his being tried again.

Yesterday the Supreme Court reversed the conviction of Tom Young, found guilty of burglary in the first degree and larceny, because of defects in the information filed by Mr. Miller's office. So the State is put to the expense of trying Young, charged as an habitual criminal, once again. The elements which constitute burglary in the various degrees are specified by law, and these the prosecution had overlooked.

The error in the Young case might have been avoided had the Circuit Attorney's office borne in mind the reproof it received from the Supreme Court in the reversal of the conviction of a certain William Allen last February. In that case, the high court meticulously informed the Circuit Attorney that a burglary conviction, to be sustained, must carry proof of the means by which illegal entrance was made.

None of these cases quite equals the Cytron case, which stunned the public early in Mr. Miller's tenure in office. In that instance, a father and son charged with mulcting investors of $2,000,000 went free because the Circuit Attorney sat blissfully idle while the statute of limitations interposed itself in the defendants' behalf.

Since that day, Mr. Miller and his staff seem to have learned nothing, while defense attorneys have learned much. On Thanksgiving day, Rat Alley should place the Circuit Attorney's office near the top of its considerable list of boons.

IT WASN'T LOADED.

A Judge over at Pana, Ill., undertook to demonstrate to a friend that a repeating self-loading shotgun, standing in the corner of his sitting room, was not loaded. His Honor pulled the trigger and the resulting discharge tore a hole in the wall of the room and smashed a large plate glass window. It recalls the sage advice packed in one of the utterances of the late Kin Hubbard's Tilford Moots: "Is that gun loaded? No? Well, then load it. It's th' unloaded guns that allus go off an' kill people."

IT'S TURKEY DAY JUST THE SAME.

Thanksgiving has an earlier spot on Missouri's calendar (and that of 22 other states) this year, but otherwise no difference can be detected. When the President announced last August that he was moving the date back a week, devotees of the good old days predicted all sorts of unhappy results. The football schedule makers would be reduced to desperation, it was predicted; calendar publishers would be hopelessly confused, and general chaos would break out if tradition were thus rudely violated.

Well, today feels like any other Thanksgiving. There are football games in sufficiency, the calendar business seemingly is thriving and the holiday atmosphere is unchanged. The turkey is luscious as ever, the cranberry jelly carries its familiar tang and the pumpkin pie still bats 1.000 in the dining room lineup. In the day's serious moments, there is plenty for which to return thanks, and a week's difference in time cannot impair the inventory of bounties and benefits.

Even the traditionalists haven't much left to argue about, now that the historians have spoken their piece. The "first Thanksgiving" of the Pilgrim Fathers wasn't on the last Thursday in November, research has shown. Just when it was nobody knows, except that it probably came between Sept. 23 and Nov. 11. After that, the date wobbled all over the calendar, sometimes in October or November, once even in February and once in June. That energetic woman editor, Sarah Josepha Hale, persuaded President Lincoln to set the last-Thursday date in 1864, and custom carried on from there, but for no historical reason.

In the states whose Governors do not follow the presidential proclamation, next Thursday will see the familiar observances Missouri and Illinois enjoy today. And if there are any indecisive souls who haven't made up their minds on this issue, they can strike a happy compromise by serving Thanksgiving dinner on both dates.

WHAT ABOUT GRAVES?

Otto P. Higgins, former Pendergast Police Commissioner in Kansas City, now in prison for income tax evasion, is no longer a member of the Missouri bar. He has "agreed" that his "license be revoked and his name stricken from the rolls," and a motion to that effect, stating the circumstances of his imprisonment, has been filed by the Bar Disciplinary Committee for the Sixteenth Judicial (Kansas City) District.

When will the State Bar Committee file a disbarment proceeding against W. W. Graves Jr., Prosecuting Attorney in Kansas City? The State Bar Committee will stand or fall in the estimation of the Missourians generally by its course in the Graves case. If it does not act, it may as well fold up and call it a day.

For the sake of the bar's disciplinary machinery, it is to be hoped that action in the Higgins case presages similar action in the case of Graves.

The war promises to become interesting again. Stockholm reports that fishermen have seen the Bremen at sea once more. That game of "Where, where is the Bremen?" was too good not to call for a repeat performance.

Black Bass Propagation in Missouri

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Black bass, with quail, are Missouri's greatest wildlife asset, writer declares; overfishing has sharply reduced their number, and restocking is far more difficult than in case of trout; says supply can be replenished by setting aside certain streams as reservations.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MISSOURI has two priceless sporting assets—the bob white quail and the black bass. Our deer and turkey are gone and it is going to be a long, arduous task to bring them back. We plant trout in a few miles of Ozark spring-fed streams and a few pheasants in North Missouri cornfields, but these are artificial, expensive and unsuited to widespread distribution. Migratory birds, such as ducks and geese, are governed by conditions over which Missouri has no control.

Quail and the black bass, however, are native to Missouri, being almost universally distributed throughout the State. They are assets which, properly preserved and husbanded, will grow and pay rich dividends in recreation to the sportsmen and in cash to many business men, farmers, outfitters and guides.

Our Conservation Commission has a big job on its hands and a big responsibility. It is a job that requires broad-gauge planning and the ability to set a goal and work steadfastly toward that goal, regardless of the political pressure and lobbying by special interests which are bound to arise.

It is fortunate that so much good work can be done by the commission in a field where outstanding results, which will be applauded by farmers and city sportsmen alike, can be secured rapidly and inexpensively. This is in the protection, propagation and distribution of quail and black bass.

* * *

Let us examine, first, the case of the black bass. Twenty-five years ago, there was hardly a stream in all the counties south of the Missouri River which would not yield a fine catch of large or small-mouthed bass to any fisherman who cared to wet a line. Today we hear a different story—water too low, too high, too clear, too muddy. You should have been here last week—you should come next week. And there's hardly a river or creek left that will yield the fishermen even a mediocre creel—because the bass aren't there.

Overfishing, PWA roads that make accessible the last mile of Ozark stream, seasons that open while the bass are nesting, size limits that leave no breeding stock in the waters, gigging, dynamiting, stream pollution, deforestation that destroys cover and causes floods—all these have helped to destroy our bass fishing.

Bringing back the fishing sounds like a hopeless task, but it can be done if the sportsmen of Missouri want it done and let the commission know that this is a No. 1 job on their docket.

Obviously, overfishing is with us to stay—though there's some hope that the useless 60-foot highways which meander aimlessly through cut-over timber and are used only by enterprising lads stealing whisky-barrel timber off "company" land may eventually fall into decay and revert to wilderness again.

Size limits on bass can be raised, and seasons can be better regulated according to weather and hatching conditions. Illegal gigging and "shooting" can be stopped by jailing and fining the offenders. Deforestation can be checked through proper forest conservation measures. Pollution can often be prevented by law, and stream conditions improved in many ways.

The fact is that hard fishing will not deplete our waters—provided the bass taken represent only the surplus. Most authorities agree, however, that artificial propagation and stocking must come to the aid of replenishment through natural breeding of black bass in Missouri streams and rivers.

Raising bass artificially by the millions which we need for a good restocking job is neither easy nor inexpensive because, unlike trout, the female bass must lay her eggs to be hatched as nature intended. This requires the maintenance of large breeding and rearing ponds. Morever, it is probable that unless water temperatures are maintained which are fairly close to the temperature of the streams to be planted, a high mortality rate will occur when the young bass are transplanted.

Fortunately, an easier and less expensive means of hatching and raising bass is at hand. There is hardly a county in Missouri, at least south of the Missouri River, which does not have one or more small streams suitable to the natural propagation of black bass. Why not set aside adequate portions of these streams, selecting them for their suitability as to feed, cover and other factors, prohibit all fishing and use them as natural bass hatcheries?

* * *

It would be no more difficult or expensive for the authorities to patrol these streams than to keep a pair of conservation agents guarding a few hundred liver-fed trout at Montauk Park or Bennett Springs. Conservation-minded citizens living on these streams might be deputized to enforce the laws and paid a small retainer for so doing.

Examples of small streams which might be used in this way are almost too numerous to mention, but here is an illustration of how the plan might work. Big River and the Meramec are two streams close to St. Louis which formerly furnished excellent bass fishing. The headwaters of the Big River and Fourche au Renault and Mineral Fork creeks in Washington County might be set aside as bass breeding grounds for Big River. Courtois and Huzzah creeks in Franklin County, or portions of them, could serve as feeders for the Meramec. The upper end of Black River splits into three forks. Portions of all of these might be set aside as breeding grounds, as could creeks such as Logan in Reynolds County.

A similar situation can be found on the Gasconade, which is fed by the Piney and Little Piney. There are creeks that feed the Osage and Niangua, as well as White River and its tributaries, in Southwestern Missouri.

It seems to me that the commission would do well to consider such a plan as this, since the job of restocking which is required far surpasses the capacity of all the bass hatcheries which exist in Missouri at the present.

LEONARD HALL.

JURISDICTION IN THE BATHROOM.

From News and Opinion.

AN agreement on jurisdiction over the installation of bath and toilet room accessories and medicine cabinets was reached at Cincinnati between the plumbers and the carpenters.

It provides that the plumbers shall have control of the installation of all bath and toilet room accessories, such as paper holders, glass shelves, etc., while the carpenters shall have the installation of bath and toilet room medicine cabinets. The ruling which was adopted by the department was, however, protested by the glaziers (setting mirrors and glass shelves), who were advised to take the matter up through the recognized jurisdictional channels if it became necessary. The agreement does not affect the tile setters' work.

That Two-Gun Texas Lady

From the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette

A LADY down in Texas took two guns out for a stroll and lay in wait for an admirer who "hounded her to death," and when she saw him she took out after him, firing with both guns. When he stopped and fell, she poured the lead into him until he was ripe for the undertaker. Whereupon she coyly explained her plight to the officers of the law.

It seems the gent in his courtship had stabbed her with an icepick. He was out of jail on bond. So she told the cops how she had been hounded and bedeviled and cozened, wheedled and coaxed, and finally in the sweet innocence of maidenly agitation, asked the wide world: "What else was there to do?"

And we repeat, What else could the poor girl do? Murder is sometimes disagreeable. Indeed, it is often messy. But what can a girl do who is faced with the annoying attentions of a persistent lover who stabs her with an icepick and then wants her to elope to California from Texas? The echoing answer is, What else?

We wait with bated breath until the Texas jury, after the evidence has been adduced, after the lawyers have said their say, after the Judge has made his charge, we say we wait for the glad moment when the Texas jury will rise and give three cheers for the lady with the two guns and declare an eternal open season on gents in Texas for women who are annoyed by icepicks and other endearments of persistent suitors.

Murder in Texas always has been a fine art, the refuge of the confused and baffled, and of those with overstrained nerves. Ever since Col. Bowie introduced his pocket carving knife, Texas murderers have been in a class by themselves. This two-gun lady who sank 11 bullets in the lovelorn swain pretty nearly is tops for Texas chivalry and Southern womanhood's triumph over wrong!

"What else" indeed?

LUCK IS WITH LOUISIANA.

From the Pike County Chronicle (Louisiana, Mo.).

HOW fortunate is Louisiana! We do not have two State Senators. Otherwise the Post-Dispatch might have implicated us in the Annenberg scandal.

The Chicago grand jury report states: "In one large city, substantial payments are made annually in the form of Christmas gifts to Judges, city officials and politicians, and two State Senators have been on the payroll for several years." The Post-Dispatch says: "We all know that Louisiana, Mo., is a wicked place. Senator Casey of Kansas City, member of the famous Casey-Kinney-Brogan triumvirate, told Missourians all about the lurid night life and the fast-stepping cafe society of Gov. Stark's home town. Still, it can't be Louisiana, for whatever its sins and errancies, that village hasn't two State Senators in its directory."

Think of the shame that would be ours if we had two State Senators! Judge Word and Judge Gillam, Mayor Tom, City Clerk Note, Auditor Murphy and the divers councilmen would need to scramble to protect their innocence. Are we not indeed lucky?

Further Reasons for Optimism

IF ONE reads the contemporary Allied periodicals—I am most familiar with the British—the absence of anything even approaching the hate-mongering and high-pressure ballyhoo of the last war is amazing. So, also, is the total absence from heroics.

This is noticeably true of the letter columns in the newspapers ranging from Right to Left, and in such weeklies as The New Statesman and Nation, The Spectator and The Economist.

In the midst of war, the chief discussion is centering around peace. That discussion is neither pacifist nor defeatist. It rests on the quiet assumption that the Allies will win the war. Occasionally a contributor advocates the earliest possible "peace of compromise"—but that is rare, and it is significant that even such a view, which in the last war would have been indignantly howled down as defeatism, is allowed a hearing.

But on the whole, the discussion recognizes the complete impossibility of any peace that represents a compromise with Naziism. On the other hand, there is almost no self-righteousness; there is an almost universal admission of past mistakes, and the discussion is on an extraordinarily high level of disinterestedness and intelligence.

Those in this country who fear that the United States is going to be "dragged into" this war by the Allies, particularly by Britain, would do well to subscribe to a few British periodicals and read them regularly.

The desire not to extend the area of the war is obvious from these publications. What the Allies do want from us is our sympathetic interest, the economic collaboration which is implicit in our normal peacetime program of reciprocal trade, and the contribution of our thinking to the essential problem of the reorganization, first of Europe, and then of larger and larger parts of the world, for the solution of those political and economic problems which have led to the renewal of war.

The human mind has not been thrown into blackout by the war. On the contrary, it is apparently pulling itself together with a degree of concentration and lucidity which is very promising.

* * *

It is clear, for instance, that one reason why war aims cannot be more fully formulated is that no one is willing hurriedly to hash out the kind of tripe cooked by smart advertising men for the last war.

It is realized that this war is part of a crisis in Western civilization that demands for its solution imagination, intelligence and a reawakened moral sense. The largest and most daring ideas are being tentatively unrolled; such ideas as curbs on national sovereignty, international economic planning, a radical renovation of the colonial problem—the concept of all colonies being held in common trust for the benefit of the inhabitants.

The outstanding and fascinating fact that emerges from all the speculations about the future of Europe is the absence of any emphasis on "national" aims, as contrasted with "European" aims. All propaganda which might tend to destroy the prospect of a new Europe to which Germany is admitted as an equal seems definitely to be discouraged.

Another thing seriously worth recording is that the thinking of the articulate individuals and groups in Great Britain is infinitely more radical, even more revolutionary than that in Germany and Russia.

I use the word revolutionary not in the sense of chaotic and nihilistic overturn, but in the sense of fundamental reconstruction of the national and international social order.

The concept of the clock-work state of totalitarian Europe is the limit of the Nazi imagination, and apparently the limit of the Russian. The Nazi spokesmen—most recently Dr. Ley, of the Labor Front—are now presenting Nazi Germany as the advance guard of the Socialist revolution, and the Russians are backing them up.

But this Socialist revolution turns out to be nothing except new words to cloak a reactionary form of collectivist imperialism, with all the outworn slogans of "national security" and "pressing national necessities," to buttress and justify it.

The Russians, in addressing Finland and demanding concessions "for Russian safety," do not talk in the language of twentieth century co-operation, but in the terms of nineteenth century power politics.

The Nazi program reveals itself in works—and these works are carried on with the collaboration of Stalin. Stalin is supposed to represent a movement whose slogan has been "Workmen of the World Unite," and which has preached the international solidarity of the human race.

* * *

Now, the Nazis, while they preach social revolution, have, with the collaboration of the Communists, begun moving hundreds of thousands of people out of their homes and into other territories, on the theory that each member of a racial "stock" must be brought to rest on a particular piece of national geography.

This is not socialism but the mysticism of a charlatan faith healer. It is pure quackery. It has nothing to do with any rational thinking whatsoever. It is action in default of any ideas. And it can bring nothing except breakdown and chaos.

Thoughtful people in Britain realize that they must do more than win the war. Winning the war is, perhaps, their lesser problem. The greater one is how to reconstruct Europe out of the appalling mess into which false policies have plunged it.

The most discouraging thing that could happen would be symptoms of a lack of awareness. But there is no such lack. On the contrary, everywhere there are signs of intellectual courage—the definite recognition that an epoch of human history is at an end, and a new world must be born.

The dominant idea seems to be that of a planned economy of free and federated nations—planned, that is to say, in respect of currencies and markets, with the establishment of minimum social standards as part of basic human rights.

If America, out of fear of war, withdraws from consideration of the European scene, America will miss the greatest intellectual and spiritual adventure of the century.

It is all very well for us to say that Europe expects us to save her. Europe, on the contrary, may yet save us—by new acts of the imagination and the will. We have not been doing so well either, during the last 10 years.

CHURCH STEWARDSHIP SESSION NEXT WEEK

'Christian and His Prossessions' Theme of Meetings Monday and Tuesday.

A conference on church stewardship, sponsored by the St. Louis Metropolitan Church Federation and the National Stewardship Council, will be held next Monday and Tuesday at Union Avenue Christian Church, corner of Enright avenue. Thirteen Protestant church representatives will be speakers at the sessions during the two-day conference.

The theme of the conference will be "The Christian and His Possessions," and local clergymen will take part in the formal discussions. Mrs. John F. Shepley will preside at a dinner meeting at the church Tuesday. Principal speakers will be Mrs. Ora Lee Shepherd of Indianapolis; Mrs. Jessie Eubank, Baptist, of Cincinnati, and William H. Leach, Cleveland, editor of "Church Management." Henry P. Chandler, past president of the Chicago Bar Association, will speak at a luncheon meeting at the M. A. C. Tuesday.

Other visitors will be the Rev. M. E. Dodd, Shreveport, La., former president of the Southern Baptist Convention; President Alva W. Taylor of Vanderbilt University; the Rev. B. T. Kemerer, Episcopal Bishop of Duluth, Minn.; the Rev. Mark A. Dawber, secretary of the Home Missions Council, New York; William G. Spencer, president of Franklin College, Franklin, Ind.; Harry S. Meyers, Hillsdale, Mich., secretary of the Stewardship Council; the Rev. C. O. Hawley, Indianapolis; the Rev. William E. Lampe, Philadelphia, and the Rev. C. E. Lemon, Columbia, Mo.

DR. JACOB M. EPSTEIN, RETIRED PHYSICIAN, DIES

He Was Once Acting Superintendent of City Hospital and Served in France in War.

Dr. Jacob M. Epstein, retired physician, died yesterday of a heart ailment at the Veterans' Hospital, where he had been a patient for three weeks. He was 69 years old.

A graduate of Washington University Medical School, Dr. Epstein served for a time as acting superintendent of City Hospital and City Sanitarium. He enlisted in the Medical Corps and spent several months in training camp hospitals before he was sent to France. He remained in France 18 months after the armistice. He was discharged with the rank of Major.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Pearl Epstein, and three sisters and two brothers. Dr. Epstein lived at 5540 Pershing avenue.

MRS. EYERMANN'S ESTATE INVENTORIED AT $289,920

Widow of Banker Named Sister, Sister-in-Law and Brother-in-Law as Beneficiaries.

An inventory of the estate of Mrs. Minnie Eyermann, who died Oct. 4, was filed in Probate Court yesterday, listing assets valued at $289,920. Included are bonds valued at $136,447, corporation stock $97,858, realty assessed at $43,150 and $10,317 in cash, in addition to some notes and chattels.

Mrs. Eyermann, who lived at 4155 Flora place, was the widow of Gottlieb Eyermann Jr., banker, and president of the Eyermann Quarry & Construction Co. The principal beneficiaries named in her will are a sister, Mrs. Lena E. Christen; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Pauline Argurieo, and a brother-in-law, Samuel M. Shaffer. He and the Manufacturers' Bank & Trust Co. are co-executors.

FUNERAL OF NUN TOMORROW

Services for Sister Marcelline Johnson to Be at Webster College.

The funeral of Sister Marcelline Johnson, who died yesterday at Webster College of complications of a paralytic stroke suffered last June, will be tomorrow at 8 a. m. in the college chapel, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

Sister Marcelline, 69 years old, was a member of the Loretto Order. She came to the college to assist with summer instruction, intending to return to New Madrid, Mo., where she had taught elementary school grades for the past 11 years. She was received into the order more than 40 years ago at Loretto, Ky. Surviving are a sister and a brother.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THANKSGIVING eve, a favorite night in St. Louis for launching a debutante, was the occasion last night of one of the largest and most elaborate parties of the current season—the debut ball of Miss Virginia Hinton Lewis at the St. Louis Country Club. On the anniversary of the presentation last year of her older sister, Miss Frances Howell Lewis, the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil A. Lewis was introduced to 850 guests, many of whom danced well into Thanksgiving day.

It was a flower ball. In addition to hundreds of white chrysanthemums provided as prearranged decorations, florists' trucks followed each other in rapid succession until after the receiving line formed to greet the guests, delivering more than 150 vases and baskets filled with blossoms ranging from sprays of delicate moth orchids to long-stemmed chrysanthemums in ribbon-tied containers several feet tall. It was a new high record in flowers sent to a debutante within the memory of Country Club attaches. Flowers varying from white and pastel tints to deeper autumn shades formed a solid tiered wall across the east side of the lounge behind Miss Lewis and her parents. They covered the mantel, all the occasional tables that could be provided, converted the card room into a bower and overflowed into the reception hall, dining rooms and even dressing rooms. One gift of unusual interest was a low white porcelain bowl filled evenly with short-stemmed white daisy chrysanthemums, on which a quartet of porcelain musicians played "Virginia's Serenade"—the title appeared on the music rack of a tiny china piano. White snapdragons were built high at one side. Another was a turquoise blue bowl with purple orchids of half a dozen varieties wired up from a bed of white chrysanthemums.

Blue and white predominated in the decoration of most of the clubhouse. The ceiling of the summer terrace, inclosed for dancing during the social season, was hung with many yards of pale blue sateen, drawn to the center where it was capped with a huge disc on which was painted a French wreath of pink roses with blue streamers. Indirect illumination on the terrace alternated with the frequent turn of an electric switch to produce the effect of either yellow sunlight or pale white moonlight. The blue drapery continued into the orchestra recess, where Ernie Holst, who arrived yesterday from New York, led Jimmy Downey's 28-piece orchestra. Arched doorways leading to the terrace and to the long porch to which the blue and silver bar had been moved, were outlined in pale blue gauze draperies tied back with cellophane and flowers.

Guests arrived late from a dozen dinner parties preceding the ball, but soon after midnight groups of friends were seated at every one of the many small tables spread through the three dining rooms. An hour later a dozen additional tables had to be set up in the lounge. All about them walls were marked at frequent intervals by indirect lights shining through clusters of white chrysanthemums from vase-like containers topping tall fluted pillars. Above them, near the ceiling, borders of huckleberry foliage reached from one end of the club to the other. Chandeliers were concealed under hexagonal mirror shades overhung with greenery.

Supper was served from an elaborate buffet table stretching across one entire end of the main dining room. A centerpiece of lobster was flanked by turkeys and pheasants in plumage standing on wooden plateaus. In front of them were arranged boars' heads, suckling pigs, cold meats and planked fish. At the back were chafing dishes filled with other delicacies. Toward morning a sausage and scrambled egg breakfast ushered in Thanksgiving day.

Miss Lewis wore the gown in which she curtsied to the Veiled Prophet as maid of honor in the Court of Love and Beauty in October. Of white tulle and silver lace over heavy duchesse satin, the silver lace bodice was designed with wide stripes to secure the square decolletage, and the full tulle skirt was paneled in silver lace. From each shoulder fell pale blue moire ribbons which were caught into a bow below the waist line at the back with streamers to the floor. She carried alternately an armful of pink roses, a large colonial boquet of roses and gardenias centered with tiny purple orchids, and orchid sprays.

Mrs. Lewis, her hair curled high, wore striped chartreuse taffeta with a lame bodice brocaded in brown and gold. The circular skirt designed with bustle bows and short shirred sleeves were held wide by crinoline. At her shoulder she wore mauve orchids. Miss Frances Lewis, who stood with her parents and sister in the receiving line, wore peach tinted tulle, the close fitting bodice embroidered with crystals. She, too, wore orchids.

MISS BETSY BAKEWELL

DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs. Edward de Laureal Bakewell, 333 West Madison avenue, Kirkwood. Her engagement to Alexander A. Theis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thies, 6 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves, is announced today.

At least eight of the debutantes are entertaining out-of-town guests, all of whom attended last night's party. The guest of honor has visiting her Miss Alice Heminway of Watertown, Conn., a classmate last year at Residence School, New York. Miss Jane Butler has as her guest Miss Constance Ann McBride of Boston and Miss Frances Simpkins has visiting her Miss Constance Brainard, who will leave today for her home in Hartford, Conn.; Miss Evelyn Johnson of Evansville, Ind., and Miss Aileen Bruch of Cleveland are guests, respectively, of Miss Margaret Ann Imbs and Miss Katharine Alice Antrim, and Miss Lisa Neave of Convent, N. J., was the guest until today of Miss Jean Schock. Others from out of town include Miss Effie Virginia Zeibig's guest, Miss Ellen Graydon of Cincinnati; Miss Nancy Russell's visitor, Miss Betty Jane Nevins of Long Meadow, Mass.; Miss Helen Cronkite, who is visiting Mrs. Benjamin H. Charles, and Mr. and Mrs. John S. McMillan of Lake Forest, Ill. There were also relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mr. Lewis' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Weldon Bailey Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Pio Crespi of Dallas, Tex., and Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Sloan of New York.

Miss Lewis attended Mary Institute and Foxcroft School in Virginia before going to Residence School. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Robert D. Lewis and of the late Mrs. Andrew Melville Reid of Baltimore.

Miss Kathryn Angela Wahl, daughter of Mrs. Edwin L. Wahl, 4445 Lindell boulevard, and the late Mr. Wahl, became the bride of Joseph Richard Yoch this morning at the St. Louis Cathedral. The Rev. Alfred Thompson performed the ceremony at 10 o'clock mass. Mr. Yoch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob B. Yoch, 3229 Copelin avenue.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her brother, John B. Wahl. Her white satin gown had lace insertions at the shoulders of the long fitted sleeves. The neckline, which came to a V in front, had a lace yoke at the back. The three-tiered tulle veil, secured to a tiara of pearl orange blossoms, fell the full length of the train. She carried lilies of the valley and white roses.

The bride's two sisters, Miss Mary and Miss Alice Wahl, were attendants. Miss Mary, in aqua-colored faille silk, carried a bouquet of talisman roses. Miss Alice was gowned in peach and her flowers were Queen Mary roses.

James J. Yoch was his brother's best man and John Chevigney of Fairfield, Ill., groomsman. Ushers were Arthur Lyons, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Edward Yoch of Belleville, Ill., a cousin; Bard Northway and Harmon McCauley.

A breakfast for members of the wedding party and the families was served after the ceremony at the Park Plaza. Mr. Yoch and his bride left for a honeymoon of several weeks in Mexico. They will live at 1014 Moorlands drive, on their return.

Miss Caroline Chamberlain and John William L. Todd were married yesterday afternoon at the first Congregational Church of Webster Groves. The Rev. Ervine Inglis performed the ceremony at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Todd has been a member of the faculty of Webster Groves High School for several years. Mr. Todd lives at 21 Swon avenue, Webster Groves.

The wedding of Miss Jane C. Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Shreve Carter, 926 Leland drive, Webster Groves, to Meade A. Wilson will take place this afternoon at 5 o'clock, at Christ Church Cathedral, with Dean Sidney E. Sweet officiating. Mr. Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Wilson, 3943 Shaw boulevard.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father. She will wear a costume ensemble of moss green wool, the jacket of which is trimmed with ocelot fur. With her suit she will wear a matching turban, black accessories and a corsage of orchids. Loren Wilson will be best man for his brother.

After a honeymoon in the North, Mr. Wilson and his bride will live at the home of her parents. She is a great-great-granddaughter of Capt. Henry Miller Shreve, the founder of Shreveport, La., and is related to the Carter and Randolph families of Virginia and the O'Fallon family of St. Louis.

An exhibition of paintings by Myra Maunee Deibel opened Monday at the Noonan-Kocian Galleries, Tenth and Locust streets, and will continue through Nov. 30.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD DE LAUREAL BAKEWELL, 333 West Madison avenue, Kirkwood, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Betsy Bakewell, and Alexander A. Theis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Theis, 6 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves.

The news was contained in Thanksgiving day notes sent special delivery this morning to close friends. The wedding is planned for early spring.

Miss Bakewell is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bakewell, 4239 McPherson avenue, and of Mr. and Mrs. Ashby Miller of Winchester, Va., who arrived a few days ago to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with the prospective bride's family.

A graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Miss Betsy attended Washington University for a year. Her sorority is Kappa Alpha Theta.

Mr. Theis attended the University of Missouri and is now studying engineering at Washington University. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

Miss Grace White Schotten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Schotten, 25 West Brentmoor Park, will be the Thanksgiving day debutante. Miss Schotten will be presented to society at a tea dance which her parents will give this afternoon, at the St. Louis Woman's Club from 5 to 7 o'clock. Included among the guests will be all the debutantes and their escoorts.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Blackwell Hocker, 39 Portland place, left yesterday morning by motor to spend Thanksgiving in Huntington, W. Va. They are guests of Otho Reese.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Hocker attended a Thanksgiving eve ball at the Huntington Country Club, and today will celebrate the holiday at a dinner, a tea and several smaller parties. They are expected home Monday.

Invitations were received yesterday from Mr. and Mrs. John J. Nangle, 5092 Westminster place, and their daughter, Miss Mary Kathryn Nangle, for a threater party Thursday night, Dec. 28, in honor of Miss Betty Camp, debutante daughter of Mrs. Jules Dubrouillet Camp. Miss Nangle is attending the Stuart School, Boston.

Cards were also received from Dr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Lonsway and Mr. and Mrs. Con P. Curran Jr. for the debut tea dance of their daughters, Miss Lucy Lonsway and Miss Dial Curran, Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 6, at the St. Louis Woman's Club.

Invitations will be issued early next week for a tea dance at the St. Louis Woman's Club at which Mr. and Mrs. Emil R. Hensel of the Park Plaza will introduce their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth. Guests are to be invited from 5 to 9 o'clock. Supper will be served during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lide Jordan have sent invitations for a tea from 5 to 7 o'clock Saturday, Dec. 2, at Glen Echo Country Club. The Jordan home is at Clayton and McKnight roads.

INSTRUMENT FINDS 9 RADIUM NEEDLES IN HOSPITAL REFUSE

Professor's Homemade Finder Recovers Lost Element at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 23 (AP)—Nine lost radium needles valued at $1440 were found among 900 pounds of hot ashes, tin cans, hairpins, glass and wire yesterday by Prof. Frank E. Hoecker's homemade radium finder.

The needles, wrapped in adhesive tape, were thrown into a wastebasket Tuesday by a maid at General Hospital. The loss was discovered Tuesday afternoon by a staff physician. He called the boiler room yesterday and ordered that nothing be removed from the incinerator.

Professor Hoecker of Kansas City University set up his radium finder near the incinerator, which was full of ashes. He took a look through the eyepiece.

"There's radium in that incinerator," he said.

He and the physician took a hose, cooled the ashes and took out a bucketful. The instrument was held close, but no radium was found. They took another bucketful, then another, and another.

The twentieth bucket showed radium. They took a cupful of ashes out of the bucket. Nothing there, nor in the next or the next. In the fifth teaspoonful of the forty-fifth cupful they found a needle of radium. After examining 30 bucketsful, they recovered the last needle.

WILLIAM W. HUNT FUNERAL WILL BE HELD SATURDAY

Manufacturer, 72, Stricken Shortly Before He Was to Appear in Ice Skating Review.

Funeral services for William W. Hunt, president of the Combination Trap Manufacturing Co., will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at Lupton Mortuary, 7233 Delmar boulevard, with burial at Lonejack, Mo., his birthplace. He died yesterday of heart disease at Missouri Baptist Hospital.

Mr. Hunt, 72 years old, suffered a heart attack last Thursday shortly before a scheduled appearance as one of the oldest skaters in the city at an ice review in the Arena. He had joined the St. Louis Skating Club three years ago to continue a youthful interest in the sport.

The trap company was organized after Mr. Hunt came here five years ago from Kansas City, where he was a sales representative. He lived at 46 Glen road, Webster Groves. Surviving are his wife and four daughters, including Mrs. N. T. Paterson of the Glen road address.

CITY BEGINS PLANTING 50,000 GIFT TULIP, HYACINTH BULBS

Most of Flowers in Holland Company's Good-Will Offering Placed in Forest Park.

The gift to the city of St. Louis of 40,000 tulip and 10,000 hyacinth bulbs by a Holland bulb firm, will greatly enhance the spring display of flowers in the parks and public squares of the city, Ludwig Baumann, city forester, said yesterday. The bulbs, given by the Holland Bulb Co. of Haarlem, Holland, were sent as a good-will offering, and the city only had to pay the freight of $185.

If purchased on the open market, Baumann said, the 35 varieties of tulips and 13 types of hyacinths would cost about $3000. The city has been planting approximately 2500 bulbs yearly, he said.

The tulips, of many types and colors, will be planted near the Jewel Box in Forest Park, at the Kingshighway-Lindell entrance to the park, and on the triangle at Vandeventer avenue and Lindell boulevard. The hyacinths will be planted on Government Hill in Forest Park. Planting has already started, Baumann said, and the flowers will bloom in early spring.

SYMPHONY TO INTRODUCE MEXICAN NOVELTY NUMBER

To Play "El Salon Mejico" at Concerts Tomorrow and Saturday.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in concerts tomorrow afternoon and Saturday evening at Municipal Auditorium will play for the first time here Aaron Copland's "El Salon Mejico." The program also includes Richard Strauss' "Thus Spake Zarathustra" and Mozart's "Prague" symphony.

"El Salon Mejico," a novelty selection employing Mexican folk tunes, was written by Copland in 1936 after a visit to a Mexico City dance hall. Mozart's "Prague" was last played here four years ago.

The program:

Overture, "The Marriage of Figaro"—Mozart
Symphony No. 38 in D Major "Prague"—Mozart
1 Adagio; Allegro
2 Andante con moto
3 Presto
"El Salon Mejico"—Copland
"Also Sprach Zarathustra"—Strauss

4 CONVICTED OF FRAUD IN INVESTMENT DEAL

Ex-Officer of Equitable Trust One of Them; Sentencing Dec. 6.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—A Federal jury convicted Lucian A. Eddy, former vice-president of the Equitable Trust Co., of mail fraud, conspiracy and violation of the Securities and Exchange Act yesterday.

Three other individuals and two corporations were also convicted on one or more charges. United States District Judge Edward A. Conger will impose sentence Dec. 6. Other defendants are: Samuel Sobel, a lawyer; Edward E. Embree, an investment counselor; Ernest K. Schwartz, Kenyon & Co., Inc., and the Weil Management Co., Inc. The indictment charged conspiracy to acquire stock control of a group of investment trusts and the looting of their portfolios of about $1,000,000. The trial started Oct. 4.

U. S. OIL MAN ARRANGING TO SELL RUSSIA MILLION BBLS.

J. Paul Getty Back From Berlin Where He Discussed Sending Tankers to Siberian Port.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—J. Paul Getty, Los Angeles oil man and hotel owner, returned on the Italian liner Conte di Savoia today after negotiating with Soviet buyers in Berlin for the sale of a million barrels of California oil to be used in Siberia.

Getty said it would cost less to send oil from California to Vladivostok than from Russia's own Baku oil fields. He was confident the deal would be completed.

While in Europe, Getty married Louise Dudley (Teddie) Lynch, 26 years old, one of the first socially prominent girls to sing in a night club. The wedding took place Sept. 14 in Rome, where the bride had been studying for an operatic career. She remained abroad to complete her studies.

Also aboard the Conte di Savoia, which brought 842 passengers, including 361 Americans, was Dr. Richard Beer-Hoffman, 73-year-old refugee poet, who said his 40-room home in Vienna was taken from him under the severe Jewish tax laws.

EAST ST. LOUIS BILL FILED TO BAR 10-CENT TAXICABS

AFL Officer Says Unions Will Oppose Measure at Hearing Next Week.

A bill designed to eliminate 10-cent taxicabs in East St. Louis was introduced in City Council yesterday.

The bill would require taxi owners to carry $10,000 insurance for one passenger and $20,000 for two or more passengers, $1000 property damage insurance, and to pay an annual license fee of $100 for the first five cabs, with $20 for each additional cab. It also fixes a fare of 25 cents for one to three passengers, and 10 cents for each additional passenger.

Michael Hannigan, a business agent for the AFL Teamsters' Union, said the bill would be opposed by unions at a hearing next Wednesday. He said it would drive 60 cabs from the streets and take away the jobs of 200 men.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

First Cold of Season Stopped Fighting on Western Front—British Battleship Lost —American Troops Left Mexico.

By CARLOS F. HURD
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE first intense cold of the season brought the fighting to a standstill on the West front in France and Flanders, 25 years ago this week. With the mud and slush of the trenches icebound, French and English soldiers who had been through weeks of heavy fighting were going home—"blighty" to the Tommies—on short leaves.

In Poland, daily reports indicated that the Russians were again gainers in the see-saw of advances and retreats; but Petrograd, cautious in its official bulletins, did not claim any decisive result, though announcing that a German army corps had been captured at Lodz.

Turkey's troops were near the Suez Canal, and Egypt reported Turkish and German efforts to arouse the Egyptians against Great Britain. The United States was questioning Turkey as to the reason for shots fired from the forts of Symrna, Asia Minor, at the American cruiser Tennessee. The Turks said the shots were "the customary warning" to neutral ships that the port was closed to navigation.

Efforts to Win Bulgaria.

A diplomatic battle for the support of Bulgaria was in progress between the Allies and the Central Powers. The Allies were seeking to restore the old Balkan Confederacy, shattered by the second Balkan war; the Germans strove to keep Bulgaria hostile to its recent enemy, Serbia. The latter effort was to succeed in the autumn or 1915, and Bulgaria was to be the weakest link, and the first to break, in the Germanic military chain.

German-occupied Brussels was a scene of gay night life, with cafes and theaters filled. This did not relieve the condition of the Belgian people, thousands of whom were without sources of food supply. The Rockefeller Foundation landed a cargo of foodstuffs for Belgium at Rotterdam, Holland, where the city officials made the occasion one of festivity, and took American representatives to a football game. It was announced that the Foundation would send food to France, Serbia and Austria.

David Lloyd George, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, was reported suffering from the effects of overwork; there was danger that he would break down if he were not relieved of some of his burdens. Today, having outlived most of his official associates, Lloyd George is a vigorous critic of Government war policies.

British Battleship Lost.

The British battleship Bulwark was lost by an explosion near the mouth of the Thames. More than 700 of the crew were lost. There was belief that the explosion was the work of a spy.

The American force of occupation, under Gen. Fred Funston, left Vera Cruz, Mexico, where it had been since April. American officials, who had been in charge of the Vera Cruz Custom House, took with them the receipts of the customs, to be paid over later to a stable Mexican Government, as the Villa-Carranza feud still divided the nation. The resignation of Victoriano Huerta as Provisional President, which was the chief object of the occupation, had been enforced, hence the American force could depart without having obtained its demand for a salute, as an apology for an affront to an officer of the United States Navy.

MISSOURI DEMOCRATS FORM GROUP TO RAISE PARTY FUND

John J. Nangle Will Direct Campaign; National Total of $750,000 Sought.

A fund drive organization to solicit money in Missouri for the Democratic National Committee was perfected yesterday afternoon at a meeting at the Jefferson Hotel. The party is soliciting money in all states for a fund of $750,000 to meet general organization expenses and the expenses of the Democratic national convention next year.

The Missouri campaign is under the direction of John J. Nangle, treasurer of the Democratic State committee. Miss Lydia Lee was chosen chairman of the women's division.

WORKHOUSE FOR MOTORIST

Charged with driving while intoxicated, Ernest Aulbert, unemployed painter, was fined $90 and sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse by City Judge Frank E. Mathews yesterday. Aulbert was arrested Nov. 8 when his automobile collided with a truck in the 3100 block of Delmar boulevard. Arresting officers testified he staggered and appeared to have been drinking when they arrived on the scene.

Aulbert, who is 37 years old and resides at 8041 Church road, denied he had been drinking and said he would appeal.

ELECTION BOARD OFFICE HOURS EXTENDED TO AID SHOPPERS

Open for Registration of Voters From 8 A. M. to 6 P. M., Until Christmas.

Office hours of the Election Board staff have been extended, effective Friday, until Christmas, in order to provide shoppers with opportunity to register as voters before or after visiting the stores. Five days a week the office at 208 South Twelfth street will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., instead of 9 to 5, and on Saturdays it will be open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., instead of 9 to noon.

There are 345,930 voters listed on the books now, but election officials have estimated that 80,000 additional persons are eligible to register. The next regular election will be the State primary Aug. 6, 1940. The longer hours will be for the benefit of voters who have moved since enrolling and desire to transfer their registrations, as well as those not now on the books.

BORAH, VANDENBERG, URGE JAPANESE PACT

Idaho Senator Says It Is Time This Country Moved to Protect Its Commercial Interests.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—Two Republican Senators—Borah of Idaho and Vandenberg of Michigan—urged today that the United States work for a new commercial treaty with Japan without regard to controversies growing out of the Chinese-Japanese war.

"I shall contribute everything I can toward bringing about a fair and reasonable treaty between the United States and Japan to take the place of the old treaty which expires Jan. 26," said Borah, senior Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Borah made it plain to reporters that he would approach the question of a new treaty from a commercial viewpoint only. He added that if any political considerations were involved, it should be up to Japan to suggest them.

Vandenberg, who advocated abrogation of the old treaty, said that the United States should be exploring "realistically" the possibility of settling its Far Eastern problems by agreement. He said that he favored doing away with the old treaty only to "untie our hands" to negotiate a new one.

"If no agreement is possible it will then be time enough to talk belligerently," he said in a statement. "But to permit our treaty relations with Japan to lapse next January without an earnest effort to solve our differences pacifically is to invite major trouble without an attempt to avoid it."

The State Department notified Japan nearly four months ago that the United States would abrogate its 1911 commercial treaty on Jan. 26. By that time Congress is expected to consider a proposal to put an embargo on American shipments to Japan.

Although Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said yesterday that negotiations for a new treaty had not begun, Borah said he thought it was high time this country made some move to protect its commercial interests.

"I notice," he said, "that our trade with Japan is increasing very decidedly. We are not going to have so much trade on our hands that we can safely throw any of it aside without a very sound reason for doing so."

MOTHER IS DENIED CUSTODY OF GIRL FOSTER-PARENT KEPT

Court Gives Child, 11, Into Care of Board of Guardians.

Ethel Mae Johnson, 11 years old, was returned to the care of the Board of Children's Guardians yesterday by Circuit Judge Michael J. Scott, who overruled motions for custody of the child filed by her mother, Mrs. Wilma Johnson Jenkins, and her foster-mother, Mrs. Myrtle Patterson.

Judge Scott indicated that the board could, at a later date, return the child to Mrs. Patterson, from whose home at 3401 Union boulevard she was taken last August when the mother filed a custody action.

Mrs. Patterson had taken care of the child since 1932, when Ethel Mae was declared an abandoned child. She adopted the girl in Texas in 1938. The mother lives at 1216 St. Ange avenue.

EX-CONVICT FOUND GUILTY OF ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

Jury Fixes Louis Garavaglia's Penalty at Two and One-Half Years in Prison.

Louis Garavaglia, former convict, was found guilty of attempted robbery in Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin's court yesterday by a jury which fixed the penalty at two and one-half years in prison.

Garavaglia was one of two men who attempted to hold up a tavern at 6655 Manchester avenue June 21. Robert Creed, also a former convict, was acquitted last month of a charge of assault to kill in connection with the attempted holdup but is being held for trial on a charge of attempted robbery.

The estate of Mrs. Emma Stifel, who died Oct. 23, is valued at $50,040 in an inventory filed in Probate Court yesterday. Bonds and realty constitute the principal assets.

In her will Mrs. Stifel, who lived at 2917 Lafayette avenue, left charitable bequests totaling $3050 and divided the bluk of the residue of her property among relatives. She was the widow of August C. Stifel, stove dealer.

DAVID L. LAWRENCE TO DENY GRAFT DEAL

Pennsylvania Democratic Chairman to Take Stand in Own Defense.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 23 (AP) —Announcement that David L. Lawrence, Democratic chairman of Pennsylvania, would deny from the witness stand that he ever demanded or received $5000 in cash as blackmail money or as a political contribution from a gravel dealer was made today by Lawrence's counsel.

Spurgeon Bowser, former president of the Pioneer Materials Co., has testified at Lawrence's trial on blackmail and conspiracy charges that he paid the money to Lawrence after repeated demands for twice that amount. The payment was made, he said, when Lawrence was secretary of the Commonwealth in Pennsylvania's recent Democratic administration.

O. K. Eaton, the Democratic chairman's attorney, made known his plan for Lawrence to testify in his own defense as he took up for the second day a cross-examination of Bowser.

"Dave Lawrence never got any money from Bowser and he'll say that on the witness stand," Eaton asserted.

Bowser testified yesterday that when there were reports of a grand jury investigation Lawrence told him:

"I'm not worried about myself. When I took this job I was told that I probably would be indicted several times. You never asked me to do anything wrong and I never have done anything wrong."

NUNS OF ITALIAN DESCENT FOR ST. DOMENICO HOME

Agreement Made That They Shall Replace Those of German Order; Suit Dismissed.

A suit filed in 1934 in the name of Attorney-General Roy McKittrick to compel trustees of the estate of Mrs. Mary Signaigo to direct modification of management of an orphanage established by her will was dismissed yesterday with consent of the litigants by Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley.

The orphanage, St. Domenico Italian Home, 1340 Partridge avenue, was opened in 1930 in charge of a German order of nuns, the Sisters of Precious Blood, according to the dismissed petition, German management, the petition set out, was not in accordance with terms of the will. In a signed agreement presented to the court today, the order agrees to station only nuns of Italian descent at the home.

Mrs. Signaigo, widow of a retail grocer, died in 1921 leaving an estate valued at $151,644.

HANS LINNE, COMPOSER, DIES

Once Was Conductor in Vienna, Later in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23 (AP). —Dr. Hans S. Linne, 76 years old, music composer and conductor in the gay Vienna of Emperor Franz-Josef, died in comparative poverty at a San Francisco hospital yesterday.

He came to America in 1896, made successful concert tours, and in San Francisco became conductor of the People's Symphony Orchestra.

ASSETS OF OLDEST ORGAN BUILDERS BRING $21,707

Patents, Dies, Machinery and Tools of George Kilgen Sons, Inc., Auctioned Off.

Patents, dies, machinery and tools of George Kilgen Sons, Inc., the oldest organ building concern in the United States, have been sold for $21,707 to about 75 purchasers in a liquidating sale. The firm has retired from business under terms of a stipulation settling a receivership suit against the company.

Among the purchasers were representatives of the Kilgen Organ Co., 429 South Twelfth boulevard, organized recently by Eugene R. Kilgen, a grandson of the founder of the old company, and the Kilgen Associates, Inc., 3823 Laclede avenue, formed by former employes of the retiring concern.

The George Kilgen company was ordered dissolved Oct. 17 by Circuit Judge Ernest F. Oakley after its stockholders agreed to the liquidation. The firm was established in New York in 1851 and moved to St. Louis in 1873. It had continuous existence under control of the Kilgen family since 1640, when Sebastian Kilgen began building organs in Germany. The sale was conducted by Ben J. Selkirk & Sons, auctioneers.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., FUNDS DIVERTED, GRAND JURY FINDS

Gov. Vanderbilt Moves to Investigate Finances of Democratic City.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 23 (AP).—Gov. Vanderbilt (Rep.) moved last night to meet a grand jury request for an investigation of financial affairs and election practices in Pawtucket, a Democratic stronghold of 70,000 population.

In response to Vanderbilt's request that statutes be searched for authority under which action may be taken, Attorney-General Louis V. Jackvony replied that he would transmit the jury's report to a Legislative Committee.

The jury reported that its information "indicates a diversion of Municipal funds for private purposes, which is or should be illegal and which demands investigation by another grand jury or some other authority."

A special Thanksgiving day mass was celebrated at the Madeleine, fashionable Paris church.

FRUIT CAKE SALE FOR BLIND

A holiday sale of fruit cakes is being conducted by the United Workers for the Blind, an organization of totally blind persons, with headquarters at 6454 Page boulevard. The cakes are made by a baking company, and the organization receives 65 per cent of the gross amount obtained by the sale. The cakes are sold at $4 for a three-pound cake and $6 for a five-pound cake. Telephone orders are received at DElmar 0900.

The organization aids its 73 blind members in times of financial stress, when their earnings do not suffice to supplement their state pensions of $25 a month.

MOST FOOD STAMPS SPENT ON EGGS, FRUIT

Protective Foods Bought in 80 Pct. of Purchases Under New Federal Plan.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Slightly more than 80 per cent of the food stamps distributed free to relief recipients in five cities, under the new program of the Department of Agriculture for the reduction of surpluses of farm products, are spent on protective foods such as butter, eggs and fresh fruits, results of a six-weeks survey indicate, according to Milo Perkins, in charge of the program.

The remaining 20 per cent of the stamps were used for flour, corn meal, rice and beans, Perkins said. These stamps, colored blue, can be used only for foods on the official surplus list. Orange stamps, sold to relief families, can be applied to the purchase of any foods.

The official surplus list at the time of the survey included butter, eggs, oranges, grapefruit, peaches, pears, cabbages, peas, tomatoes, onions, dried prunes, white flour, graham flour, corn meal, rice and dried beans. Nutritionists do not classify the last five items as protective foods.

Evidence that protective foods have increased in importance in the diets of city and village families since 1885 is contained in a table in the current Yearbook of the Department of Agriculture. The tabulation reveals sharp declines in grain products and meats in the diets and a rise in four groups of protective foods. The statistics were based on three classes of families, those spending $1.25 to $1.87 a person a week, those spending $1.88 to $2.49, and the others, $2.50 to $3.12.

Families spending $1.25 to $1.87 a person a week bought 294 pounds of grain products for each individual in the period 1885 to 1904, but dropped consistently to 155 pounds in 1935-37. Meat, fish and poultry consumption dropped from 123 pounds in the earlier period to 85 pounds. Increases were noted in milk and its products, from 41 quarts to 118 quarts; eggs, 12 dozen increased to 16 dozen; leafy, green, and yellow vegetables from 24 pounds to 53 pounds, and tomatoes and citrus fruits from 10 pounds to 45 pounds.

Shifts in the medium expenditures and above average groups were generally in the same direction but not quite so pronounced. The drop in grain products consumption in the families spending on the 1935 basis of from $2.50 to $3.12 a person a week (a fairly liberal allowance) was from 218 pounds to 174 pounds; meats down from 204 pounds to 139 pounds. Increases were: milk group, 84 quarts to 191 quarts; eggs, 20 dozen to 27 dozen; vegetables, 48 to 95 pounds, and tomatoes and citrus fruits, 59 to 98 pounds.

The table shows that the lowest of the three income groups is now buying more milk and more protective vegetables than the more liberal spenders were getting in the 1885 to 1904 period, and almost as many eggs and as much of the protective tomato and citrus fruits as well.

'GOLDEN ANGEL' TO TAKE STAND AGAINST KUHN

Woman, Whose Love Letters From Bund Leader Were Read, to Testify in Rebuttal.

HE NOW SAYS SHE'S NOT 'VERY FINE LADY'

Makes Statement After Prosecution Puts Into Record His Protestations of Undying Love.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP).—The proceedings in Fritz Kuhn's larceny trial await the appearance of Mrs. Florence Camp, former "golden angel" of Kuhn's transcontinental correspondence but now considerably fallen from his grace. Kuhn is head of the German-American Bund.

"I thought Mrs. Camp was a very fine lady, but I found out she isn't," Kuhn admitted yesterday, after the prosecution had read into the records three of Kuhn's letters to her studded with protestations of undying love. The Court was in recess today.

Kuhn admitted yesterday he had lied to Mrs. Camp in 1938 by telling her he had divorced his wife in 1934 (he's still married), and an admission that he lied when he testified, yesterday morning that he never had told Mrs. Camp he was divorced.

Mrs. Camp to Be Called.

The State has announced Mrs. Camp will be called, as a rebuttal witness against Kuhn, who is accused of stealing money from the Bund.

The appearance of the letters obviously was the cause of Kuhn's turning against the woman he had said he loved "with my whole soul and body."

Assistant District Attorney Herman McCarthy asked when Kuhn found out Mrs. Camp isn't a "very fine lady," Kuhn replied:

"I found out right now."

He had lied, he said, to shield Mrs. Camp, as well as himself.

Through most of the day's session, he had squirmed and perspired under cross-examination but stuck wearily to the contention that his relationship with Mrs. Camp was "very, very friendly" and nothing more. This despite a note, written on shipboard in February, 1938, in which he begged her to "become my beloved wife." He said that was "only in fun."

Purpose of Introducing Letters.

The letters were permitted in evidence under the State's argument that such letter-writing would aid in developing the claim that among Kuhn's alleged embezzlements from the Bund was some $700 paid to move Mrs. Camp's furniture across the country.

Kuhn's "leadership principle" of the Bund administration, under which he maintains he had the right to use Bund funds for any purpose, was brought out again in cross-examination.

Under questioning by the Court, Kuhn declared he felt a responsibility to Bund members in the use he made of the organization's funds, but that the only accounting he made were voluntary.

He insisted there was nothing inconsistent between this responsibility and the leadership principle of control.

MINNESOTA STATE OFFICIAL FOUND GUILTY OF MISCONDUCT

Governor Orders Removal of Conservation Commissioner, Accused of Assessing Employes.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 23 (AP).—Gov. Harold Stassen today found Herman C. Wenzel, suspended State Conservation Commissioner, guilty of misconduct in office and formally ordered his removal.

Among the charges against Wenzel were that he carried on a systematic plan of political assessment among conservation Department employes; that he condoned the practice of illegal splitting of requisitions to avoid advertising for bids, and that persons who spent much of their time in political activity were paid with department funds. Wenzel was suspended April 25, when he refused to resign, maintaining he had committed no wrongful act. He has said he would appeal to the State Supreme Court.

He was a Farmer-Laborite appointed before the present Republican State administration was elected a year ago.

$206,000 BID IS LOWEST ON HORSE SHOE LAKE CHANNEL

$27,000 Over Estimate, Offer Is Referred to East Side Levee Engineering Committee.

G. Locke Tarlton, Contractor, Inc., was the low bidder at $206,882 for the construction of a flood control channel at Horseshoe Lake when bids were opened yesterday by the East Side Levee District.

The bid, $27,000 over estimate, was referred to the engineering committee for action. The project calls for an overflow channel 3000 feet long and 150 feet wide, to connect the lake with an open channel leading to the Cahokia Creek sewer.

The construction will be part of a $500,000 flood control program voted in 1937.

CENTRAL AMERICANS PROMISE CO-OPERATION IN DEFENSES

12 Congressmen Tell of Assurances Given Them During Panama Canal Visit.

GUATEMALA CITY, Nov. 23 (AP).—Twelve United States Senators and Representatives, returning from an inspection of the Panama Canal, said today they had been assured of Central American co-operation for strengthening defense of this hemisphere.

The group, which has visited several countries, planned to fly to Mexico City today and possibly arrange an interview with President Lazaro Cardenas.

Representative Paul W. Shafer (Rep.), Michigan, said, "in efforts to strengthen the United States' defenses in this area we need Central American co-operation, which has been promised.

"We intend to try to help these countries in turn by introducing legislation whereby the United States will help Central American republics stabilize their currencies and enable them to resist economic pressure from European and Asiatic countries."

Shafer said a four-day inspection of the Canal Zone had convinced the party that new military roads were needed.

COURT ORDERS NEGRO TEACHER BE PAID AS MUCH AS WHITE

U. S. District Judge in Maryland Rules Against Salary Discrimination on Racial Basis.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 23 (AP).—Negro teachers in Maryland won the opening round yesterday of a court fight against salary discrimination based on racial differences.

In the first test case of its kind to reach a United States Court, District Judge Chestnut issued an injunction restraining the Anne Arundel County school board from paying Negro teachers less than whites in comparable jobs unless ability and qualification of the teachers differed.

Walter Mills, Negro principal, testified he was paid $1050 a year for doing work equivalent to that performed by white principals who received $1800.

Judge Chestnut said the evidence showed "unlawful discrimination" in Mills' case, in violation of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution.

COMMUNIST EDITOR OF JEWISH NEWSPAPER DIES IN NEW YORK

Moissaye Joseph Olgin, Fugitive From Czarist Russia in 1914, Suffers Heart Attack.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (AP). — Moissaye Joseph Olgin, 61 years old, editor of the Jewish Daily Morning Freiheit, and a leader in the Communist party, died of a heart attack in his home yesterday.

Olgin fled from Russia to the United States in 1914. He was constantly at odds with the Russian authorities under the Czar and was frequently jailed for writing against the Government. He was born at Kiev, studied at the University of Kiev and took post graduate work at Heidelberg.

Olgin was the author of many books on international socialism and Belle letters. His works on "Why Communism" and "Trotskyism—Counterrevolution in Disguise" were translated into several languages and sold more than a million copies.

FLOOD CONTROL FOR FIVE ILLINOIS RIVERS DISCUSSED

Various Projects Represented at Peoria Meeting Called by War Department Engineers.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 23 (AP). — Flood control plans for five river valleys in Illinois were discussed at a meeting Tuesday called by War Department Engineers. Approximately 200 persons were present at the session presided over by Maj. I. N. Karrick of the Chicago Engineer District, representing conservationists, flood control and recreational projects from the Illinois River Valley, Kickapoo Creek, the Vermilion River Valley, the Iroquois River Valley and the Kankakee River Valley.

Congressman Everett Dirksen, Pekin Republican, the principal speaker, told those present they should get together and speak loud enough for Congress to hear their pleas.

Roy E. Bennett, from the soil conservation agency in Washington, said both the War and Agricultural departments are interested in flood control measures as a part of the soil conservation movement. The meeting adjourned without definite action.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., POLICE MAKE RAIDS ON OWN TIME

They Enter Six Alleged Saloons; Men Deplore Their Lack of Leadership.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 23 (AP).—Eight city policemen raided six alleged liquor selling places on their own time last night, then deplored their department's lack of leadership.

"We have decided to end the humiliation and embarrassment which has come to this department because of lack of leadership," declared Patrolman Cecil Kessick, spokesman. "The raids tonight are only the beginning. We will continue to make raids on our own time in the future and continue to enforce the law."

The men made the raids after they had completed their full tours of duty walking beats.

GUARD SET OVER OFFICE OF DECEASED CONGRESSMAN

Posted at Request of J. Will Taylor's Widow; Without Precedent, Officials Think.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—Police are keeping a day and night guard outside the office of the late Representative J. Will Taylor of Tennessee, but the reason is not known. Officials said Taylor's widow had telephoned Kenneth Romeyn, House sergeant-at arms, Tuesday night from her home in LaFollette, Tenn., and requested that the guard be posted and no one permitted to enter the office. It was not clear whether the bar would apply to Taylor's secretarial force.

At Romney's home, it was said Mrs. Taylor gave no specific reason for her request but indicated she desired the guard maintained until an administrator of her husband's affairs arrived.

In Tennessee, Mrs. Taylor was ill and could not be reached for comment but the eldest daughter, Elizabeth Taylor, told reporters she would go to Washington in a few days as Mrs. Taylor's agent.

Officials in charge of the House office buildings said they recalled no parallel case.

OLD AGE ASSISTANCE GIVEN TO 76,170 PERSONS IN STATE

Social Security Commission Reports Total $45,256,791 in Unemployment Trust Fund.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP).—Missouri had a total of $45,256,791 in its unemployment trust fund on Aug. 31, the Social Security Commission announces. Withdrawals by the State for the 1939-40 fiscal year through August totaled $900,000, but during the same time the State deposited $4,650,000.

During August the Social Security Board certified 62 claims for payments at the age of 65 years, amounting to $5380 or an average of $86.78 each. A total of 13,703 new employe accounts were established for old age insurance during August, bringing the Missouri total number of accounts to 1,262,585.

The board disclosed that in July there were 76,170 persons in the State receiving old age assistance, 23,754 obtaining aid for dependent children, 3655 blind receiving assistance and 32,707 cases receiving general relief.

ONTARIO PREMIER BELITTLES WAR EFFORTS OF CANADA

Says Modern Mechanized Force of 2000 Could Lick Whole Dominion Army.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Nov. 23 (Canadian Press.)—Premier Hepburn of Ontario declared last night that in the United States some people "are beginning to laugh at Canada's war efforts."

"I don't think the war is being prosecuted in the way Canadians want it prosecuted," he said at a banquet. "We can't hide behind the American eagle and certainly we are not making the progress we should.

"A modern, mechanized force of 2000 men could lick the whole Canadian army today, and I don't mean anything disparaging to the Canadian forces, but they are not getting a break and are not getting the training and equipment they must have.

"Why, some of them haven't been issued a change of underwear since they signed up."

MUSSOLINI CALLS MEETING OF FASCIST COUNCIL DEC. 7

Session Expected to Discuss War Problems, Including Conflict's Effect on Italy's Trade.

ROME, Nov. 23 (AP).—Premier Mussolini today summoned the Fascist Grand Council to meet at 10 p. m. Dec. 7 in the Palazzo Venezia.

There was no immediate indication whether Italy's highest policy-forming body had been called to consider the international situation or internal problems.

Foreign observers, however, expressed a belief that Mussolini probably would lay war problems before the council, perhaps with a view of defining further Italy's position. The conflict is vitally affecting the country's trade, maritime traffic, finances, industry and economic situation.

BOY RETURNING FROM SCHOOL HURT WHEN HIT BY STREET CAR

Robert Jensen, 5, of University City, Suffers Head Injuries, Is Taken to Hospital.

Robert Jensen, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave A. Jensen, 7069 Westmoreland drive, University City, suffered a head injury yesterday when he was struck by a Kirkwood-Ferguson street car at Williams avenue.

The boy, who was returning home from school, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where his condition was described as serious. A. C. Wehmueller, operator of the street car, told police the boy ran against the side of the car.

GLENN DEMANDS OPEN PRIMARY

CHICAGO, Nov. 23 (AP). — Otis F. Glenn, candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator, called for an open primary Monday night and accused some Republican party leaders of attempting to force a ticket on the party. In a campaign address before a South Side women's organization, he urged an equal chance for all candidates and attacked any move by G. O. P. leaders to pick a slate of candidates.

Glenn's attack on "so-called bosses" came a few days after a group of Central Illinois Republican county chairmen meeting in Springfield urged the Illinois Republican County Chairmen's Association to reserve the right to pick a slate. A similar move was voted down, however, by Northern Illinois G. O. P. chairmen.

Don't Take My Word for It
By Frank Colby

EX marks the Spot.

Today we offer three words which usually are pronunciation casualties; that is to say, they suffer dislocated accents in the average vocabulary. They are: Exquisite, Eczema and Exigency.

Do not say "ex-SQUIZ-it, ex-ZEE-ma," or "ex-IJ-en-sy."

Each of these familiar words must be accented on the first syllable. As in EX-cavate, EX-cellent, EX-ercise, and EX-ecute, EX marks the spot where the accent belongs.

Correct pronunciations:
EX-kwi-sit.
EX-ze-muh.
EX-i-jen-see.
(Capitals indicate syllables to be accented.)

GIRL WITH A POOR MEMORY
By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.

JOAN BLONDELL was sitting in the Stork Club the other evening, proving to Bugs Baer that she had the world's worst memory. She said she even went to a psychoanalyst one time and begged, "Hey, do something about this." Bugs claimed, "Oh, it couldn't be that bad," and Joan told him this story to prove it could. It seems that when she was in Hollywood, working for Warner Brothers, she happened to be standing with some friends in a theater lobby one night when a man with a very familiar face came over to the group and said, "Hello, Joan, you're looking very well."

Joan blushed, stalled, started to introduce her companions, raked her memory for the man's name, finally admitted defeat. "I'm sorry," she apologized, "but I just can't think of your name."

"It's Warner," said the man with the familiar face. "Jack Warner!"

JOAN BLONDELL—SHE DIDN'T KNOW HER BOSS.

Dorothy Parker met Jimmy Cannon outside the Booth Theater, where the young Armenian playwright, William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life" is puzzling the cash customers. Jimmy seemed in a hurry.

"Where are you going?" asked Miss Parker.

"I'm going over to Saroyan's," said Cannon, "to buy a rug!"

Eddie Duchin, the John Gielgud of the keyboard, went into a huddle the other night in preparation for his Sabbath radio program. His fame as a dramatic student had reached the ears of William Barr, the program's scripter, who hoped he could work out a comedy skit with Eddy emoting.

Only one thing stood in the way. Duchin had a cold. He couldn't talk above a low rasp. He kept bringing out an ugly black bottle and swigging medicine from it.

Duchin paced the floor, finally came through with an idea. "I'll do Jimmy Stewart's filibuster scene in 'Mr. Smith Goes to Washington' —he was hoarse, too."

"Fine," agreed Barr, "but you'll have to co-operate."

"What do you mean?" choked Duchin, reaching for the bottle.

"For heaven's sake," snapped Barr, "stop taking that darn cough medicine!"

Charlie MacArthur is crediting Gertrude Lawrence with the silly tale of the troubled young man who went to a psychoanalyst to be cured of a strange malady.

"There's only one thing wrong with me," he informed the expert. "I eat three meals a day, I sleep eight hours, I'm not nervous, I'm happy, I feel great. But every now and then"—he fluttered his hands in front of him like a covey of frightened birds—"hundreds of butterflies run up and down my chest, like this, up and down, up an"—

"Go away!" cried the psychoanalyst, backing up in terror. "Can't you see they're getting on me?"

At the Tavern a few nights ago Playwright Jerry Horwin enlivened the corner table chat with an account of a legendary Hollywood session between Harry Cohn, the producer, and Lew Brown when he was writing for the films. Cohn had been searching for a script for a certain star, and one day Brown hit upon a great plot. He dashed into Cohn's office to tell him about it.

"The boy meets the girl," he began, "and they're in this taxi, and"—

Cohn picked up the telephone. "Excuse me," he said. "Find out," he ordered into the phone, "if you can get me four tickets for the fights tomorrow night. Go on, Lew."

"Well, they're in this taxi," Lew went on, "and he tells her he loves her and"—

Cohn picked up the telephone. "Find out," he said, "how that horse made out in the third at Santa Anita. Go on, Lew."

"Well, she loves him," Lew continued, desperately, "and she tells him"—

Cohn picked up the telephone. "Joe?" he asks. "What kind of odds would you like on that football game Saturday? Go on, Lew. It sounds great."

"Well, then the earthquake comes and there's a terrible scene," said Lew, "and"—

Cohn picked up the telephone. "Sam?" he said. "Can you have lunch with me at Lucy's? Pick me up in five minutes."

Lew took a deep breath.

The telephone rang. Cohn picked up the receiver. "Mr. Cohn," said his secretary's voice, "Mr. So-and-So calling to take you to lunch."

"So," went on Lew, "the hero wanders all over looking for her, and"—

"Stop, Lew!" cried the producer, frowning. "Don't you know better than to bother me with business—in my lunch hour?"

Stepmother's Query About Rude Children
By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

A MONTH ago I married a widower with three young children. Now we are back from our wedding trip and I am aware of the fact that I have quite a job ahead of me because I found that my husband's children, who have been taken care of by his housekeeper for the past two years, are as rude as little savages. I don't know where to begin, or what to do with them. I am hoping you will have some suggestions for me. They're three, five and seven—two boys, and the girl is the oldest.

Answer: Try to make friends with the girl, since she's oldest. Through her you should then easily make friends with the younger ones. Don't be sentimental, but at the same time try to understand how they feel. You know, it's very hard for them to have some one put in their mother's place. Be ready to meet any advances they make but don't try to force their affection. Above all, be fair. Children care more about that than anything else. Make only a few rules at a time—but see that those you make are kept.

Dear Mrs. Post: My two sisters are to be my only wedding attendants. I am wearing bride's clothes —satin, very simply made—and am wearing a plain tulle veil. My older sister is married, and as her husband is earning very little, she has suggested that I let her wear her white wedding dress. This is just a year or so old and he has worn it only one time since her wedding. However, the dress is white—net over satin. If she may wear this dress, then what do you suggest that my younger, unmarried sister wear?

Answer: A matron of honor in her wedding dress would certainly be a very detracting figure—very unfair to you. She might perhaps take the train off and change the appearance of the dress by putting colored flowers on it. But it would be best if she could have it dyed a pale color. As a matter of fact, your two sisters should be dressed exactly alike. Couldn't they get simple clothes, which they would find useful afterwards? They probably have to have some afternoon or semievening dresses for this winter. One can get such lovely things for so very little money today, it is to be hoped they can add to the beauty of your wedding and not detract from it. Can't they?

Shoulder Exercises
By Patricia Lindsay

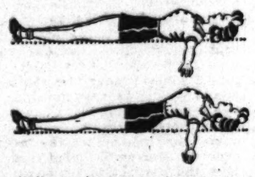
WE certainly have our problems —we diet and exercise to reduce our weight and then we come face to face with the fact that our shoulders and upper chest are too thin. To correct this appalling condition (for the girl who likes to wear formal gowns and bathing suits) corrective exercises daily and massage are required.

I understand that over 80 per cent of women have hollows between their bosom line and neck. This hill-hollow difficulty may come through poor posture, underweight or limp muscles.

But fortunately the muscles of the chest respond quickly to proper exercise and experts tell us that in six months we can actually transform our chest contours.

It is pretty important that you wear an uplifting brassiere, well fitting, if your shoulders are thin and chest hollow. Particularly if your breasts are of normal weight or heavy. This helps to keep the tissue up in place while you are exercising to firm the chest muscles.

Every single night of your life massage these hollows and your shoulders with a rich lubricating cream or with warm almond oil. Take time (at least five minutes) to massage thoroughly and leave the cream on overnight. If you are very much underweight eat and rest more to gain weight. Then go through these exercises every day without ever skipping. And mind you, it will take from four to six months before your hollows will fill out, your shoulders straighten and grow more appealing in firmness. Miracles in figure refashioning simply do not happen—it take persistance but the rewards are well worth your effort.



Exercises for Thin Shoulders:

(1) Stand erect, shoulders well back, heels about three inches apart, arms out at shoulder height, palms turned upwards. Twirl your arms 20 times backwards and 20 times forwards. Keep the action in the shoulder joints. Breathe deeply enough to raise the upper part of the thorax, 20 times.

(2) Hold the right arm straight out in front of the body, clench the fist tightly, and rotate it first to the right, and then to the left for five minutes. Repeat with the left arm. (The time you put in helps with this exercise.)

(3) Lie on back with arms out to side. Keeping your arms on the floor throughout the exercise, raise your chest and shoulders upward until weight is on back of head. Keep your chin tilted upward. Relax and lower chest and shoulders to mat. Repeat five times and then rest. Ten times altogether.

Note: This exercise develops muscles in upper back, stretches and firms neck muscles and gets directly to those controlling chest and bust.

My leaflet "Rules to Banish the Dowager's Hump" contains several more excellent chest developing exercises. Do them after the above exercises. You may have the leaflet upon request if you will enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope. Write me care of this paper.

"Stomach Will Not Stand Two Thanksgivings"
By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THIS column is printed quite widely throughout the country, and we try to frame some appropriate remarks to fit the various holidays as they come along, but the Thanksgiving article this year rather has us stumped. We do not know whether you, our gentle reader, are going to celebrate a Democratic or an old-fashioned Republican Thanksgiving. We are entirely impartial ourselves, but we do not intend to attempt to dig out two Thanksgiving articles all in one year. So we will concentrate our remarks into one piece of advice.

But that advice is quite important and consists in warning you not to try to celebrate two Thanksgivings. Your stomach will not stand it. A stomach is temperamental and not partisan, and it was not designed to go around trying to master two feasts in one week. It needs a rest.

We are saying this, you understand, from the standpoint of a physiologist entirely without bias.

You see, nature cannot be fooled. You may say today, "That was an awful good turkey; they are delicious this year, and so was the plum pudding. And although they stirred up my gallstones a little bit, and my dyspepsia was a little worse, I think I will have another Thanksgiving on the 30th. I will not count the second one."

There is a memorable passage in William James' Psychology in which he describes Joe Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle. Rip has sworn off drinking and decides to take one last glass. He says, "I won't count this one," and William James says, "Well! he may not count it, and a kind heaven may not count it; but it is being counted none the less. Down among his nerve cells and fibers, the molecules are counting it, registering it, and storing it up against him when the temptation next comes."

And your stomach juices or gall bladder mucosa will count your extra indulgences, no matter how complacent you may be about them. The Rip Van Winkle attitude is repeated often by many classes of patients. I see diabetics saying "Well, one plate of ice cream won't be counted." No, to paraphrase James, the diabetic himself may not count it, but the acid base balance ions in the blood will count it. Nature is quite fair, but quite inexorable.

Questions and Answers.

J. C.: "I can't go anywhere because I cannot display my hands as they are full of warts. I have been using acids, but others are coming out in various spots on the hands. About two years ago I went to a doctor to have one taken out by electric needle. After the treatment the whole hand swelled and was very painful; it took about a month for the sore to heal. I am afraid to go to another doctor for fear of having the same trouble."

Answer: The only effective methods of treating warts are by electro-dissection, radium or X-ray exposure, or application of caustics. Electro-dissection is probably best. You had an unfortunate experience but that is no reason not to try again. The electric needle should be applied only until lumescence begins in the tissue. To continue it further brings unnecessary destruction of tissue.

Case Records of a PSYCHOLOGIST
By Dr. George W Crane
Of Northwestern University

CASE N-184: More about the great field of sales and advertising!

Perhaps the reason we feature hen eggs at our stores and restaurants is largely because the ducks don't cackle! Advertising and salesmanship are the backbone of American progress. Every woman who finds herself and her babies financially protected when death takes her husband away, should be grateful to the life insurance salesmen. We rarely telephone the salesman and request him to come over to our home because we want to purchase a policy. More's the pity. In fact, many people are rude and caustic when the salesman tries to get them interested in protecting their own future economic welfare and that of their dependents. But almost every penny paid out on life insurance policies is a vital, constructive tribute to American salesmen.

You could not buy this newspaper for its 3-cent price if it were not for the advertising which it carries. Thus you have a daily paper which has diversified amusement and education through the comics and sport pages, as well as the political news and constructive columns—all for a mere 3-cents. Advertisers foot the bills for your radio music and comedy hours, your football and baseball broadcasts, the prize fight blow by blow descriptions, and the educational hours.

—o—o—

IN SMALL TOWNS the merchants finance community movies which are free, and charge it off to advertising. About $30,000,000 annually is paid out in prize money to contestants entered in newspaper, magazine or commercial contests, making this probably the most lucrative literary hobby in the world. Advertising pays this $30,000,000 bill each year.

A star salesman is a product of years and years of intensive study of human nature and diligent application of the laws of applied psychology. Any star, whether in music or art, literature or business, deserves acclaim for he pays a price which the average person is unwilling or incapable of paying. Take the life insurance field, for example. The weekly quota for the average salesman is 40 calls, 15 interviews, and one sale. Can you imagine the tremendous drain on your morale when 25 people out of 40 slam the door in your face? And when 14 of the 15 you do get to see, are strikeouts instead of base hits?

—o—o—

IS IT ANY wonder that we need young men, full of verve and vitality, to withstand the rigor of salesmanship? As in the army, we find it is better to choose young men for the constant battle of wits needed in salesmanship. They should also regard salesmanship as a profession, and compare themselves with the law student who pays out nearly $1000 a year for five years just to get his diploma. Salesmen, however, get paid something while they are learning their profession.

A good memorized sales talk, plenty of energy and an indomitable will to win, can make any intelligent person a good salesman. But if you are easily discouraged, stay out of this field.

Getting Up on a Frosty Morning

HERE is a practical formula for getting out of bed on a frosty morning:

Set the alarm clock for 7 a. m. When the alarm rings, reach over and turn it off. Test the temperature by seeing if you can see your breath. You can.

Ask yourself why you set the alarm for 7 a. m. when 7:15 a. m. would have been early enough. Tell yourself that there is no need to hurry. Lie there thinking pleasant thoughts.

Your wife will now interrupt your reverie by inquiring, "Are you going to get up?" Reply in the affirmative. Picture to yourself how, when you become wealthy, you will have a valet to come into the room every morning, close the windows and turn on the radiator.

Remind yourself that you haven't a valet and it is now 7:15 a. m. Rehearse the act of leaping out of bed at the count of three, jumping into your dressing gown and slippers, rushing to close the windows.

Count "One, two three." Picture yourself leaping up, but remain where you are. Reproach yourself for showing the white feather.

Point out to yourself how absurd it is to be afraid of the cold.

Note that the hands of the clock now indicate 7:21 a. m. Think of your courageous ancestors who daily broke the ice in the wash basin. Ask yourself if your generation is soft and degenerate. Answer with a proud "No."

Say to yourself, "Come now, old man. No flinching. The nation counts upon you." Reply, "Aye aye, sir. Garcia shall get the message." Simulate drawing your sword and crying "Death or victory." Leap out of the covers into your slippers and gown, slam down the windows, turn on the radiator and rush for the bathroom in the hope of finding it warm.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE
By Wynn

Friday, Nov. 24.

EARLY influences today give much self-assurance; but take another look if the pocketbook or the emotions are in the frame—unreliable urges take over in the afternoon and evening, and would be uncomfortably important if followed.

The Fast and The Slow.

Astrology is related to both the lower and higher portions of each of us. Planetary rays effect both our gathering of mental physical capital and our gathering of spiritual capital. The faster moving planets are related chiefly to our daily external lives. These are sun, moon, Mercury, Venus and Mars. The slow movers, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune bring permanent results.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead suggests making most of Dec.-April for improving love life, and self-expression. Push plans personally. Care with health and inferiors from mid-April. Investigate new matters first from mid-Aug. Danger: Aug. 20-Sept. 1, 1940.

Stick to the tried and true; skip the yen to shift all the scenery.

Wrinkled Patterns.

Don't ever try to cut out a garment on a wrinkled pattern and hope for success. Use a light warmed iron and press the wrinkled paper out smooth. Then spread out on the material and cut out the pattern.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM not old enough to go on any kind of dates, but am allowed to go places with boys and girls mother and dad know well. I am also allowed to write to them. One boy I write to asked me to exchange pictures with him, and I said I would. He sent his, a stamp picture, but I had to wait until I had one taken. He asked for it several times. I have not heard from him for two weeks now, and am ready to send the picture. But should I, when I haven't heard in so long? Shall I send his back? If I meet him shall I speak or not notice him? JUST DUMB.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Seems to me you are making a lot of fuss over very little! Two weeks is not an eternity, and he has probably been busy with school work. Send the picture along, if you want to, and ignore the two weeks silence. He is probably waiting anxiously for it and had about given it up. Not to speak to anyone is silly, unless you feel you have been really insulted!

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE BEEN going with a boy for about a month. He is also going with another girl, has been going with her about five years. He likes us both and won't give up either one for the other. I like him a lot. Shall I tell him not to come any more, or keep on going with him even though he goes with the other girl? UNDECIDED.

Unless the boy is engaged to this other girl, there is no reason why you should not date him too, if you like him. Go around to places of amusement with groups rather than one boy. It's lots more fun, and things aren't apt to get so serious.

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

CAN YOU TELL me the address of the Guatemala consulate in St. Louis? Are British Guiana and British Honduras republics? TA.

Mrs. Agnes A. Neuville is honorary consul for Guatemala. Her territory takes in Kansas, Kentucky and Missouri. She lives at 3533 Longfellow, and her telephone number is LAclede 4259. British Guiana and British Honduras are both under the rule of Great Britain.

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM A veteran in the hospital at Outwood, Kentucky. A few of the boys here are making rugs out of old silk stockings and we would appreciate it very much if some of the women's societies in St. Louis would be kind enough to send us some of their old stockings. The color is not important as we dye them whatever color is needed. These may be sent to Elroy McNier, Veterans' Hospital, Outwood, Kentucky. Thank you very much. ELROY McNIER.

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM GOING to a backward dance this month. After the dance does the girl pay for the refreshments? If she is not old enough to drive, is it all right for the boy to call for her in his car? The boy I'm supposed to take is said to have a bad reputation. He seems very nice to me. Shall I take him? C. H. S.

There is usually an agreement, at these parties, just what the girls are to be responsible for. If you want a real backward party, you girls are responsible for everything. It would be stretching a point to say the boy could not come for you, when you cannot drive. If this boy has a bad reputation better avoid him. If it is only jealous gossip and you personally know him to be a good boy and your family approves of him, take him along, and ignore the gossip.

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM A woman 38 years old and do domestic work. I have no one and no place to go on my Thursday and Sunday off. Is there some place where people my age gather for entertainment that is public? THANK YOU.

The Niptonaka Club which meets at the Y. W. C. A. on Thursday afternoons after 2 o'clock, has an afternoon and evening program. This club is especially for women and girls in household employ. Call Mrs. Betty Fowler, GA. 2748 for particulars. Sunday afternoons at 4:45 p. m. there is a vesper service, and people attending have an opportunity for getting acquainted afterwards.

After Christmas at the Bishop Tuttle Memorial of Christ Church Cathedral there is to be a meeting the second Sunday of each month, at 6 p. m., for any who wish to come. For ten cents there will be a light lunch, music and a travelogue. There is also the Woman's Club of Christ Church Cathedral which meets all day Thursday, and many come for the afternoon, only. You might find this group congenial. For further information call the president, Miss Schwarzer, at CA. 1734M.

—O—O—

IN ANSWER to "All Mixed Up" you are foolish to even consider this boy who so interests you. If he drinks excessively at his age, he may become a hopeless drunkard later. Find a boy friend who has a good reputation and no such fault as this, which would mean a life time of sorrow if you married him.

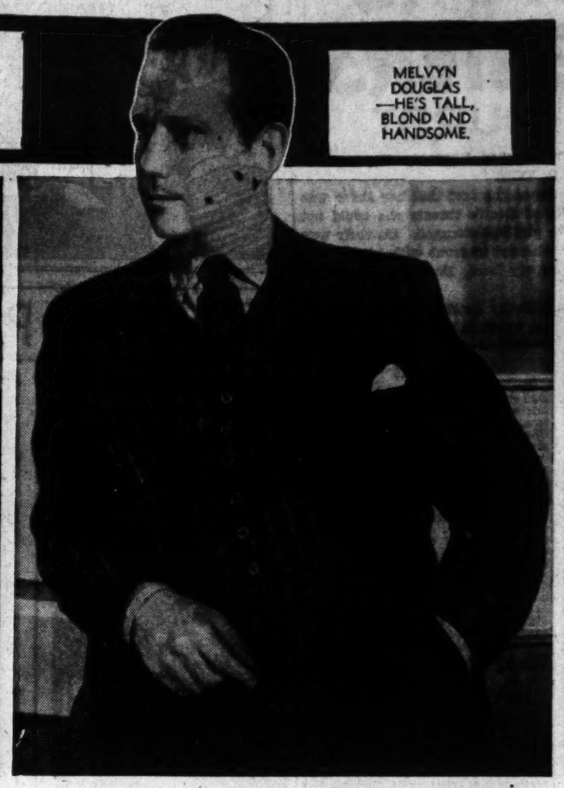
MAN WHO MADE GARBO GIGGLE

Melvyn Douglas, Greta's New Leading Man, Quit Movies in Disgust Over His Failures, but Returned to Score Hits in Many Pictures.



GARBO AND DOUGLAS IN A SCENE FROM "NINOTCHKA."

By Virginia Irwin

Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.

WHEN a young man with a very nice voice called me on the telephone the other day and said he was Melvyn Douglas' personal press agent and would I like to interview the guy who made Garbo laugh, I said sure that anything that was a giggle to Garbo was a story to me. And so it came about that I had a picnic lunch on location with the man for whom Garbo went gay in "Ninotchka" and then spent a very pleasant afternoon watching Douglas do his stuff before the camera. Between scenes, we carried on the conversation that began over the picnic sandwiches and potato salad.

"Ninotchka," Douglas told me reverently, "is the only picture I ever made that I was really sad to see finished. And it is one of the few I ever made that left me with a sense of accomplishment when it was done."

His most recently completed picture, "The Amazing Mr. Williams," he is sure will leave him with nothing but a couple of crippled arches and a profound and lasting pity for women who wear corsets. In this little number, you see, there is a sequence in which Douglas as a disguised detective must impersonate a woman. So for a couple of days he had to limp around in a pair of high heels and wear a foundation of whalebone.

"The outfit," Melvyn moaned, "was a masterpiece. The dress had a lace business around the neck and a flower on the bosom. But the piece de resistance was the hat. It had a veil on it with an edging of flowers to hide my mustache. To make things worse, I had to wear a couple of fox furs draped around my shoulders. Thank God I'm a man. I should think veils would drive women crazy. And high-heeled shoes—well, I'm sure I'll never have the same old arches. And as for corsets — I think there should be a law."

Handsome, and of an age to make him the idol of the woman over 40, Melvyn Douglas now enjoys the distinction of being one of only four men who have ever appeared with the Great and Silent Swede in more than one picture. And today, Melvyn, who started out in life with the sur-handle of Hesselberg, can look back on the days when he read gas meters and sold sweaters in a men's furnishing store for a living, and laugh.

The gas-meter reading and sweater selling, along with such jobs as running an elevator and peddling encyclopedias, of course preceded Melvyn's arrival on Broadway just 10 years ago. There had been stock, and plenty of it but not plenty of pay—hence the gas meters and encyclopedias—before Broadway, but once our hero hit the Great White Way the going was practically greased. His first role was that of Ace Wilfong, the gangster in "A Free Soul," and then under a three-year contract to that great showman William A. Brady he did "The Silver Cord" with Laura Hope Crews, "Jealousy" with Fay Bainter, "The Command to Love" and "Recaptured," and then David Belasco cast him in "Tonight or Never."

"Tonight or Never" brought Melvyn two things—his wife, Helen Gahagan who was the star of the piece, and an offer from Hollywood.

"In my enthusiasm I signed a five-year contract with Sam Goldwyn," Melvyn reviewed his early disappointments in the movie business. "At the end of eight months, I couldn't stand it any longer. So I went to Goldwyn and said 'Look here, I smell. You know it and I know it, so why not let me out of my contract?'"

And in spite of the fact that Melvyn had already made such big-priced pictures as "Prestige" with Ann Harding, "The Wiser Sex" with Claudette Colbert and "As You Desire Me," his first picture with Garbo, he wiggled out of his contract and took Helen Gahagan for a belated honeymoon around the world.

"Then Helen was going to have a baby so we came back to our home in Hollywood," Melvyn explained. "We stayed just long enough for Peter to arrive and then went to New York where I did 'No More Ladies,' staged a play for Helen called 'Moor Born' and directed 'Within the Gates.' Then it was Helen's turn to get a Hollywood offer so she signed with RKO for a picture called "She."

* * *

SATISFIED that the movies were not for him, the next time Melvyn paid a visit to the mystic city it was on a visit to his wife. But when Columbia offered him the lead opposite Claudette Colbert in "She Married Her Boss," he weakened, says he went into it "with a whatth'ell attitude" and awoke in the year of our Lord 1936 to discover himself a movie star against his will and the possessor of so many offers he thought it was all a dream.

And since then he has appeared in "Annie Oakley" with Barbara Stanwyck, "Mary Burns Fugitive" with Sylvia Sidney, "And So They Were Married," with Mary Astor, "The Gorgeous Hussy" with Joan Crawford, "Theodora Goes Wild" with Irene Dunne, "Women of Glamour" and "Arsene Lupin Returns" with Virginia Bruce, "The Toy Wife" with Luise Rainer, and has now topped the proceedings by making Garbo giggle in "Ninotchka."

Right now, Melvyn says he has only one regret. He has done everything theatrical there is to do but be a burlesque comedian.

"There's a strange streak in me," he grinned. "I'm a sucker for low comedy. Why I can remember when I was just a punk kid in Toronto I used to go see the adventures of Musty Suffer. They ran Musty's adventures along with serials of The Iron Claw. And do you know of all the pictures I've seen in my lifetime, I remember the Musty movies the best. I would have made a great Keystone cop."

And that's no gag on Melvyn's part. His friends out here say there's no explaining a guy who prefers the Marx Brothers in the movies and the symphony in music.

Six feet, two, Melvyn scales in at 180 pounds, and is now the papa of three children. One by his first wife in the days when he was a spear bearer in stock companies, two by Helen Gahagan. Their second child, Mary Helen Douglas, is just a year old.

A very matter of fact gent, Douglas never exerts himself off-screen to be funny. But in his droll way he accomplishes what others miss in their attempts at comedy. Take his description of his worries getting himself done up in whalebone.

"There is no reason why corsets should lace in the back," he weighed the situation soberly. "And there is no reason why a girdle should be worn under a slip rather than over it. You know I never thought much about girdles until—"

And so the man who made Garbo laugh talked on unaware that he was doing a perfect Joe Cook and "Why I Will Not Pay The Feed Bill" and thoroughly unable to understand why the script girl, his press agent and I should all be in hysterics.

TOMORROW—Deanna Durbin, the singing-star, whom Miss Irwin describes as the "best box-office bait since Mary Pickford made 'Tess of the Storm Country.'"

SECRET SORROWS

—By Elsie Robinson

SECRET sorrows—never a mail but one or more comes to my desk. Somebody's guarded tragedy bared—for brief relief—on paper. A broken love bond. A gnawing remorse. A thwarted career. Bitterness of betrayal. Agony of loss by death. Or—hardest of all to bear—the wretchedness of a life that never had anything to lose. Hoarded heartache, and with it the invariable picture of crippled character.

Secret sorrows—once I pitied them. Once, indeed, I cultivated them myself. Broken dreams—betrayals—a grave I could never forget—these things had come to me also. And I, too, hid them in my heart, not merely because I had been taught that it was "good taste" to hide such experiences, but really because I thought it was impossible to share them.

How could other people possibly understand my suffering? Of course, they had had sorrows. But not such devastating, demoralizing sorrows. They might suffer, within their small limitations, but my sufferings were different. My sorrow was peculiar and exclusive beyond the common comprehension.

Naturally, I didn't state the matter in these words . . . didn't even admit such notions to myself. To the contrary, I tried to be gallant about the "bearing of my cross" . . . and more generous to those who were bearing lesser ones. And I truly believe that I was making a good job of being a Broken Heart.

But of course I wasn't! I was making a wretched mess of it. I wasn't brave. . . . I was disgustingly Snooty! I wasn't generous. . . . I was outrageously Selfish!

In the first place, why should I allow my experiences to "break my heart"? Those experiences had been painful, but it was a normal and natural pain. It was the pain of growth. It was inevitable, in the development of any healthy life that dared to run risks and make experiments . . . dared to reach out toward Wisdom and Beauty. Why should I make a tragedy of that natural process?

Worse yet, why should I make a Personal Tragedy of it? Act as if I were Exhibit A amongst the world's martyrs? How egotistical to think that my experience differed from the mass experience . . . that my suffering was more poignant than the suffering of millions of other human being! It wasn't! It hadn't hurt me a particle more to see my hopes "fa' down and go boom" than it hurt any other intelligent, sensitive soul.

Then why was I making all this fuss? Why was I cultivating a Secret Sorrow? For two reasons—it gratified my egotism, and it allbied my laziness.

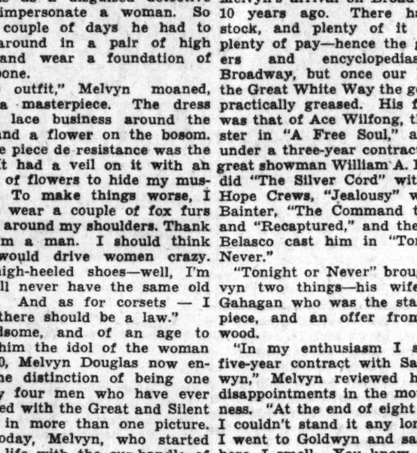
Human Vanity is an amazing thing: It will seize upon any material to serve its ends. If it can't make a record out of Success, it will make one out of Failure. If it can't gain the spotlight by Being Happy, it will hog it by Being Sad. For we can attain quite as much prominence by Tears as by Triumphs. And, unless we watch our step, our vanity will trick us into contemptible exhibitionism, even in our most sacred and sincere grief.

And human Laziness is quite as versatile and vicious as human Vanity. Almost any circumstances may serve as a hideaway, if we want to duck responsibility; and there's no hideaway as convenient as a Broken Heart—or as protected against criticism. For who dare bawl out the Afflicted?

It took me a long time to discover these things about myself, and it wasn't any picnic. Nor am I deceived. I know that Vanity and Laziness will trick and trap me again, as they have in the past, unless I'm eternally on my guard. But I've learned one lesson for keeps—I no longer pity Secret Sorrows, my own or anybody else's! And when I catch myself or anyone else indulging in one, I promptly yell:

"How do you get that way, you big cry-baby? If the rest of them can take it, why can't you? You've an unmitigated nerve to act as if you were the world's worst martyr! So get up and get going—scram!"

Designing Women



MARGARETTA BYERS SAYS—

HERE'S a real life story—from failure to fashion model.

As she was, see lefthand sketch, this short, plump child couldn't get a modeling job. If you're this type don't: fluff out your hair, it widens the face; eclipse your neck with froufrou; wear low belts that cut leg length, or tight belts that make you bulge; or tummy corsages; or big, light-colored prints.

At the right you she her dressed as we suggested—high-piled hair; high Empire waistline; long, flowing skirt, not tight; non-clinging fabric; and a long scarf to add vertical lines. Result? A thank you letter reporting a call to pose in fall fashions!

Child's Spelling

—By Angelo Patri

ANY normal-minded child can learn to spell, provided his vision and hearing are good. Children in the grades of elementary school are normal-minded, and they can see and hear. Some of them do not spell simple words correctly, do not attempt to do so, and they carry that deficiency on to, and through, high school, even through college. That seems to me disgraceful. By disgraceful I mean that it indicates a habit of laxness, carelessness, sloppiness, that intelligent young people should be ashamed to admit. They can learn to spell and they should do so or be classed among the illiterate.

Such children should be grouped and given special attention until they understand that they have to spell words correctly. First their vision and hearing and speech power should be tested. If any one of these is deficient, the child is handicaped and should be helped, not blamed.

Once we are assured that there is no sound cause for the poor spelling, we teach it. The children are asked to watch the teacher write each word on the board, while she spells out each letter; then, as she writes the whole word, he pronounces it. The group now writes the word, spelling it aloud as they do so. Then they write it silently. This is done word by word, down the list, a short one, two words for beginners, five for the other grades, until the children show ability to do more.

When the words have been studied this way and their use made plain, the children write them—or, better yet—are handed a printed list of them to paste in their notebooks for home study. Next day, the teacher reads out the list and the group writes the words. Now they correct them. The teacher writes each word on the board; the children draw a line through those they missed.

The teacher instructs them to look at the board, take out their lists, compare their work, note the right way, ignore the wrong; write the words missed in a list kept for that purpose; write each misspelled word two times correctly, while the teacher looks at the papers to catch any error the pupils skipped. If any word was commonly missed, assign it for the next day's work. Keep reviewing these lists until they are learned.

Spelling isolated words has little influence on spelling in composition, which is the reason for learning to spell at all. Make a point of having the children write brief paragraphs using their misspelled word lists. Have them check compositions for misspelled words and list them for use. Using words, while spelling them correctly, is what teaches children to spell correctly when they write letters and tests and compositions.

It is unwise to make children rewrite words many times because they do not attend to the form of the word after the first two times. If they write words as a punishment they accept spelling as a form of discipline to be avoided when possible. Twice, correctly, is enough to do the work of correction and impression.

Haste Ruins Defense in Bridge Game

By Ely Culbertson

ONE of the worst foes of good defense is panic. No one likes to go to sleep with an ace. But it is far better to let the opponents make an occasional overtrick than to hand them all close contracts without a struggle. In today's hand it was East's haste that permitted South to make his contract.

North, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

	♠KJ9 ♥KQ7532 ♦J84 ♣5
♠74 ♥10986 ♦9652 ♣Q74	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠63 ♥A ♦AQ1073 ♣AK982
	♠AQ10852 ♥J4 ♦K ♣J1063

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 diam.	1 spade	Pass
2 hearts	3 clubs	Pass	3 diam.
3 spades	4 diam.	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

North's two heart bid was too ambitious for his actual holding. He might have known that he would have to show spade support sooner or later and, since his hand was worth only one bid, he should have raised to two spades at once.

West opened the queen of clubs and East discouraged a continuation of the suit by playing his deuce. He was in a hurry to get whatever diamond tricks were coming to him, but his failure to insist on a club continuation ruined the defense of the hand.

West obeyed orders by shifting to his fourth best diamond and East dropped South's diamond king under his ace. East now led the king of clubs, forcing dummy to ruff, but it was too late. A low heart was returned from dummy, East winning with the ace. East returned a trump, dummy winning with the jack. Declarer now ruffed a diamond and ruffed a second club in dummy. He returned to his own hand once more by a diamond ruff and drew trumps. He thus made six trumps in his own hand, two ruffs in the dummy, and two heart tricks, fulfilling his contract.

Notice the difference if East signals for a club continuation at the first trick. West leads a second club and dummy ruffs. When a low heart is led from the dummy at the third trick East takes his ace and returns a trump. If declarer wins this trick in the dummy he cannot return to his own hand to get a second club ruff. If he attempts to do so by leading a diamond East will take the diamond ace and kill the ruff by leading another round of trumps. And if South wins the trump lead in his own hand he can ruff a second club in dummy, but then has no way of returning to his own hand. East can trump a heart lead or win a diamond lead with his ace. In either event he then will cash a high club to defeat the contract.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"Stalking Horse."

It may be an avowed presidential or senatorial candidate who is not really seeking the office; it may be somebody in or out of the political field, who, innocent or otherwise, diverts attention from the person who should receive it; it may be anything used to conceal or cover up one's purpose.

Rarely or never is it a real or imitation horse, but that is how it started.

The "stalking horse" comes to us from the lexicon of the hunter, where its significance was altogether literal. For it was the animal from behind which, unseen and unsuspected, the Nimrod or fowler sneaked up on his prey.

A Yearly Reminder.

Each year at this time we are tempted to remind the housewife that there is no germ distributor any worse than a neglected telephone. It should be washed with a disinfectant at least once a day if a person with a cold is using it and the afflicted person should be the one to take care of it and prevent the cold spreading to other members of the family.

A Quick Fire.

If the wood in the range does not catch readily, try throwing a teaspoon of sugar on it. It will blaze up immediately and is a safe method, rather than the use of kerosene, so frequently and unwisely used.

The DOCTOR'S DAUGHTERS
by VIDA HURST

CHAPTER TEN.

BECKY wished she had not mentioned the fact that her sister was jealous of Charlotte but in spite of Dean's threats she could not see that his attitude to the other girl had changed. On their way home from the picnic it was Becky who sat in front with him.

Dean said carelessly, "Better sit up here, Becky! It will be warmer."

So perhaps he had been bluffing, Becky decided feeling relieved. When they reached home Val had not come in yet and the rest of them parted at the door.

Charlotte went to her bed in the sewing room and Becky, yawning wearily, said goodnight to Claire and closed her door. Spending less time than usual in her preparations for bed she had turned out her light and was almost asleep when she heard Val's voice.

"Becky, you aren't asleep already?"

"Practically," the younger sister said sitting up in bed. "What's the matter?"

"I just wanted to ask you about the picnic," Val explained switching on the light. "Have a good time?"

"Swell," Beckey murmured. "But would you mind waiting until tomorrow to discuss it?"

"I'd rather know now," Val said. "What did Dean say about my running out on the party?"

"You'd be surprised," Becky retorted annoyed.

"What do you mean, Becky?"

"Well, he didn't object as much as I expected him to," the younger sister said, deciding to give Val a taste of her own medicine. "In fact he seemed to have a very good time."

Valerie, who had been fluffing her hair in the mirror, turned quickly.

"With Charlotte you mean?"

"Oh, we were all together," Beckey continued innocently. "That is most of the time. Charlotte had to take a walk after dinner you know."

"And Dean went with her?"

"I didn't say so. Go on to bed, Val, please. I'm tired and it must be terribly late."

"It isn't midnight yet," Val protested. "Something must have happened to make you act like this. You aren't usually so cagey."

"Why don't you ask Claire?"

"Because she's asleep and you know how she acts if anyone wakens her. I think I'll telephone Dean."

"Oh, Valerie, you musn't do that. He's probably asleep, too."

"Do I care? If he loves me he'll be glad to talk to me and if he doesn't I may as well know it now."

Becky listened to the patter of Val's high heels down the stairs to the telephone in the back hall.

She hoped Dean wouldn't answer but presently there came the sound of Valerie's voice, sweetly persuasive.

Becky's ruse had evidently worked because the conversation continued for almost an hour and the next morning Valerie came to the garden carrying her breakfast tray and looking as if she hadn't a worry in the world.

She was almost too sweet to Charlotte suggesting that they have a game of tennis before lunch. Adding casually to Becky, "Everything's all right. Dean forgave me. It's beastly of me to treat him like that when we are engaged."

Charlote's blue eyes widened.

"You are engaged to Mr. Kirk?"

"Don't tell me you didn't know it?" Val replied.

* * *

CHARLOTTE stammered, "Well, no. That is no one told me and you aren't together very much. I mean I just thought he was a friend of the family."

"He's that, too," Val said smoothly.

Her dark eyes were like unclouded pools in the morning sunshine. She pretended not to notice the expression of dismay on Charlotte's face as she poured herself a cup of coffee and nibbled daintily at her toast. But when the other girl had gone into the house Val said, "I guess that will settle her."

"It wasn't very kind of you," Becky said disapprovingly.

"On the contrary it was much kinder than to let her get a lot of false ideas," Valerie insisted.

Perhaps she had been right about that. At any rate poor Charlotte appeared at lunch with her eyes swollen and red from crying.

Too much sun, she insisted, but the remainder of the week found her avoiding Dean, who finally asked Becky if she knew what was wrong.

"Anyone would think I am poisonous," he complained.

Becky was truthful about it.

"Val told her you were engaged. I don't think Charlotte had any idea of it."

"Gosh!" Dean said looking embarrassed. "It couldn't have made any difference to her. I'd feel like a heel if I thought it did. Surely you know, Becky, that I haven't made any advances to Charlotte."

"You've been here practically every day," she reminded him. "And Charlotte knew it wasn't to see me. You can't really blame her if she has gotten a wrong impression."

"I suppose this means that I ought to stay away?"

He looked so dejected that Becky said, "She'll only be here one more week, Dean. Besides now that she understands it shouldn't make any difference."

But it made a difference to Dean. So much so that he avoided the house except when Valerie was at home. Becky missed him. He had been a definite part of her own days for the past five weeks.

It wasn't nearly as much fun without him. As for Charlotte she lost three extra pounds and her sunny disposition.

"I'll be glad when this is over," Becky confided to Claire. "So that things can get back to normal."

She longed to have the running of the household in her own hands. The enforced rest had been good for her but the housekeeper was growing careless.

Everyone in the house seemed to have changed during the period of Claire's experiment. Valerie looked tired and seemed more and more abstracted.

She had stopped chattering about the contacts she made at the studio but there was a look of strain on her face. While Claire, who was working harder than ever had never looked better. Her skin was like a sun-ripened peach.

Her hair the color of corn silk. Her laugh rang out merrily as she talked to Grahme Matthews.

No matter what her reason the association seemed to benefit her. All work and no play had been Claire's motto but Grahme insisted that she dance with him, staying out until all hours.

"He's a marvelous dancer," Claire admitted. "I adore dancing with him but of course this can't go on. After next week I'll have to get down to business again."

Becky said, "You'll miss him, Claire," but her sister retorted, "Who? Me? Listen, baby, I'll never miss any man. I've more important things on my mind."

Continued tomorrow.

SYNOPSIS

By means of phonograph records, DR. PETER THORNTON makes his last wishes known to his three daughters, BECKY, VALERIE and CLAIRE. One request is that the three girls live together in the house where they were born for at least a year. His recorded voice tells the girls that one year later he will explain the reason for this request. DEAN KIRK, a young attorney engaged to Valerie, is administrator for the small estate. He warns the girls that in addition to their home they will each receive only $1000 when the estate is settled. The three girls alone tell their secret ambitions — Claire, financial security; Valerie, excitement, music, dancing and romance, and Becky, a husband like Dean Kirk! Valerie buys a mink coat and other expensive clothes to impress the production manager of a radio station and get an audition. Dean finds Becky alone crying in the big house and in Valerie's absence invites her to go riding. Valerie's audition is successful and she gets a 13-week contract singing on a sustaining program. Dean and Valerie quarrel because Valerie seems more interested in her career than keeping her appointments with Dean. At Becky's suggestion, Val calls Dean and he accepts her invitation to visit them. Claire reveals she and ARTHUR MERRIAM have quit going together because Claire wants to concentrate all attention on her health shop. For publicity purposes, Claire plans an experiment to reduce an overweight girl and build up an underweight girl. She selects CHARLOTTE PATTERSON as the girl to be reduced and Becky as the girl to be built up. Dean tells Becky her added weight is becoming. Becky reveals to Dean Val's jealousy of his attentions to Charlotte. Dean considers using the idea as a defense to Val's apparent indifference to him.

Much Maligned Hash Becomes Popular Dish

SOME cooks think of hash as merely a thrifty method of using leftover meat by combining it with potatoes to make it do for a second meal. And when it is prepared just for this reason, the family may justly comment: "What, hash again?"

There is another school of thought, however, that welcomes leftover corn beef or roast beef and prepares it with such care as to seasoning and cooking that there are cheers when it appears on the table. Certain restaurants have made hash a specialty and find it appreciated by patrons. The other night at a famous place, high above the city streets, the head waiter suggested that we order chicken hash as one of the best specialties.

Of course, chicken hash is usually made with a creamy sauce and is quite different from the well browned omelet-type for which we use other meat. Generally there is little leftover chicken unless the family is small and the bird is large. In this case, the business woman housekeeper may feature chicken hash for the quick meal. The contents of a can of corn beef may be combined with leftover boiled or baked potatoes, minced onion and other seasonings. You may also purchase a good quality of hash in a can which needs but to be browned to make it ready for the table.

At a bazaar held recently, one of the most popular contributions was the home-made hash packed in cartons, to each of which an onion, wrapped in cellophane, was attached. There are a few people, I believe, who scorn the flavor of the onion even in this dish to which it adds so much savor.

Chicken Hash.

One minced onion.
Two tablespoons butter
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half cup chicken stock.
One-half cup rich milk.
Two cups diced cooked chicken.
Salt, pepper.

Cook onion in butter until yellow. Stir in flour and when well blended add chicken stock and milk, stirring constantly until smooth and thick. Add chicken and season to taste with salt and pepper. Heat thoroughly and serve. A few sliced mushrooms or some minced green pepper may be cooked in the onion if desired.

Corn Beef Hash.

Two cups chopped corn beef.
Two cups chopped boiled potatoes.
Two tablespoons fat.
One tablespoon minced onion.
Salt, pepper.

The beef and potatoes should be chopped fine but not minced. Melt the fat in a heavy frying pan, add the other ingredients and stir over the fire until thoroughly mixed. Press the mixture down in the pan until it holds together and cook over a low fire until brown underneath. Shake occasionally to prevent sticking. Fold like an omelet and turn out on hot platter. Poached eggs may be served around the hash.

Quick Meal.

Tomato juice cocktail
Corn beef hash
Creamed kohlrabi with green pepper
Celery and raw carrot salad
Hot apple turnovers
Coffee

Method of Preparation.

Prepare kohlrabi and cook.
Prepare hash and cook.
Prepare salad and chill.
Prepare sauce for kohlrabi and dress.
Open can of chilled tomato juice.
Make coffee.

My Neighbor Says:

Ferns grown in the house will have a rich green color if a teaspoon of household ammonia is added in a quart of water and poured over the ferns once or twice a month.

It is not too early to look over window screens. Mend and paint them now so they will be ready when it is time to put them in.

If curtains are thoroughly dried before being starched they will keep clean longer.

When making custard or squash pies make the upper crust larger than the lower and roll the upper crust under the lower and press down. Filling will not run out of it if the crust is rolled in this way.

When straining the pulp from liquid such as orange juice, if a piece of cheesecloth is placed inside a strainer none of the pulp can go through.

3 NEW COMICS in the Daily POST-DISPATCH

Three new comics have been added to the daily Post-Dispatch. Here are the newcomers who have joined your old favorites:

NAPOLEON and UNCLE ELBY
Napoleon is the funniest and most famous dog in America. You'll enjoy his clumsy antics and the escapades that embarrass his owner, Uncle Elby.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME
You'll laugh 'til it hurts at Jimmy Hatlo's daily cartoon. Hatlo holds a hilarious mirror up to life and pokes good-humored fun at familiar human foibles.

LITTLE MISS MUFFET
Here is one of the most lovable little ladies of the comic strips. It's a strip filled with fun and adventure, too.

None of the Post-Dispatch comics you have enjoyed has been removed or replaced by these three new strips. They are additions to an already large array of popular favorites, making a total of 20 comics, cartoons and adventure strips featured each weekday

A FLASH OF REASON
IN A WORLD GONE MAD
(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

Bill Campbell says a good customer came into his store to buy a pair of overalls. He was a small man, so Bill said, Well now what size about 34-32? Nope he said, about 36-38. Gosh! Bill said, they'd be awful long, wouldn't they? Well, he said, that's all right. They don't cost any more and I can have six inches cut off the bottom for patches.
